

B52s Strike at Reds Believed Readying Drive

Strategic Pass
Hit by Bombers

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Striking at Communist forces believed readying another drive south, U.S. B52 Stratoforts bombed the Mu Gia Pass in North Vietnam today and the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam Sunday.

The giant eight-engine bombers, each carrying up to 27 tons of bombs, struck at a mile-long stretch of the mountain pass through which the North Vietnamese filter into Laos and down to South Vietnam.

The B52s attacked Communist concentrations Sunday in the demilitarized zone seven miles north of the U.S. Marine stronghold known as the Rockpile.

The attack on the Mu Gia Pass was the eighth B52 raid on North Vietnam and the first since Oct. 10. The B52s had not hit the demilitarized zone in almost two months, although other U.S. planes have pounded it repeatedly.

Strength at 365,700

In other developments:

—Some 2,000 more American combat infantrymen arrived in Vietnam to bolster U.S. strength here to 365,700 men.

—Two warships of the Thai navy arrived in Saigon to add to Thailand's contribution to the allied side. Thailand previously sent two C123 transport planes.

—U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge left by plane for the United States to spend the Christmas holidays with his family. Lodge has scoffed at speculation that he would not return.

—A U.S. Navy spokesman said some North Vietnamese MIG pilots duck across the border of Red China to escape pursuit by American jet fighters.

'In Some Cases'

"Certainly I am positive that in some cases, when they decide to retreat, they go north," the spokesman said. He added, however, that he had no information that the North Vietnamese are using bases in China.

Viet Nam Is Vietnam

A survey by The Associated Press shows that "Vietnam," as one word, is the most common usage for the name of the Southeast Asian country, and this form is being adopted effectively today by the AP and The Post-Crescent.

There are three ways to spell the country's name, and none is really wrong.

The Saigon government on its postage stamps uses a hyphenated form: Viet-Nam. This is also used at the United Nations.

The two-word form, Viet Nam, is used on many maps including those of the National Geographic Society.

However, Vietnam as one word is most commonly used in reference books. In its favor, also, is the derivative word "Vietnamese," used as both adjective and noun and rarely appearing as two words although it is sometimes hyphenated.

High Court Affirms Conviction of Hoffa

Top Teamster Still Has Legal Steps to Take

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court upheld today the 1964 conviction of James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, on jury tampering charges.

"The use of secret informers is not per se unconstitutional," Justice Potter Stewart said in delivering the court's divided decision.

In his appeal Hoffa claimed his rights were violated by use of a paid government informer to gather information against him.

Rusk Talks With Indian Minister

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk stopped in New Delhi today for a 40-minute meeting at the airport with Foreign Minister M.C. Chagla. Neither would tell newsmen what was discussed.

Rusk stopped in the Indian capital en route from Thailand to Tehran, Iran.

While today's decision was firmly against Hoffa, it did not necessarily mean he would go immediately to prison. Still open to him are an application for reconsideration by the high court and possibly other legal moves.

Chief Justice Earl Warren dissented. Justices Tom C. Clark and William O. Douglas filed a brief opinion saying they would have dismissed the appeal. Justices Byron R. White and Abe Fortas took no part in the case or in the decision.

Byrnes Undecided On Whether to Ask For Increase in Tax

Needed, but Doesn't Say How

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John W. Byrnes, R - Wis., said today he wants to obtain a clear picture of the fiscal situation before he decides his own position on a tax increase if one is requested by President Johnson.

The senior Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which initiates all tax legislation, said he will not "out of hand" oppose any increase in taxes that might be requested.

"There is no question," he said in an interview, "that there will have to be a substantial cut from the current expenditure levels or there will be a tremendous deficit — or a substantial tax increase."

Byrnes said he will have to see more official figures and what the Johnson administration contemplates before he makes up his own mind about increase in income taxes.

At the same time, Byrnes said he would not speculate on whether Johnson will ask the 90th Congress, which convenes Jan. 10, to increase taxes.

"So far there has been nothing but confusion out of the White House in regard to taxes," he added.

"That," he said, "is regrettable because it leads to uncertainty in the business community. People do not know how to plan."

If the same trend of spending continues, Byrnes said, there will be a deficit of about $10 billion by the end of the present fiscal year next June 30.

It would not be realistic, he said, to think that Congress can

Gall Bladder Removed From Former President In 1½-Hour Operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's condition was reported as "good" by Walter Reed Army Hospital today following removal of his gall bladder.

The report on the 76-year-old Eisenhower's condition was made to newsmen at 11 a.m., about three-quarters of an hour after the surgery had been completed.

According to Maj. James Sonneborn of the hospital's public information staff:

"The operation has been completed and Gen. Eisenhower was back in his room at Ward 8 of the hospital at 10:05 a.m.," he said.

There was no immediate word on how long the surgery itself lasted. But it had previously been reported that it began promptly at 8 a.m. as scheduled.

Doctors had said prior to the operation that it was expected it would take "about an hour and a half."

After giving the announcement, Sonneborn was asked, "How does he feel?"

Sonneborn said he had no information on that at the moment, but that he expected to get it momentarily.

The announcement was the first since shortly after the surgery began.

A team of surgeons headed by L. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the Army's surgeon general, was at the operating table. The head nurse with the task of handing instruments to the surgeons was Maj. Hazel Outlaw of the Army Nurse Corps.

Target for the surgery was the pear-shaped gall bladder which Eisenhower's doctors

RFK, Hoover Trade Blasts on Eavesdropping

Director of FBI
Used Procedure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy has challenged FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover to make public his entire file on who authorized what eavesdropping while Kennedy was attorney general.

The New York Democrat fired the challenge Sunday night in a new round of the Kennedy-Hoover disagreement which erupted Saturday.

The furor opened with publication of a Hoover letter which said Kennedy knew all about FBI eavesdropping.

Kennedy said he didn't, that Hoover "has been misinformed." Hoover said Kennedy's retort was "absolutely inconceivable." Hoover produced a document backing his stand from the same FBI official Kennedy had quoted for his side.

'No Indication'

Then Kennedy called for Hoover to make his entire file public. "There is no indication that Mr. Hoover ever asked me for authorization for any single bugging device," said Kennedy.

Another former attorney general, Kennedy successor Nicholas Katzenbach, emerged as a sort of would-be peacemaker with a terse statement giving credit to each side and in essence chalking the dispute up to misunderstanding.

The Hoover letter, to Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, said use of wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping equipment in-

Not in Prisoner Exchange

U.S. to Send Wounded N. Vietnamese Home

MADRID (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman said Sunday night that the United States plans to send some sick or wounded North Vietnamese prisoners of war home.

Harriman indicated that the United States would like to have a prisoner exchange, but that the U.S. plan was not conditional on any reciprocal action from Hanoi.

He did not say when the repatriation would be done nor the number involved. The release, he said, would be undertaken through the International Red Cross and not by direct approach to North Vietnam.

Harriman, who arrived Sunday from Algeria, told newsmen of the plan in conversation during a reception at the U.S. Embassy. He is on a tour of various nations to explain the U.S. position on Vietnam and the decisions of the recent Manila conference.

The only North Vietnamese known to be held by the United States are 19 seamen pulled from the Gulf of Tonkin when their torpedo boats were sunk.

The Saigon government has custody of most North Vietnamese captured in fighting, including nearly 600 seized by U.S. units. Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has been said to be willing to

Annual Christmas Shows

USO Sends Life, Hope Into Vietnam

BY JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP) — As Christmas draws near a different sort of buildup is taking place in Vietnam. It's an entertainment escalation, and the "old soldiers" heading for the combat zone include Bob Hope, Martha Raye, Frances Langford, Anita Bryant and Johnny Grant.

Hope, who ought to rate as many hash marks as a 30-year sergeant, is making his 15th Christmas tour. "You should have seen me at Appomattox," he said. "I was a smash there."

Phyllis Diller, making her first trip to Vietnam as a member of the Hope entourage, said she is helping Lady Bird Johnson's "Keep America Beautiful" campaign by leaving the country. She is taking along a half-million pieces of bubble gum, which ought to set a few jaws to wagging.

The USO shows lined up for Vietnam over the holidays include the Bob Hope show, Martha Raye, Frances Langford, and the Clara Ward Singers, a Gospel group.

Disc jockey Johnny Grant, making his 29th overseas tour, is taking along actresses Tippi Hedren and Diane McBain to cheer up servicemen from Saigon to Da Nang. "The soldiers call me the GI Santa Claus who brings them pretty girls," Grant said.

Other troupes — including two college groups — will entertain American servicemen in Europe, the Pacific, Caribbean, Alaska, and Greenland.

Hope leaves Hollywood this Friday for two weeks, but his exact itinerary overseas is a military secret. The American high command in Vietnam figures the Communists wouldn't pass up an opportunity to ambush the entertainers if they knew their schedule.

Despite any personal qualms some entertainers may have about American involvement in Vietnam, there have been no difficulties recruiting performers for the tours.

"We offer the performers the motivation that a lot of young Americans are over there and they need help,

Wisconsin Ruling to Stand

Supreme Court Won't Study Baseball Case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused today to review baseball's immunity from antitrust law.

The effect of the court's action is to leave standing a ruling by the Wisconsin Supreme Court that baseball's immunity from federal antitrust law leaves Wisconsin powerless to enforce its own antitrust law against the sport.

The Wisconsin Supreme Court decision was given in litigation over the shift of the National League's Milwaukee Braves to Atlanta after the 1965 season.

Wisconsin Atty. Gen. Bronson C. LaFollette appealed to the Supreme Court to review the Wisconsin Supreme Court decision and overturn its ruling.

LaFollette failed by the vote of one Supreme Court justice to get the high court to hear the case. It takes agreement by four justices to bring a case before the Supreme Court for argument.

In this instance three justices announced they would have reviewed the Wisconsin decision. They are Hugo L. Black, William O. Douglas and William J. Brennan Jr.

Jurgensen Sparks Redskins To 34-31 Upset Over Dallas

Cowboys Still Need Victory Or Tie for Championship In NFL's Eastern Division

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Sonny Jurgensen beat Dallas for the third time in six efforts Sunday and it's making the Washington Redskins quarterback persona non grata.

Not that the Dallas Cowboys don't admire and respect Jurgensen but they'd just as soon he did his playing elsewhere.

He had to pick the day when Dallas figured on sacking up the Eastern Conference title in the National Football League. Everything was all set for it. St. Louis had lost 16-10 to Atlanta and all the Cowboys had to do was beat or tie Washington and they were in—ready to play Green Bay for the league title Jan. 1.

Get in Position
But Jurgensen twice passed for touchdowns to keep the Redskins tied with Dallas, then he maneuvered around and got the ball in position for a field goal, with time-consuming line plunges by his backs.

With only eight seconds left, Charley Gogolak, who kicks soccer style, booted the 29-yard field goal that beat the Cowboys 34-31 and delayed, at least, Dallas' ascension to the Eastern Conference crown.

The Cowboys just didn't have enough time to do anything about it.

They can win it without turning a hand should St. Louis lose to Cleveland Saturday. But even if St. Louis wins, Dallas could then take the title with a victory or tie with New York at New York next Sunday.

But the Cowboys still would consider Jurgensen a pain in the neck.

Played Six Times
The big quarterback went to Washington in 1964 and Dallas and Washington have played each other six times since then.

Against Dallas in those six games Jurgensen threw 210 passes, completed 109 for 1654 yards and 11 touchdowns. Four times he has thrown for more than 300 yards.

Dallas beat Washington 31-30 in November but it wasn't any fault of Jurgensen, who passed for 347 yards and three touchdowns. Whereupon Coach Tom Landry of Dallas said he would just have to try to outscore Jurgensen.

Can't Use Blitz
"I've got rid of the ball so fast there is no way to use the blitz," Landry explained.

Sunday, Jurgensen completed 18 passes of 33 for 308 yards and three touchdowns. He set up and passed for touchdowns to Bobby Mitchell and Jerry Smith, then he pitched a bomb to Charley Taylor for 65 yards and the touchdown that tied the score and left Gogolak to win with his field goal.

"Jurgensen did another good job," said Landry. "They made a lot of big plays and he took advantage of the opportunities." There were many breaks in

Nobis Anchors Rugged Defense

Falcons Upset Cards, To Gain Third Win In Last Four Games

By JOE ZELLNER
ATLANTA (AP)—The last time Tommy Nobis met Johnny Roland on a football field, they were both in high school.

"I weighed about 175, and he must have weighed about 205 or 210 then," Nobis said. "I can remember him pulling me into the end zone one time. They beat us. I don't remember the score, but I think it was in the state quarter-finals."

That meeting came when Nobis played at San Antonio and Roland was at Corpus Christi, both in Texas.

Roland and Nobis, both leading candidates for National Football League rookie honors, met again on the field Sunday, but this time Nobis weighed 235 and was on the winning team as the Atlanta Falcons downed St. Louis 16-10. And, he was not pulled into the end zone by anyone.

Nobis made several key tackles as a mainstay in the Falcon defense which boosted Atlanta to its second straight victory and third triumph of the season to tie the record for an expansion team.

Only Cardinal Weapon
Roland was the only Cardinal back effective against the inspired Falcon defense. He carried 12 times for 61 yards and completed two passes from his halfback slot for another 36 yards.

"It wasn't a personal duel to me," Nobis said. "If you start these other things, it can mess you up. I think Johnny is a fine football player. I don't consider this my best effort today, but over-all for the team, it was a great defensive effort."

Roland, disappointed by his team's loss, said, "I think Nobis is a great athlete. He will improve, but so will I."

Another Cardinal, flanker Billy Gambrell, commented, "That Nobis is great. He caught me from behind once on the sideline, and that is embarrassing."

Atlanta's defensive unit held the Cardinals to three points until the final minutes of play while the Falcon offense turned St. Louis miscues into points.

The Falcons' Ralph Heck pounced on a bouncing punt after a Cardinal had touched it to defense, outshone the Chicago Bears' offensive alignment in St. Louis 30 in the first quarter.

Wheelwright Scores
A few plays later, Randy Johnson tossed a short pass to Ernie Wheelwright, who bowled over two defenders for a touchdown.

Lee Calland's interception of a pass by Cardinal quarterback Terry Nofsinger set up a 26-yard field goal by Lou Kirovac in the second quarter.

Kirovac booted a 47-yard field goal to put Atlanta in front 13-3 near halftime and added a 14-yard scoring boot in the fourth quarter.

St. Louis was held to Jim Bakken's 27-yard field goal in the second quarter until Gambrell snared a 32-yard pass from Nofsinger on the Falcon two. Nofsinger rolled around right after for the score with 1:04 left in the game.

The victory was the third in four games for Atlanta and the first at home. The Falcons' three triumphs tie the record for a first-year team, set by Minnesota in 1961. Atlanta could break the record with a victory over Pittsburgh next week.

"I said we would win the last three," Falcon Coach Norb Hecker said, "and the job is two-thirds finished."

He picked up a Bukich pass at the 49er six and fell. Then he was up and threaded his way 94 yards to score.

"I told him to get up and run," said Kermit. "It's hard for a rookie to remember you can get up and run if you fall."

Red Mack Overcome by Emotion After Division Title-Clinching Win

Post-Crescent News Service
PALO, ALTO, Calif. — The secret of the Packers' success? We could name a dozen reasons — good quarterbacking, good linebacks, good coaching and good everything — but the real secret was unfolded during the Packers' jet charter flight from Baltimore to San Francisco after their title-clinching 14-10 victory over the Colts.

This was a champagne party — not with a boisterous escape where the players doused each other with the traditional toasting stuff, but a glass-clinking, smiling, singing and downright loving celebration of a job well done.

The champagne was opened a half-hour before the huge 727 jet left Friendship Airport — and somehow 40 voices took up the tune to "He's Got the Whole World in His Hand."

The wording was rapidly changed as the singing grew louder — such as "We've got the best team in the world" and "We've got the best coach in the world."

A beaming Vince Lombardi was touched when the word "coach" boomed up front and he responded with a 3-part solo. "We've got the best players in the world, we've got the best players in the world, we've got the best players in the world."

Dinner in Omaha

The merrymaking continued and sandwiches were brought forth as a sort of prelude to dinner which was served after a refueling stop in Omaha, Neb., not quite halfway in the 2,500-mile flight.

Few of the players sat down. They crowded in the main aisle chattering like a flock of kids.

What were they talking about? You'd have to say they were talking about each other, telling each other how good they were — like Forrest Gregg, with his arm around Willie Davis, saying things like "We've been through a lot together" and "You're the greatest."

And little Red Mack... eight weeks ago he was cut by the Falcons and picked up by the Packers as insurance on Bob Long. Today he's a champion.

He was still overcome by emotion — just as he was after the game when, with tears streaming down his face, he thanked Lombardi for picking him out of nowhere. "I've been in football since I was a fifth grader and this is the first time I've ever been on a championship team," Mack boasted.

"This is the fourth pro club (the others were the Steelers, Eagles and Falcons) and I mean it when I say this is the first time I've seen 40 guys all

Nick Eddy Signs Lion Contract

Notre Dame Star Will Receive About $250,000

DETROIT (AP) — Nick Eddy, the All-America halfback from Notre Dame, was signed by the Detroit Lions Sunday in hopes he can provide them with a breakout running threat.

The Lions outbid Denver of the American Football League to sign him to a National Football League contract. Eddy was re-signed one year and was drafted by both clubs last year.

No one would discuss contract terms, but the money was estimated to be around $250,000.

Eddy is 6-foot-11 and weighs 205. He compiled a 56 rushing average at Notre Dame in three years and caught 44 passes for 708 yards. He turned in outstanding performances on kick returns.

Eddy was named the most valuable player on Notre Dame's national championship team and finished third in the voting for the Heisman Award.

Nelson in Record Runback Eagles End Cleveland Hopes With 33-21 Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Al Nelson's 100-yard return of a missed field goal and Sam Baker's four field goals helped the Philadelphia Eagles to an upset 33-21 victory over the Cleveland Browns Sunday, eliminating the defending National Football League Eastern Conference champions from title contention.

Nelson, a defensive back, took Lou Groza's short field goal effort with one foot in the end zone, and raced the length of the field for a touchdown that gave the Eagles a 27-7 lead on the last play of the first half.

Jimmy Nittles, a 177-pounder applied a crushing block on the 250-pound Groza to clear the way for Nelson, who broke the record of 99 held by teammate Timmy Brown, Carl Taseff, formerly of the Baltimore Colts, and Jerry Williams, one-time Los Angeles Ram.

Cleveland rallied in the second half and with the help of two pass interceptions scored a pair of touchdowns to cut the Eagles' lead to 27-21. But Baker's third field goal, a 42-yarder in the fourth period, thwarted the Browns' comeback.

First Win Since 1962
With Jack Concannon at quarterback for the second straight week, the Eagles jumped to a 6-0 lead on 37 and 39-yard field goals by Baker and trailed only once as the Eagles beat the Browns for the first time since 1962.

Cleveland's only lead came in the second period when the Browns faked a field goal and Jim Ninowski, holding the ball, passed 10 yards to linebacker Jim Houston for a touchdown. Groza converted to make it 7-6.

The Eagles scored three touchdowns in the second quarter, one on a nine-yard rollout run by Concannon, another on a 44-yard pass from Concannon to Tom Woodeschick, and Nelson's sensational run.

Interception Stops Drive
In the third period, Ross Fichtner intercepted a Concannon pass and returned 39 yards for a touchdown to make it 27-14. Again taking advantage of an intercepted pass, Cleveland scored on a 10-yard aerial from Frank Ryan to Gary Collins to make it 27-21.

The Browns began driving again but Nate Ramsey intercepted a Ryan pass and lateraled to Joe Scapatti, who returned 27 yards to the Cleveland 37. Baker then booted a 42-yard field goal. Baker kicked a 30-yarder before it was over.

The victory enabled Philadelphia to deadlock Cleveland for third place in the East and kept the Birds alive in the battle for second place and a spot in the Runnerup Bowl at Miami, Fla., in January.

Celts Break 76er Streak At 11 Games

117-103 Victory Extends Own Skein To Six in a Row

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, bidding for a ninth straight National Basketball Association title, face a do-it-yourself task and they're confident they can overtake the Philadelphia 76ers in the Eastern Division race.

The Celtics posted their sixth straight victory and snapped Philadelphia's 11-game winning streak by defeating Wilt Chamberlain & Co. for the second time in three meetings 117-103 Sunday night.

In the only other game played, the Los Angeles Lakers edged the Cincinnati Royals 118-110 on the West Coast as Jerry West scored a jump shot with 28 seconds to play. The loss was the seventh straight for the Royals.

"It's a long season and even if we had lost I wouldn't have been too upset," Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell said. "I still think we'll beat them in the long run."

The victory was the 21st in 26 games for the Celtics, but they still trail the 76ers by 3½ games. Philadelphia, which has lost to only one other club, boasts a fantastic 26-3 mark. The two rivals have seven regular season meetings left.

Hand Fracture Suffered by Timmy Brown

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Timmy Brown, the Philadelphia Eagles' star halfback, suffered a fractured left hand in Sunday's National Football League game with the Cleveland Browns and will be out for the rest of the season, a team spokesman said.

Brown suffered a "clean fracture," according to Dr. James Nixon, team doctor, and will have to wear a cast for at least six weeks.

Brown was injured while carrying the ball in the second period and had to be taken out of the game. He was examined and treated at Graduate Hospital.

Kuglitsch Winner In Non-Pro Pin Test

Mark Kuglitsch, a 21-year-old senior at Marquette University, became the first 4-time champion in the Wisconsin Non-Professional Bowlers Alliance history Sunday as he won the championship at the 41 Bowl.

Kuglitsch averaged 223.5 pins for 10 games in head to head competition in the finals. He won seven of the 10 games and rolled scores of 266, 275 and 216 in his final three lines, including the position round match with runnerup Mel Zirzow, Milwaukee, in the 10th round.

Kuglitsch, who won first prize of $400, moved into third place on the money winning list for 1966 tournaments. He has collected $1,220 in tournaments this year and Gene Raffel, Milwaukee, leads with $1,370 in winnings.

The top 10 finishers and their prize money at the 41 Bowl Sunday included Kuglitsch, $400; Zirzow, $300; Jim Bedessem, Wausau, $200; Dennis Juechter, Milwaukee, $150; Don Cook, Milwaukee, $100; Bob Pinkalla, Milwaukee, $90; Ron Wheeler, Milwaukee, $85; Will Goodwill, Milwaukee, $80; Elmer Silber-nagel, Janesville, $75 and Denis Nickolas, Milwaukee, $70.

Only area kegger to finish in the money was Earl "Skip" Hintz, Jr., Neenah, who picked up $25 for his 1,273 count in the 6-game qualifying round Saturday.

Lowest score for 12 games among the top 10 qualifiers was 2,506 and area kegger's scores included: Hintz, 2,392; Keith Gehring, Appleton, 2,376; Joe Spilski, Menasha, 2,263; Tom Hibbard, Appleton, 2,180; Joe Reynebeau, Little Chute, 2,180; Gordy Heffer-non, Appleton, 1,970 and Jerry Schmidt, Shiocton, 1,063 for six games.

Terrell Says He'll Beat Clay Faces Milwaukeean In Four-Round Exhibition Tonight

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ernie Terrell, who faces Cassius Clay in Houston Feb. 6, meets Milwaukee's Eddie Brooks in a four round boxing exhibition tonight in the Milwaukee Auditorium.

Terrell, the 6-foot-6 World Boxing Association heavyweight champion, recalled Sunday his meeting in Miami Beach with Terrell said Clay urged him "I handled Clay like he was in Florida to join the Black Muslims."

Terrell said "That wasn't for me," Terrell said "Boxing is no place to shoot off your mouth about religion," Terrell added. "He still had to be told that when I was a rookie."

In the college game, the ball would be dead.

Randolph added, "I was just lying there until Kermit told me to get up. He blocked a couple of guys for me, too."

"I don't know who got the blocks for me after that. All I know is that every time I cut toward a guy in a red shirt, he cut down a guy in a white shirt."

As the league stands now going into the finals, both Los Angeles and Baltimore have 8-5 records and San Francisco is 6-5-2.

Could Finish Second

If Green Bay beats the Rams and San Francisco defeats Baltimore at Kezar, the 49ers would have a .583 percentage on 7-5, with ties not counting, while Los Angeles and Baltimore would be .571 on 8-6.

Coach Jack Christiansen of the 49ers declared of the Chicago defeat, "That's the kind of a game you like to see, where the defense gives you touchdowns. Our defensive line was outstanding, too."

Brodie hit 16 of 23 passes for 191 yards but Christiansen took him out when the third quarter was still in progress. George Mira came on and threw a touchdown pass of 24 yards to Ken Kramer and then Bill Kilmer finished up at quarterback.

The 49ers stopped Gale Sayers with just 39 yards but his season's total went to 1,034, first Bear since Rick Casares in 1956 to rush for more than 1,000 yards in a season.

Eye Injury Hospitalizes Wayne Embry

BOSTON (AP) — Wayne Embry, veteran National Basketball Association forward obtained by Boston from Cincinnati shortly before the start of the season, was admitted early today to the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary.

The 6-foot-8 Embry was injured when he caught a finger in the left eye under the boards during the Celtics' 117-103 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers. Trainer Buddy Leroux said Embry probably will be hospitalized 10 days.

Patriots Roll to 38-14 AFL Victory; Chiefs Nip Miami

Boston Needs Win or Tie to Clinch 'Eastern' Championship

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

A van from a Buffalo radio station sat in the cold outside the Rice Stadium, its electric sign hopefully flashing encouragement to the Houston Oilers, who were inside doing battle with the Boston Patriots.

It was a futile gesture. If Buffalo is going to get any help in overcoming the Patriots for the American Football League's Eastern Division championship, it will have to come from New York. The Oilers just weren't equal to the task.

Boston's 38-14 crumpling of Houston was as solid a game as the Patriots have put together this season. They piled up 31 first downs and never had to punt. Quarterback Babe Parilli completed 15 passes for 173 yards and three touchdowns.

Gains 146 Yards

And Jim Nance, already the top ground gainer in the history of the league, wasn't exactly idle. The big fullback gained 146 of Boston's 185 yards on the ground including a 57-yard touchdown dash in the third quarter.

Only 17,100 braved the cold weather that a bitter wind had blown into town to watch the Oilers drop their seventh game in a row. Buddy Humphrey started his first game at quarterback for Houston. It was not an auspicious beginning.

In other AFL games, Kansas City edged Miami, 19-18, San Diego crushed New York, 42-27, and Oakland took Denver, 28-10. For Boston to clinch the Eastern Division title it has only to beat or tie the Jets in New York Saturday. Should New York win, Buffalo could win the crown by beating Denver on Sunday.

Kansas City, which has already clinched the Western Division title, had all kinds of problems with the Dolphins, who have won just two games all year. It took a 25-yard scoring pass from Len Dawson to Chris Burford with just 2:10 left in the game for the Chiefs to pull it out.

John Hadl threw for two touchdowns passes and ran for another in San Diego's triumph over the Jets. Joe Namath had his troubles, having three passes intercepted and all of them leading to Charger scores.

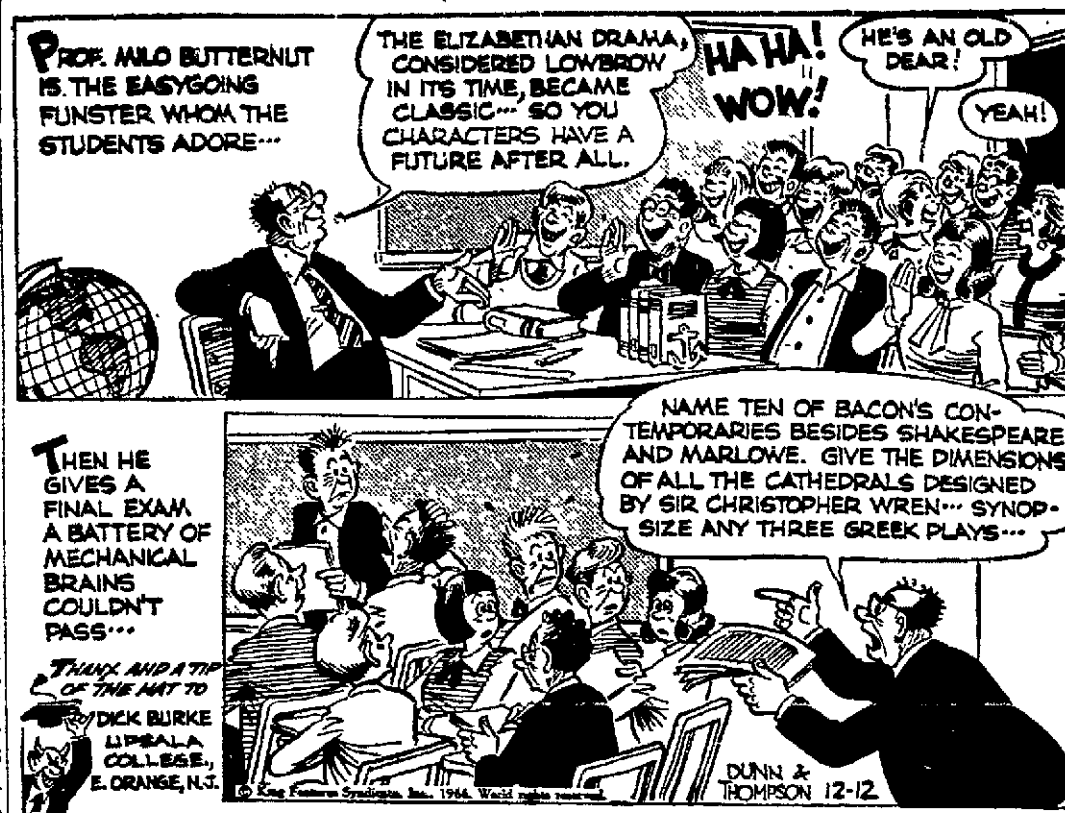

Art Powell set to AFL records for the Raiders grabbing touchdown passes of 46 and 45 yards. With those catches the big end became the first man in the league to catch 10 or more touchdowns passes and gain 1,000 or more yards on pass receptions five years in a row.

Kimberly's JVs Beat Menasha

MENASHA — Kimberly's junior varsity cagers outscored Menasha, 15-5, in the first quarter and went on to take a 47-33 triumph here, Saturday night.

Tosses 3 Scoring Passes Against Lions

Tarkenton Paces Viking Win

DETROIT (AP) — Fran Tarkenton riddled the Detroit Lions with passes Sunday as the Minnesota Vikings pounded out a 28-16 National Football League victory.

Tarkenton hit Jim Phillips, Paul Flatley and Preston Carpenter with scoring passes. Bill Brown ran one over for the Vikings.

The Lions, moving mostly on the throwing arm of rookie Karl Sweetan, had to settle for three field goals by soccer-style kicker Garo Yepremian and a touchdown which Sweetan scored on a 15-yard run.

Flatley was the most potent receiver for the Vikings. On the drive in which Carpenter scored, he caught two passes for 23 yards each.

Two pass interference calls against the Vikings helped set up the Detroit touchdown, but two Viking pass interceptions late in the game helped shut off any Detroit chance to pull it out.

In the first half, the Lions managed to move the ball but born helped set it up and Tarkenton hit Phillips with a 29-yard scoring toss.

In the second period, Minnesota moved 72 yards in eight plays. An interference penalty against Detroit gave the Vikings 20 yards and the scoring pass to Flatley was good for 22 yards.

Near the end of the half Minnesota went 41 yards in five plays. A 28-yard pass to Flatley was the big gainer, with Bill Brown scoring on a one-yard run.

Horn Stars in Bowl Victory

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Little All-American Don Horn — who says he's worth $300,000 to the pros and played like it — passed San Diego State to a 28-7 victory Saturday over Montana State in the Camellia Bowl.

Horn, 21, a 6-foot-1, 193-pound senior from Gardena, Calif. completed 22 passes of 37 attempts to 335 yards and four touchdowns. He was the unanimous choice as player-of-the-game.

The victory put the icing on undefeated San Diego State's College division national championship as No. 3 ranked Montana State failed to get its running game moving on the muddy Hughes Stadium field.

Point-Record Set as Giants Lose, 47-28, to Pittsburgh Steelers

Fees Have Scored 484 Markers Against New York so Far

By JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP) — Only an Allie Sherman can look at a 1-11 record and a record 484 points by the enemy and say "this is not as completely disastrous as it looks."

Coach Sherman professed to see some light through the gloom of the New York Giants' 47-28 thumping by the Pittsburgh Steelers Sunday to the accompaniment of "Good Bye Allie's" chants. The points broke the National Football League record of 462 against Baltimore in 1950 in a 12-game season. "I never said we would make a run for it this year," said Sherman. "I know more than anybody what we won with last year. We weren't misled about our 7-7 year in 1965 but some people were."

Could Have Won
"This record of ours could be 5-6-1 or 6-5-1. We were in some games that we could have won. We could have beaten Cleveland last week, for instance, and Pittsburgh in the opener. But, even if we were 6-5-1 that wouldn't make this a better team. It wouldn't change my evaluation of personnel. You know I never was one to talk about what might have happened, not even when we were winning."

"This just is not a good club. But we do think we have people who are going to help us. Unfortunately they are not at the key positions."

Asked to evaluate his club, Sherman went down the line from position to position. "We have some good men coming back for our offensive line. I think Willie Young and Francis Peay will come on. Our offensive backfield needs help. Joe Morrison does a good job but he isn't big enough to stay back there in a 14-game season. Our receivers are okay."

Still Learning
"At quarterback we have had to go with two kids who are still learning. When we lost Earl Morrall we had to experiment. Look at some of the other clubs and see what happened to them when they lost their quarterback."

Sherman said he thought his linebackers and secondary would improve but he admitted there was great need in the rush line.

"In 1964 when we were 2-10-2, it was a case of an old machine breaking down. Now we have to shore up our defense and get our quarterback situation satisfied."

The fellow who was peddling those "Good Bye Allie" banners was doing a brisk business in the late December dusk.

Willie Asbury and Dick Leftridge, a pair of rookies, each ran for two touchdowns on short yardage plays. Bill Nelsen hit Amos Bullocks with a 13-yard touchdown pass and Cannonball Butler with a 66-yard scoring pass.

Thomas Scores
Tom Kennedy, who took over for Gary Wood as the Giants' quarterback in the second period, threw for four touchdowns in the wild offensive game. Aaron Thomas took two scoring passes, Bob Crespiño grabbed one and Homer Jones sprinted for the longest score of the day on an 82-yard pass play.

The scoring started on an odd note when Spider Lockhart, pressed into service as a punter due to an injury to Ernie Koy, took a low pass from center, fumbled and stepped out of the end zone for a safety.

Nelsen has made a remarkable comeback. He underwent surgery on a knee last winter after hobbling through the season. Another knee injury early in this season required surgery but he surprised everybody by coming back to play.

Lawrence Frosh Triumph Over WSU-O Quintet

Paced by Karl Hickerson's 28 points, the Lawrence University freshmen opened their collegiate careers by downing the Wisconsin State University-Oshkosh frosh, 93-74, Friday night at Alexander Gym.

The Viking yearlings led virtually the entire game but were unable to hold a sizable lead until midway in the second half. Oshkosh trailed by only three, 45-42, at halftime.

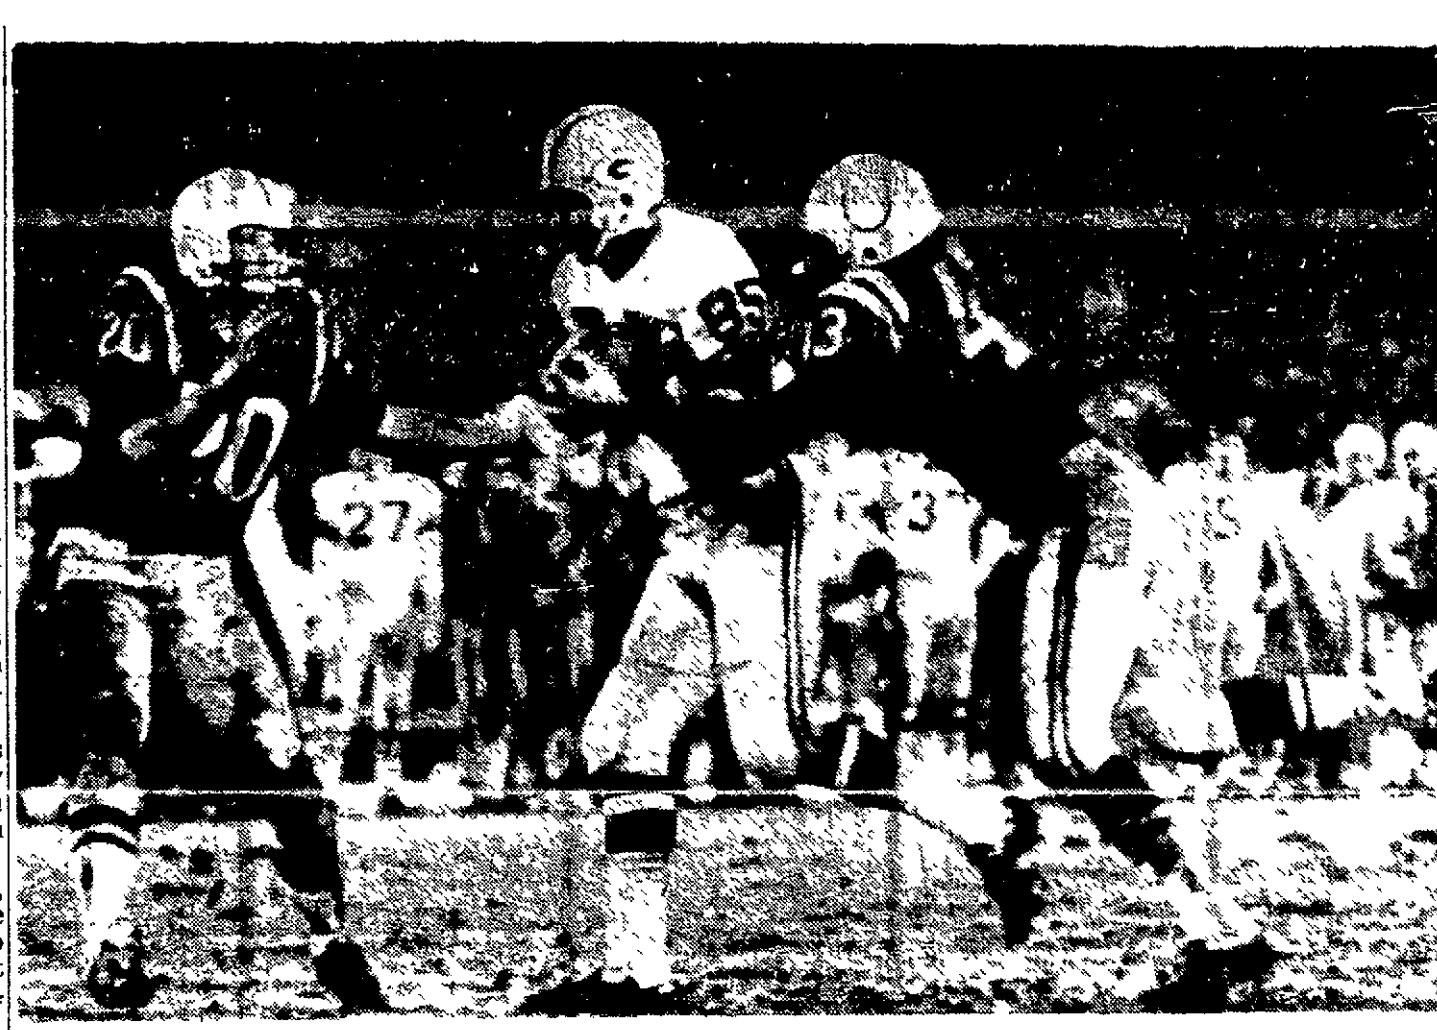

After intermission, Lawrence kept the heat on and with about five minutes to play held a 21-point advantage.

The Titans' Ken Loest copped scoring honors with 27 markers, while Rick Rehm added 22. Tom Carroll contributed 20 and Fred Bartlett 16 for Lawrence.

the game and one of them may have hurt Dallas' chances although it wasn't the absence of quarterback Don Meredith that permitted the winning field goal or Jurgensen's heroics.

Quarterback Shuttle

It was a lousy tackle by Sam Huff off the blitz that knocked out Meredith late in the second quarter and Landry had to resort to his quarterback shuttle between Craig Morton and Jerry Rhome, a couple of sophomores on the club.

Morton and Rhome did all right. Morton passing for a touchdown and Rhome laterally to Dan Reeves for another and setting up a third with a pass Meredith returned to the bench in the third quarter and Landry said he would have been able to play, but he didn't think it necessary since Rhome and Morton were getting scores.

But Rhome and Morton were not quite up to outdueling Jurgensen.

Sunday's attendance gave Dallas a total of 473,373 for seven home games — the all-time high for the Cowboys in their seven years in the league.

Gogolak missed field goal tries from 47 and 44 yards in the first half before he finally connected on one for 42 that got Washington into the scoring after Dallas had taken a 7-0 lead on Don Perkins' 2p-yard touchdown run.

Blocked Punt
The Redskins went ahead when Carl Kammerer blocked Villaneuva's punt and Reger recovered in the end zone. Washington led 10-7 at the half.

Gaechter intercepted a pass and ran it back to the Washington 19 to set up a Dallas field goal early in the third period and the score was tied.

Dallas went in front soon thereafter when a Washington penalty for roughing kicker Villaneuva gave Dallas another chance to stage an 87-yard drive. It came as Dallas was forced to kick from its 18.

Morton and Rhome passed the Cowboys along, and Morton threw a swing pass to Bob Hayes, who ran 23 yards for the go-ahead touchdown.

But Washington came right back to tie it up at 17-17 as Whitfield dashed 42 yards to set up a touchdown made on Jurgensen's 11-yard pass to Bobby Mitchell.

Willie Davis 'Fumble Plays' Are Key Events in Baltimore

By GORDON BEARD

BALTIMORE (AP) — Fumbles involving athletes named Willie Davis have had far-reaching effects on Baltimore sports teams this year.

Two months ago, three errors in one inning by Los Angeles center fielder Willie Davis — two on dropped fly balls — helped the Baltimore Orioles win one of their four consecutive victories in the baseball World Series.

Second-Rated Miners Still Unbeaten, Face Busy Weekend

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Unbeaten Texas Western, which, despite its national championship, has found itself crowded off college basketball's center stage by the new smash hit on the West Coast, gets its chance for the spotlight again this week.

The second-ranked Miners from El Paso, Tex., meet No. 6 New Mexico at home Friday and play Kansas at Chicago Saturday.

Meanwhile, top-ranked UCLA's Lew Alcindor and cast mates ran their record to 3-0 by completing a twin killing of seventh-ranked Duke at Los Angeles, 107-87.

Friday night, the Blue Devils tripled teamed Alcindor, and he scored just 19 points but passed off for many others as the Bruins won 88-54. Saturday, the sensational sophomore was only doubled teamed and scored 38. He scored 56 against Southern California in his varsity debut.

Following Saturday's game, Alcindor did little to help opposing coaches sleep by saying: "I am seeing some of the mistakes I'm making on defense and I hope I am correcting them."

Pat Riley's two foul shots with only two seconds left gave third-ranked Kentucky a 118-116 victory over Northwestern at Evanston, Ill.

Packers Show Admiration for One Another act and think alike. This is an experience I've never had — just being here. There is no better team feeling anywhere in sports."

Lot of Sentiment

Bob Skoronski, the captain of the offensive unit, admitted "I'm sentimental tonight but there's a lot of sentiment on his team. We celebrate together and we suffer together. We all won this championship — just as we all did the others."

And as an afterthought, Bob said, "There aren't many of us 5-divisioners left," referring to victory over the Colts in good number of players who were on the championship teams of 1960-61-62 and 1965-66. There are only 12 — Boyd Dowler, Paul Hornung, Hank Jordan, Jerry Kramer, Max McGee, Ray Nitschke, Bart Starr, Jim Taylor, Fred Thurston, Davis, Skoronski and Gregg.

Zeke Bratkowski, who rescued the victory when he took over for the injured Starr in the second half, was cheered all over the place, with another old pro, McGee, leading the noise.

"Our combined ages are close to 70," Maxie drawled.

Somebody said McGee predicted that he'd make the big catch. "That's right," said Lombardi, "he told 'em he'd do it."

Maxie made a great third-down catch of a Bratkowski pass to set up the winning TD in the fourth quarter. He caught only three balls all season but they were big ones. He nailed one for a TD vs. Atlanta and set up a score with a catch in San Francisco.

As the plane approached San Francisco McGee and Thurston entertained on the ship's PA system with a great version of "I Left My Heart in San Francisco."

When the trip was over, you couldn't help but think back and easily find an explanation why the Packers are such a good team.

Great Admiration

You'd have to say it's because they have such great admiration (you could even call it love) for each other.

This, then, is the secret to the Pack's success... and it all goes right back to their dynamic leader, Lombardi, who molds men into more than football players.

The Packers were on their own Sunday and most of them spent the day in San Francisco.

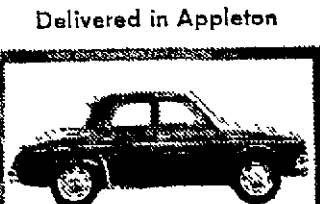

They reported for breakfast this morning but then were off the rest of the day until dinner in the evening. A night meeting was scheduled.

The first practice in preparation for the game against the Rams in Los Angeles Sunday will be held at Stanford University Tuesday morning.

All players came out of the rest of the day until dinner in the evening. A night meeting was scheduled.

Lombardi relaxed Sunday by watching parts of the Boston-Houston and Dallas-Washington games on television. Coaches Phil Bengtson and Dave Hanner took a busman's holiday. They went to the 49er-Bear game.

We're looking for a new kind of life insurance agent.

The man we want probably won't be reading this ad. He's too busy at his accounting job, or teaching school or managing a store. Or finishing his last year at college. That's why we're interested in him—because he takes his work seriously. We'll take that kind of man, at any age, and school him in a rewarding new career. It's hard work, but the right man can become an insurance expert. (As an expert, he'll earn a handsome income. He'll be worth it.) If you know such an outstanding person, tell him to get in touch with Raymond N. Sauvey, C.L.U., General Agent, Mutual Benefit Life, 345 East Wisconsin Avenue, Appleton, Wisconsin 54911. MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE

Louise as Garbo on Gilligan's

BY TV SCOUT

6:30-7 (Channels 2-7-12) — Tina Louise, the shapely, full-lipped castaway with the obvious beauty mark on Gilligan's Island gets an opportunity to play another role. She turns up on the beach as a "Greta Garbo type of spinster" who wants to be alone, darling. All she wants to do is lie in the shade of a coconut tree and dream dreamy thoughts. Meanwhile in this listless farce, Bob Denver and crew plot to ride her lil' boat to freedom.

6:30-7 (Channels 5) — It's beginning to look like The Monkees have a broken record. This is another episode in which the boys tangle with a con artist. Hal March plays the grabby operator of a dance studio. Peter Tork is his first victim and is signed up to dance his life away. His chums follow suit. And this prompts some far-out dance sequences with Peter pretending he is Fred Astaire.

6:30-7:30 (Channels 6-9) — 10-11 (Channel 11) — "Big Deal" on Iron Horse is a grim reminder of how the West was won. At first you are led to believe that Michael Ansara is a prim and proper financier, with a satchel full of money to lend, which Dale Robertson needs badly. Then Ansara, and loot, are kidnapped.

7:30-8 (Channels 2-7-12) — The Lucy Show shines a little brighter with Phil Silvers as guest. As an efficiency expert, he almost gives Gale Gordon, Mr. Mooney, a heart attack when he picks Lucille Ball as the bank's top employee. This leads to our lady exhibiting another example of her dexterity. Silvers, assured of her ability, has Miss Ball replace four girls on a toy factory assembly line.

8-9 (Channels 4-5) — The Road West has a sloppy, sentimental tale with "Have You Seen the Aurora Borealis?" Brenda Scott, the pride of the Prides, has a crush on a drunken poet whom she girlishly compares with Keats and Shelley. For a time it looks as if she is going to ride off into the sunset with him (as his secretary) until her family makes a stormy protest.

8:30-9 (Channels 2-7-12) — Family Affair has a cozy little episode with Cissy (Kathy Garver) prying into the life of the household's durable valet (Sebastian Cabot). The girl is writing a school composition and takes her research too seriously for comfort. She is convinced her subject leads a life that would far outstrip the most active soap opera. And she pursues him with glee.

9-10 (Channels 4-5) — Run For Your Life has a sticky melodrama with "Tears From A Glass Eye." The setting is the romantic Caribbean where Gerald O'Loughlin, a one-eyed operator of a string of car washes wants to unload his ex-wife on any man he can find. He is willing to give the right guy $100,000 to marry the girl. Ben Gazzara, who has danced the night away with the lady, looks like an easy prospect. So does Donnelly Rhodes, who needs the money.

9-10 (Channels 11-6-9) — The Big Valley takes advantage of Colleen Dewhurst's strong abilities as an actress in "A Day of Terror." As the matriarch of an outlaw family she proves to be almost as tough as Barbara Stanwyck whom she has kidnapped, along with the whimpering Linda Evans.

9-9:30 (Channels 2-7-12) — To Tell The Truth returns to a nighttime schedule replacing The Jean Arthur Show. Nothing has changed in this durable quiz show which has Bud Collyer as host and Kitty Carlisle, Orson Bean, Peggy Cass and Tom Poston as the happy panelists. Chief guest is Bette Davis, who hides behind a screen with comedienne Kaye Ballard and Pat Bright, who rejoice in mimicking her voice.

Spanish Club at KHS Plans Tea, Christmas Party

KAUKAUNA — The 10th annual Spanish Club tea will be held at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Kaukauna High School cafeteria with faculty members, staff, administrative personnel, and elementary school Spanish teachers as guests.

Also invited is Mrs. William Van Stralen, Spanish teacher at Freedom High School. Entertainment will be provided by five members of the Concert Choir.

Phillip Foxgrover will sing "Blanca Navidad," (White Christmas) and a Spanish Christmas carol, "What Child Is This," will be sung by Nancy Diffatte, Lois Schmidt and athy Welhouse. Accompanist will be Terry Van Hogan.

Organ music and Spanish Christmas carols will be taped and Miss Fabiola Franco, Spanish exchange teacher from Columbia, will perform a special dance. Cookies and candy will be made by club members using Spanish recipes.

After classes Wednesday the

Mary Martin and Robert Preston, two of the most talented musical comedy stars today, pose together at a party after the premiere of their new two-role musical "I Do! I Do!" in New York City. This is the first Broadway newcomer to win enthusiastic approval of all the critics. The production is the musical version of the comedy hit "The Fourposter." (AP Wirephoto)

A Two-Color 'X' Pencil Make One Yourself It's Easy

BY CAPPY DICK

An "X" pencil is a handy gadget any boy or girl can make by following these fun-project directions. It actually is two pencils in one, and each pencil writes in a different color. For example, one can write with red lead and the other with black, or green or blue.

To assure yourself that you club will stage its Christmas party with Spanish Club members from Freedom High School as special guests. The traditional pinata will be broken, carols sung and Spanish dances performed.

Chris Kindler, Jean Kieffer and Brenda Thompson head the entertainment committee while Peggy DeBrun, Mary Jacobsen, Patty DeCoster and Linda Hoefler have charge of decorations.

'Jackie Gleason Show' Season Success Story

Return to Original Musical Comedy Format Delights Audiences Once More

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
A PTelevision-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Television's biggest success story this season is "The Jackie Gleason Show," achieving new heights by the expedient of returning to a musical comedy format that delighted the home audience eight years ago.

Lyn Duddy, with his partner Jerry Bresler, is again turning out the music and lyrics for the "Honeymooners," expanded from 10 to more than 20 shows after the Nielsen ratings indicated audience approval of the reunion of Gleason and his long-time partner, Art Carney.

Duddy, in New York briefly, said the big production staff is working "nine days a week" on the shows taped in Miami.

Working Hard
"People love to see Jackie performing — more than playing host," he theorized. "And he's working harder than I've ever seen him work and apparently thrives on it. He's cheerful, enthusiastic — and available."

Gleason and Carney are not exactly professional singers, he admitted, although "Jackie has a tremendous ear for music" and Carney is a better-than-average bathroom tenor.

"But when you write music for them, you tailor-make it for their ranges," Duddy said. "That automatically knocks out certain things — we wouldn't do a song like 'Tenderly' for either of them because it involves too much range."

All Songs Taped

As Duddy and Bresler finish their songs, they put them on tapes — "You should hear Bresler do Sheila MacRae's numbers" — and turn them over to the performers.

"I've seen Gleason learn a song from two playings," Duddy said. "Both he and Carney like to learn their songs by playing them over and over when they are around the house."

14 Girls Selected for KHS Tumbling Team

KAUKAUNA — Nine veterans and five newcomers were selected for the 1966-67 girls' tumbling team at Kaukauna High School after recent try-outs. The group will perform between halves of home basketball games and other school functions.

Man Injured in Fall

Rudolph Paul Sr., 62, 1527 N. Alvin St., was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by the Appleton Fire Department rescue squad after he fell in his basement about 7:55 p.m. Saturday. Paul reportedly received a hip injury.

See 4 Per Cent Hike In 1966 Living Costs

BY SYLVIA PORTER

When this month ends, our cost of living almost surely will be running almost or actually 4 per cent above the level of December, 1965.

This forecast cannot be confirmed (or disproved) until late January, when the Consumer Price Index for December will be released. But all that need happen is a continuation of Even a minor rise in the November index when it comes out and another minor rise in the December index when it is released — and we're at or over the 4 per cent mark.

Next year, economists expect the pace of upturn in living costs to be slower. But even if the rate of rise is "only" in the 2 1/2-3 per cent range, this will be much larger than the yearly increases between 1958 and 1966.

We smeared our remarkable record for prolonged price stability this year — and by so doing, we seriously unbalanced our entire boom.

Man Saved From Fire Dies Later

RACINE. (AP) — One of six persons rescued from a flaming three-story building Sunday collapsed and died a short time later.

Authorities said an autopsy showed John M. Landsberg, 61, a bowling alley owner and resident of the building's second story, died of a heart attack.

Landsberg, his wife and four occupants of the third floor were rescued by police after flames broke out around a chimney.

A fireman and three policemen were treated for smoke inhalation during the six-hour blaze.

Damage was estimated at $27,500.

the rate of rise in most 1966 months to bring our CPI into the 4 per cent range — and this is a reasonable assumption for the final months.

A 4 per cent rise in 12 months would represent the steepest jump in our cost of living since the Korean war phase 15 years ago. It would be twice the rate of rise from 1964 to 1965.

What It Means

The dollar which bought you 100 cents of goods and services at the start of 1966 will be buying you only 96 cents worth of the same goods and services at the end;

The dollar which was worth 100 cents in the marketplace in 1967-59 is worth less than 87 cents now;

The dollar which was worth 100 cents in the marketplace in 1947-49 is worth less than 71 cents now;

The dollar which was worth 100 cents in the marketplace in 1939 is worth less than 42 cents now.

It could be undeniable inflation and if prices continued rising at a 4 per cent yearly pace, the dollar considered as worth 100 cents today would be worth only 67.6 cents a decade from today, only 45.6 cents two decades from today, a picayune 14.1 cents a half century from today.

Bad News for Elderly

It would be unmitigated bad news for the millions of elderly citizens living on fixed pensions and at the mercy of the prices the market dictates for goods and services they must buy to live.

It would be power ammunition in the hands of labor leaders who will be negotiating wage increases next year. With 107 major contracts covering 2,000,000 workers expiring in 1967, this price background makes the outlook for non-inflationary wage hikes dim indeed.

It's not hard to explain my 4 per cent prediction and Washington experts with whom I've checked admit it's a fair forecast.

In October, our cost of living already was running 3.7 per cent ahead of October, 1965.

Now it's a virtual certainty that housing (including rents) has become more costly since October. In every year since 1946, the housing index has been higher in December than in October.

It's a certainty that the costs of health and recreation have continued to go up. The string of increases in this vital category in the fall months has been unbroken for years.

Apparel prices surely will be higher by year-end. These are big months for clothing purchases and they have firmed every fall in recent years.

Food prices are now fluctuating around their all-time highs but there is no reason to expect any significant declines in the immediate future to offset increases elsewhere.

Transportation costs may remain in a narrow range but that's the most that can be anticipated today.

Australian Boy Scouts Push Rock Over Cliff, Kill Sunbather Below

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Two 15-year-old Boy Scouts pushed a rock over a cliff Sunday and killed a student sunbathing with his girl friend on the beach 20 feet below.

Police said the boys were playing and did not realize people were on the beach near Sorrento, 50 miles south of Melbourne.

The rock, about 18 inches in diameter, hit Geoffrey Bacon, 24. His girl friend, Jennifer Williamson, 21, was not hurt.

Viet Cong Meets Death Stumbling Onto Americans in Jungle Clearing

EDITOR'S NOTE: Pieced together from captured documents, personal papers and conversations, here is how one young Viet Cong communist—fictitiously named Le Van Dong—met death.

By JOHN NANCE

WAR ZONE C, South Viet Nam (AP)—The Viet Cong reconnaissance squad had its orders:

"Follow and watch the enemy (Americans) until tonight... Learn how they are situated... Cut new trails of approach—keep them hidden."

Le Van Dong—in his mid-twenties and wearing a floppy blue hat—was among the 15 or 20 Viet Cong men who spread out and picked their way in twos and threes through the thick jungle of War Zone C.

The zone, in Tay Ninh province along the Cambodian border, had been their sanctuary for years. It held the headquarters of the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong. At least three regiments of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops were reported to be based there.

American Push

Now the Americans had pushed deep into the zone in the largest U.S. operation of the war. More than 25,000 troops with powerful air and artillery support were splitting the zone's dense jungle.

One of the spearhead battalions—the 1st of the 18th Infantry, 1st Infantry Division—had swarmed by helicopters into an egg-shaped clearing. Tall trees towered at the edges and the jungle crew thick up to the clearing.

A Viet Cong regiment was reported in the area, trying to make it back to its base along the Cambodian border.

The American encampment would be difficult to defend and the U.S. generals knew it.

"This is the kind of place the VC like to hit," said Maj. Gen. William Deputy, commander of the 1st Infantry Division. "If we get action anywhere, this'll be it."

The division's deputy commander, Brig. Gen. James Holmingsworth, agreed. "I look for us to get a real scrape right here," he said.

One company and two platoons moved out to search the area around the camp.

Le Van Dong and the Viet Cong squad, from their hiding places, had counted the helicopters coming in. They knew where to go and that there was a large force.

Dong and another man crawled under low-hanging bamboo and slipped from tree to tree.

Dong traveled light. In addition to his blue hat he wore an olive green shirt, black trousers and "Ho Chi Minh" sandals made from old tires.

Long Bayonet

In a cloth sack Dong carried a plastic bag rigged as a gas mask and ammunition for his French-model bolt-action rifle. A bayonet with foot-long blade jutted from the muzzle.

The two men edging closer to the clearing could hear the buzz of chin saws and the roar of explosives as GIs cleared trees.

The perimeter was thinly manned and Dong and his partner reached the middle of the defense line. The clearing was faintly visible through the jungle. Soon they would see where the artillery and mortars were placed and where the command tents were set up.

They stepped past vacant bunkers and across trees and brush flattened by the GIs to clear lanes of fire.

Dong was about 10 yards ahead when the second man tripped over a wire stretched taut across the ground. There was a pop and whoosh. A trip flare shot into the air.

Dong Spotted

Both men froze. Only 20 yards away Spec. 4 Espirion Contreras of Devine, Tex., a squad leader with Alpha Company, was sitting beside his

He heard the whoosh and then he spotted Dong and the other man.

"We just stared at each other," Contreras recalled. "I remember he had on this funny hat and I didn't know whether to shoot him or what."

"But in a second I realized what was up. I grabbed my M16 and cut loose. The first guy (Dong) dove behind a mound of dirt, but the second guy was hit. I fired the whole clip. The guy dropped his rifle, which they never do, so he must have been hurt bad. Then he dragged himself off into the brush."

Total Surprise

Dong hugged the ground. This was totally unexpected. They had wandered right into the Americans.

There was no place to go. But the American had stopped firing. Dong raised up slightly to peek over the mound.

Contreras continued his story: "The other guy (Dong) was still there—couldn't be seen more than 20 yards away. I scrambled around to find more ammo or another weapon."

"I spotted our machine gun and jumped on it. Just as I did this other VC rose up to try and see."

"I was coming up right with him. I guess I was a little faster. I blasted him. He didn't get off a shot."

The bullets ripped into Dong's shoulder, chest and side. The impact flopped him on his back, dead.

Promotion Orders

In his pocket was a wallet with orders promoting him to corporal and pictures of him, assorted friends and relatives, and a new, glossy picture of his pretty wife holding their little boy.

There was a letter from his sister dated Sept. 20.

She asked about his health and why he hadn't written. "I am worried about you," she wrote. "Your wife was sick two months ago but is getting better. I am enclosing a picture of her and the baby. You should come home to see them at New Year."

"They wait for you."

"Please give my best wishes to (three coded names) and all of the people in your unit," the letter ended. It was signed "your sister, 2 Anh (a coded name)."

Pretty Smile

"Gee," said a sergeant. "His wife and kid look nice. She sure has a pretty smile."

Three GIs dug a hole and placed Dong's body into it. They removed his wristwatch that had been smashed and was stopped at 3:02 p.m.

At almost the same time a few hundred yards north, Charlie Company killed two other members of the enemy patrol.

One carried a paper filled with small, neat handwriting in red ink. It was dated that day and carried orders for the patrol.

"Be at the site of the American encampment at 2:30 p.m.," it said. "Follow and watch the enemy in each area until tonight... This is the ideal situation for us."

Word of the captured orders reached the men near Dong's buried body later.

"Well, this guy was on time," said one. "But I guess he wouldn't call it the ideal situation."

A Flair for Charity

Five Decades of Charity Balls Write Record of Giving

BY JEAN OTTO
Post-Crescent Women's Editor

Not everyone who buys a ticket to the Charity Ball goes to the party. For some couples, supporting the projects and the group it represents is too important to pass up, even though their calendars don't allow being there in person.

Most of them do go, however, and this year's party, Saturday evening at North Shore Golf Club, promises to be as gala and bright as any in the past.

The Charity Ball, spanning five decades of holiday parties, has become a tradition deeply entwined with the 'giving' that is part of its name. For most who attend the formal dance, the event begins and ends that evening. For members of the Infant Welfare Circle of The King's Daughters, who sponsor the dance, the Charity Ball is the means by which their all-year commitment to charity is made possible.

Since the first Charity Ball was given in 1929, many women in the Circle have held dance chairmanships. Most of them remain in Infant Welfare, sometimes taking the task of leadership for a second time. The success of the Ball, as well as the accomplishments of the Circle, can never be greater than the efforts of the women working behind the scenes.

The women pictured here have carried the responsibility for the Charity Ball through five decades. They were chosen not because they are unusual, but because they are typical. The work of King's Daughters has become almost a way of life for them, as it has for other members of their Infant Welfare Circle.

Mrs. Heber H. Pelkey was a committee member for the first Charity Ball, joining the Circle in 1927, four years after its founding.

The first ball, at the Cinderella Ballroom, helped provide the funds that went, in 1931, for the creation of The King's Daughters Foundation of the Infant Welfare Circle. The Foundation has become a perpetual organization for receiving and distributing gifts for welfare work. It is administered by a board of directors composed of Harold Adams, Mrs. Gerald Galpin, Mr. Pelkey, Andrew Sharp, John G. Strange, Mrs. J. Treat Thomas and Mrs. F. S. Young.

The first of many community contributions by the Infant Welfare Circle was the gift and maintenance Mrs. Roger Baird is chairman of the Dec. 17 Charity Ball, sponsored annually by the Infant Welfare Circle of the King's Daughters. She poses here at the fireplace of her Lake Winnebago home. Over the mantle is a portrait of the Baird daughters, Ann and Jane.

Mrs. Heber Pelkey was on the committee for the first Charity Ball, held in 1929. Through the years she and her husband, who live at 12 Brokaw Place, have attended all but two or three of the parties.

Mrs. Ralph McGowan, 914 E. Alton St., was chairman of the first Charity Ball held after World War II. During these years party proceeds were used to establish the Visiting Nurse Association.

Mrs. William E. Buchanan, 345 Lake Road, Menasha, joined the Infant Welfare Circle in 1931 and has twice served as Charity Ball chairman. During the '30s, the Circle established its school milk fund.

Mrs. Harold Adams, 1400 W. Cedar St., joined Infant Welfare Circle in 1953 and was Charity Ball chairman in '55. During the '50s the Circle helped get the Community Blood Center started and began its Dental Clinic. It also made substantial contributions to Appleton Memorial Hospital and Peabody Manor.

Gay, Useful Christmas Gifts Created From Pound-Size Coffee Cans

How would you like your own exclusive gift boutique, right in the kitchen or game room?

All it takes is a collection of empty coffee cans with plastic lids, colorful paper or fabric to cover the cans, and a fistful of trimmings.

Let the family join in the fun of making these gift cannikins. For the teen beauty on your list, create a can-can cutie to hold wandering hair curlers and bobby pins.

For a favorite neighbor, decorate a countertop caddy to match her kitchen decor. Fill the caddy with a few wooden spoons, a wire whisk, a rubber spatula.

If you plan some small gifts for children — crayons, miniature cars, toys soldiers — tuck them into a vinyl-covered carry-all cannikin with yarn handles. Christmas day will be brighter — and neater — for all.

Hit gift of your home boutique will probably be glitter-trimmed cannikins to fill with homemade candies and cookies. These canisters need no gift wrapping — just a gay bow on top. The snug plastic lid will keep the goodies fresh for days.

Start your gift making by completely covering the coffee can with your selected material, gluing at top and bottom edges and at overlap. (The plastic lid also can be covered to match.)

Then put your creativity to work in the trimming. Sequins, braid, moss fringe, velvet ribbons add glamour. Scraps of felt or wool can be used for pert glue-on faces or shapes. Adhesive-backed gift initials can be used for names or monograms.

Search your notion department or your own sewing box for unusual trims. The following ideas may inspire you in your canny craft.

CAN-CAN CUTIES
Cover a two-pound coffee can for dressing table or bathroom counter to hold hair curlers or headbands. You might decorate a matching one-pound can to hold bath salts, cotton squares, or guest bath soap.

Materials: Two-pound coffee can with plastic lid. Plain colored paper or fabric. Pink and black felt. Flowered vinyl-coated fabric or self-adhesive plastic for hat. Yarn. Glue.

Directions: Cover can with paper or fabric. Form face with pink felt, add black felt eyes, lashes, red mouth, yarn hair. Glue to can. Add hat.

COUNTERTOP CADDY
Make a gay kitchen caddy to hold all those small cooking tools where the busy cook can easily reach them. Fill caddy with inexpensive wooden spoons, pastry brush, rubber spatula, wire whisk. You might make matching covered canisters to hold brown sugar, dried beans, rice, raisins.

Materials: One-pound coffee can with plastic lid. Vinyl-coated fabric, self-adhesive plastic, or wallpaper. Narrow cotton fringe. Glue.

CARRYALL CANNIKINS
Even the smallest gift for children becomes precious when it's packed in a brightly decorated cannikin with yarn handle. Make a label for each can, using the new adhesive-backed labels-by-the-yard, or mark the contents on the plastic lid with felt-tipped marker. For a special touch, spell out name or initials of child with adhesive-backed initials.

Materials: One - pound coffee can with plastic lid. Fabric, gift wrap paper, wallpaper, self-adhesive plastic. Labels or trim. Twelve-inch section of heavy yarn or shoelace.

Directions: Cover can, add trim and label or initials. Punch holes at opposite ends of plastic lid with punch or large nail. Insert yarn or shoelace, knot inside lid to secure handle.

STRING-A-LINGS
Let children make a handy yarn-covered dispenser for string or twine as a gift for a favorite teacher or for Dad's workbench.

Materials: One-pound coffee can with plastic lid. Skein of heavy sweater or rug yarn (approximately eight yards). Glue. Ball of twine.

Directions: Apply glue to sides of can. Wind yarn around can to cover, pressing yarn lightly into glue. Punch hole in lid for end of twine to come out.

BPW Group Plans Dinner
Appleton Business and Professional Women have planned a dinner meeting at 6:20 p.m. Dec. 20 at Reetz's Supper Club. Members have been asked to bring old eye glass frames and parts which will be given to the Lions Club for repair and distribution to the needy. Reservations may be made before Friday with Miss Myrtle Van Ryzin.

Excellent senior is Mrs. Harold Christen; excellent junior, Mrs. Allan Beyer; manager, Mrs. Melvin Ruth; secretary, Mrs. Ella Van Asten; treasurer, Miss Emilie Radtke; guard, Mrs. Leonard Wiese; protector, Mrs. Ray Heintz; trustee, Mrs. Robert Maves; grand representative, Mrs. Fred Kingsley; first alternate, Mrs. Russell Peterson; second alternate, Mrs. Gilbert Woldt; press correspondent, Mrs. Edwin Wilton; captain of degree staff, Mrs. Fred Kingsley and installation officer, Mrs. Russell Peterson. Pianist will be Mrs. Isabelle Feavel.

Judith Dettmann
Parents Tell Engagement Of Daughter

Nominating
Mrs. Henry Staedt had charge of nominations, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Franzke, Jr. and Mrs. T. G. Fargo. Officers will be installed in January, as will new officers of the Knights of Pythias.

A 6 p.m. supper will be served at the family Christmas party and program Thursday. Mrs. Henry Staedt and Mrs. Leonard Wiese have charge of the event.

The annual public card party is scheduled for Jan. 28 at K.P. Hall.

RANDOM LAKE — Mr. and Mrs. Merlin Dettmann, route 1, Random Lake, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Judith, to Robert Blohm, Indianapolis, Ind. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Blohm, route 1, Seymour.

Miss Dettmann, a graduate of Wisconsin State University-La Crosse, is teaching in the Menomonee Falls School System. Her fiancé is with Exide Industrial Division, Milwaukee Division, Milwaukee.

The couple plans a July wedding.

Dutch Princess, Fiance Have Banns Published

BAARN, Netherlands (AP) — The marriage banns were published Saturday for Dutch Princess Margriet, 23, and her commoner fiance, Pieter Van Vollenhoven, 26.

Wedding Promises Repeated

MANAWA — Trinity Lutheran Church was the setting Dec. 3 when Miss Karla Jean Meidam and Steven Michael Jaeger repeated wedding vows. The Rev. Richard C. Schroeder performed the nuptial rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Meidam, Royaltown. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jaeger, route 1, Manawa.

They were proclaimed bride and bridegroom at a brief, civil ceremony in the small town of Baarn, residence of Margriet's parents, Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhard.

The couple will be married Jan. 10 at The Hague.

Saturday's ceremony was performed by Baarns burgomaster, Dr. F.J. Van Beeck Calkoen. With publication of the banns, Pieter and Margriet signed the register giving their intention to marry.

National Event
National flags hung from official buildings throughout the nation and the event was broadcast nationwide by radio and television.

Margriet was dressed in two-colored velvet ensemble with matching coat and hat. Her bridegroom, a doctor at law, was in an officer's uniform of the royal Dutch air force. He works in the juridical section of the air force.

NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM FOR CHRISTMAS

Los Angeles—Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim and yet completely comfortable. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight or your waistline is larger than 32 inches, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A featherstitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem.

The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It is so comfortable, but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

"Suddenly Slim," in both girdle and panty versions, is the peak achievement of the California designer-genius, Olga.

GOP Coordinators To See Romney as Possible Candidate

Nixon, Goldwater Also Will Attend Policy Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michigan's George Romney carries his presidential ambitions into a new forum today after what one colleague called "some hard balls and some soft sells" aimed at other Republican governors. The Michigan governor is a center of GOP presidential attention as the Republican Coordinating Committee meets to plan the party's election comeback and talk about the political road ahead. Two men who could stand in Romney's presidential path are at the session, too. One is former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, trailing Romney in post-election polls but rated a heavy rival to head the next GOP ticket. The other is Barry Goldwater, still dissatisfied with Romney's explanation of his refusal to endorse the 1964 Republican ticket in the Arizona led.

Minor Floods Cover Parts Of Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fair weather took the edge off winter in large sections of the nation today, but days of rain brought minor flooding to areas of the Midwest.

Several highways in Ohio were closed when rivers spilled over their banks. Flooding in Illinois caused crop damage. The Maumee River in northwest Ohio forced the closing of several roads including part of U.S. 24 near Defiance. The Scioto River is approaching flood stage from Larue in central Ohio to Piketon in the southern part of the state.

The flooding of the Kaskaskia River near Vandalia in southern Illinois has caused more than $100,000 damage to crops. The river broke through a levee Saturday and inundated 4,000 acres of farmland. Cloudless skies prevail across most of the nation today, especially in the East, the central states and the Southwest. A gradual warmup was forecast as southerly breezes moved into the central and northern Plains.

students and political leaders listed as temporary officers of a "Youth for Romney" organization knew nothing about the group and had not authorized use of their names.

Formation of 111 Youth for Romney groups had been announced at the Colorado Springs, Colo., conference of the Republican Governors Association by Merlo K. Gates, an unsuccessful candidate for the State Legislature from Wichita, Kan., who identified himself as chairman of the youth group.

But the Post quoted five of the 13 asserted temporary officers as saying they didn't know about the group. Several indicated the names had come from a list of sponsors of a national student leadership seminar organized in May 1965.

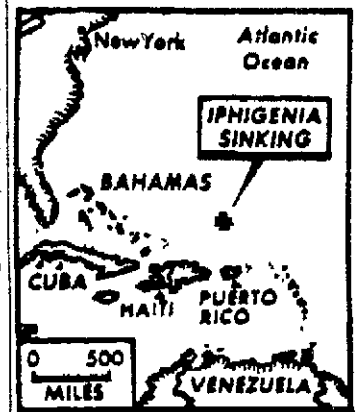

Hard - Soft Tactics
Pennsylvania's retiring Gov. William W. Scranton described the hard sell-soft sell tactics the Romney forces followed Friday and Saturday at Colorado Springs.

Romney insisted, privately as well as publicly, that he had not made up his mind about a presidential bid, and wouldn't, for about six months. But one Romney associate said it would be naive to deny that the governor is testing the political climate for a White House bid.

Scranton said Romney had picked up strength at the conference, although no commitments were claimed. "I think George probably went out stronger than he came in," said Scranton, who made a futile nomination bid of his own at the 1964 GOP National Convention.

41 Saved From Sinking Tanker

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — A British freighter was en route to Jamaica today with 41 survivors from the French tanker Iphigenia, which exploded Sunday about 300 miles north of San Juan. One of the tanker's crewmen was reported killed and two others were missing. The crew of the Iphigenia apparently had no time to send a distress signal. The lifeboats were already in the water when a patrolling U.S. Navy pilot from Puerto Rico sighted the sinking vessel. The Iphigenia was en route from Montreal, Canada, to Curacao to load.

Thorough Exam Set for Ruby

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Medical specialists start examining cancer-stricken Jack Ruby from head to toe today to seek the source of the disease spreading through his body.

"His chances of recovery depend on the location of the primary site," said Dr. Jay Sanford, professor of internal medicine at Southwestern Medical School. Dr. Sanford heads a team of physicians treating Ruby.

Sheriff Bill Decker, who has custody of Ruby, called a news conference today. He said Dr. Sanford would be present.

Artillery, Air Strikes Impossible

Fighting in Populous Mekong Delta Is War the Hard Way for U.S. GIs

By PETER ARNETT

BEN LUC, Vietnam (AP) — Three sniper bullets whined through the rice that was ripening in the sun. Men of the U.S. infantry squad fell to their knees, the platoon commander cursing quietly.

The snipers obviously were holed up in a village hidden in coconut groves and banana trees 800 yards across the shimmering paddy fields. Anywhere else in Vietnam the Americans could call in artillery, and maybe an air strike, to chase the snipers away.

But this was the Mekong River delta, a new kind of war for the U.S. troops in Vietnam. They had to take the village the hard way.

Out of Ben Luc
The infantrymen, from the 4th Battalion, 9th Infantry, 25th Division, were operating out of Ben Luc, a district town 20 miles south of Saigon on the northern edge of the Mekong delta.

The U.S. troops at Ben Luc are evaluating conditions in the delta before large numbers of American forces move in.

The village and the snipers ahead were a typical obstacle for the U.S. troops. They had reached the area after a morning that began in pouring rain at their base camp in Ben Luc. They moved down to the Vaio Oriental River that bisects the north delta, then climbed into Vietnamese navy craft that took them five miles upstream.

From there, the unit plunged into the coconut groves and the paddy fields, wading waist deep through canals, searching for Viet Cong supplies cached in sampans hidden in reeds and poking at stacks of rice straw.

Stuck in Swamps
The mud caked on their trousers and their forearms. At times, the heavy-weapon men got bogged in swamps and had to be pulled out by their buddies.

Moving through the paddy fields was slow work. The hard dikes were good footpaths, but too dangerous. Snipers 1,000 yards across the flat rice fields could pick them off.

The three whirring bullets indicated that the snipers were trying.

Elsewhere in Vietnam, standard operating procedure is to pour in artillery and air strikes on snipers. In the delta, however, the test units have been ordered not to do this. Too many innocent people live in the villages. To bring heavy fire down upon them might kill scores.

Moved Forward

So the 25th Division troops deployed along the paddy field edges, firing bursts from their M16 automatic rifles as they moved forward.

A few more staccato sniper shots rang out. The forward American elements ran into the village, dodging around the large, earthenware water pots, running through the thatch-roof houses looking for the snipers.

No men could be found in the village of 50 or so houses. But there were plenty of women and children. None had been hurt in the small arms assault.

One mother with a baby in her arms and three young daughters at her feet looked impassively at an American soldier guarding her. Other soldiers searched her humble home.

A few houses along, a girl giggled at the soldiers.

What Kind of War

The U.S. soldiers shook their heads in quiet amazement at the scene — shot at one minute, then laughed at. What kind of war was this?

Some of the soldiers dunked their heads in the water pots to wash off the mud.

Then they began the trek home across the rice fields to the river. They had no casualties, but they were still happy to leave.

According to the South Vietnamese premier, Nguyen Cao Ky, American troops will deploy into the delta in force later in December, and gradually build up their strength next year.

The prospect for them is mud, frustration, and surprises, like those encountered by the guinea pigs from the 25th Division.

Beautification Plaque Dedicated by Lady Bird

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — A bronze plaque Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson dedicated to scenic highway beauty last September is missing from its chiseled bed in a granite rock at the edge of State Highway 1 about 18 miles south of Monterey, near Big Sur.

Monterey County sheriff's deputies noticed the disappearance Sunday on a routine patrol. The plaque, 18 by 24 inches, designates Highway 1 as a national scenic highway. It had been bolted to the rock along the highway.

Steinbeck Plans Visit To Vietnam

Author Will Learn To Fire Weapons to Write About Them

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Author John Steinbeck has come to wartorn Vietnam to "go up the rivers, into the mountains. To listen to it, to see it for myself."

The bearded 64-year-old Nobel Prize-winner said in an interview today he will learn to fire the M16 automatic rifle and the M79 grenade launcher.

"How can I write about these things if I don't know them?" he asked.

Steinbeck and his wife arrived Saturday for an "indefinite stay."

His reports will appear as a series of letters, he said, in Newsday, the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper.

Son in Service
Steinbeck's guide part of the time, will be his son John (Catbird) Steinbeck, 20, who has been in Vietnam since last June.

He is an Army Specialist Fourth Class assigned to the armed forces radio and television network.

Steinbeck said he has been deeply concerned about the war for some time.

"I had to come and see it for myself," he said.

Asked about current talk of peace negotiations, Steinbeck said: "It smells like something is in the air."

"But I don't think this war will be settled with a peace treaty," he added. "It will more likely end with a prolonged truce in which the war just fades away."

The task of the allies is to "stay here and hold on," he continued. "It will take time, but if we stick it out I think we'll see some changes on the other side."

Simulated Tissue in Orbit to Test Radiation

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — In the fourth successful dual launch in a series, two satellites were sent into orbit, one with a bit of simulated human tissue to check radiation danger to man, the Air Force reports.

The two 220-pound craft, called OV1-9 and OV1-10, rode into space Sunday atop an Atlas D rocket. They contained 12 radiation-measuring experiments.

Jordan Asks U.N. Troop Withdrawal

Iraqi, Saudi Arabian Forces Would be Admitted by Stipulation

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordan has agreed to let in Iraqi and Saudi Arabian troops within two months but only if United Nations peacekeeping forces are withdrawn from the frontier between Israel and the United Arab Republic, a Jordanian government spokesman said Sunday night.

The Jordanian stipulation appeared to check the plans of other Arab leaders to extend their troops further along the Israeli frontier since it was unlikely that the United Nations would remove its forces and risk a further increase in Middle East tensions.

Jordan has expressed fear that foreign troops admitted to its territory would be used to overthrow King Hussein.

Nor was U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser, with 55,000 of his troops fully occupied in Yemen, thought to want the U.N. forces withdrawn. He has long sought to curb the militancy of other Arab leaders, warning that they are unable to wage war successfully on Israel because of their lack of unity.

Border Patrol
A multinational U.N. force, now numbering about 4,000 men, has patrolled the 145-mile Israel-U.A.R. border since 1957, after the two nations battled in the Sinai Desert.

Jordanian Information Minister Abdul Hamid Sheraf said Jordan's position was presented over the weekend to a meeting in Cairo of the Arab League Defense Council. The council met to consider action following an Israeli attack on three Jordanian border villages Nov. 13.

The U.N. Security Council censured Israel for the attack. Israel said it acted in reprisal for border raids by Aab terrorists.

Reports from Cairo said the Arab Council had forced Jordan into a unanimous decision to let in Iraqi and Saudi Arabian troops. But the minister said the troops could enter Jordan only as part of an over-all Arab military plan agreed on at previous conferences.

Scoutmaster, Youth Killed On Trestle

BRIGHTON, Mich. (AP) — "Grab the boy and jump! Grab the boy and jump!"

Engineer Lawrence Green shouted to the fleeing figures as his train bore down on them on a snowy trestle.

Despite braking power fully applied, the Chesapeake & Ohio freight ground on down the tracks and brought tragedy to a Boy Scout hike Saturday.

Howard T. Lovell, 50, leader of Detroit Troop 586, and John Gresham, 11, a member of the troop, were killed. Both were from Detroit.

Lovell died apparently trying to shoo young Gresham to safety when the train, going 55 miles an hour, caught the Scouts by surprise on the Huron River trestle in Island Lake State Park.

Another Scout, 14-year-old Kevin Connors, 14, of Detroit, broke a leg when he jumped 30 feet to the ground.

State police said Connors is deaf and did not hear the train's whistle. He jumped because he saw the others scrambling for safety, officers said.

Thirty-four Scouts escaped harm, some of them by leaping from the trestle as Connors did. Engineer Green, 63, of Inkster said, the train had rounded a curve about 200 yards from the trestle when he saw the boys.

The Scouts chose the trestle route, which has "no trespassing" signs on each end, as a short cut from their campsite to an area a mile away where they planned a cookout, police said.

'To Many Cooks' In Second Printing

Volume II of "To Many Cooks" is now in its second printing. The cookbook, assembled and published by Benefit Circle of The King's Daughters, was introduced at a number of "tasting teas" this fall.

The cookbook report was made by Mrs. K. K. Duval Jr. and Mrs. John Kloebe when the Circle held its Christmas party Tuesday evening at Riverview Country Club. A printing of 2,000 has been ordered with delivery expected late in January. The book is now in local bookstores.

The Circle has voted $1,000 to the new Family Service Agency.

Reports of progress were given by Mrs. Donald Hovde and Mrs. Wilmer Stach, members of the King's Daughters Council Steering Committee.

Lull Periods, Budgeting Curb Holiday Rush

Christmas is a season crammed full of fruit cake and cookies, greeting cards and gifts, decorations, entertaining and programs. These ingredients can make a happy holiday season or put you on a frantic treadmill.

The best time to do something about the Christmas "rush" is before it begins, suggests Viola Wilkinson, family life specialist at the University of Wisconsin. Maintain the true significance of the holiday by keeping Christmas calm and joyful.

Limit Activities
Limit ideas and activities before you get caught in the whirl. Keep in mind your own time and energy. There are times when more is planned than is humanly possible to execute.

Maybe six kinds of cookies would be enough instead of nine. Some may even settle for two kinds. You may feel less rushed for that open house or large dinner party during the lull that follows the holidays.

Jot down your ideas on paper before shopping. Department stores are overwhelming. A list will help direct shopping efforts.

If budget is a problem it may be well to establish some guidelines. Set a cost limit for a gift and stick to it. Expenditures can get out of hand if you expect to pay $3 for a gift and spend $10 instead.

Plan Your Time
Set aside a realistic amount of time for various activities and leave extra time for interruptions and changes. A mental plan, or one written on paper, doesn't take the joy out of the season; it frees you and gives direction to activities.

Much of the joy of Christmas lies in the period of preparation. Family traditions are built around holiday decorations, food preparations and entertaining.

Let the children help. Cookie making and decorating by the youngsters may be one of the highlights of their childhood. They may not remember the finished product but will cherish the joy of "doing."

Enlist Children's Aid
Children can even help with Christmas cards. Let them apply stamps and return addresses and seal envelopes.

Take time out to enjoy community programs, decorations and musical festivities. You can't attend all of them in one year but enjoy some of these Yuletide treats.

There should be a time in the busiest schedule to pause and enjoy the lights, sights, smells and sounds of Christmas. Around and beyond all these things, reflect the "invincible quietude" of the true significance of the holiday, suggests Mrs. Wilkinson.

Art Collection Given to Yale By Paul Mellon

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Philanthropist Paul Mellon has given Yale University one of the world's outstanding private art collections, $35 million worth of British works he gathered over the last 15 years.

Along with the collection of 17th-, 18th-, and 19th-century paintings, watercolors, drawings and books, Mellon also presented to his alma mater funds to build a gallery and library where they can be displayed. The building's cost is estimated at between $6 million and $9 million.

Golden Age
The gifts were announced Thursday by Kingman Brewster Jr., president of Yale Mellon, a member of the class of 1929, was not present for the announcement of the donation.

The collection, regarded by the university as the greatest body of British art outside Britain, is composed of 1,000 oil paintings, 3,000 watercolors, prints and drawings and 4,000 rare books.

The oils and watercolors are representative of what is known as the golden age of British painting from 1697 to 1851 and include 29 Hogarths, 35 Turners, 66 Constables, and 55 Gainsboroughs.

Gallery Gift
Private dealers estimated the worth of the collection at $35 million.

Mellon, 59, is president of the National Gallery of Art in Washington. His father, Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury under three presidents, gave the gallery to the nation as a $70-million gift over 30 years ago.

The Swinging Set

Top Talent on the Totem Pole

BY SYLVIE REICE

He comes on-stage as a frail rabbit-eyed wisp of a fellow and proceeds to demolish himself with funny remark after remark. "I was classified 4-F by the draft board. In the event of war, I'm a hostage" . . . "My parents didn't want me when I was a child. They put a live Teddy bear in my crib." He's shy; he flees from autograph-seekers and is embarrassed when people recognize him. Yet if anybody's made it on the entertainment scene today as a performer, television writer, playwright, movie star and recording personality, it's Woody Allen!

Woody's been working on success a long time — since he was a teen-ager, in fact. At 15, he was already turning out jokes that comedians planted in columns. His gags kept appearing so regularly, that he soon landed a job — at 19! — as staff writer at the National Broadcasting Company. (Consequently, he wrote the gags for such TV greats as Sid Caesar, Art Carney, Carol Channing and Buddy Hackett.) His adolescence was agonizing shy, despite his talent. "I was a loner," he says. "I was involved in my own pet things; I was a big jazz fan. I was interested in show business. I was always off by myself." His fantasy was to be cool and sophisticated like famed playwright George S. Kaufman (Today Woody, like his idol, has a Broadway hit). His first public performance, at a Greenwich Village nightclub, at no salary, made the audience roar so, that he roared off into a new segment of his career!

Successful Career

Right now, his "Don't Drink The Water" is a hilarious hit on Broadway produced by none less than David Merrick. He has written two Hollywood movies, is now working on a third, "Take The Money and Run" in which he will star (and probably direct). He'll do his nightclub act at New York's Royal Box, make Ed Sullivan on Feb. 5 — and has had the great and special honor of having a three-part profile of himself in the New Yorker Magazine. Could anyone ask for more?

Well, yes, a lovely wife — a splendid home. And Woody Allen has them both, too. The wife (his second) is small, very cute, and when I met her at his duplex apartment in New York, was just dashing in from an acting class.

Wife Conducts Tour

"I also take literature," she said breathlessly. "Want to see the house?" While Woody took the phone, she gave me a proud tour. She wore a fantastically short chic dress. She chatted away as she pointed out marble foyer, carved fireplace, hand-painted bedroom wallpaper, and Woody's bathroom-dressing room combination — a noble place of masculine towels and soaps and custom clothes. "This is a left-over from his bachelor days," she said.

I interviewed Woody in the game room. The walls were green felt and there were elegant wooden bookcases with leather-bound volumes. The rug was Scotch plaid. The room was dominated by a big pool table over which hung an enormous brass chandelier. Woody was practicing when I arrived. He stopped. "Do you read all these books?" I asked as an opener.

He looked at me seriously. "I do read a lot. But I don't enjoy reading much. I do it because it's important. Occasionally I come across something that's a treat, but rarely. I think I like movies better than books."

Views on Teens

Q. "Do people expect you to be funny at a party?" . . . A. "Usually. Sometimes I am, but mostly I'm serious."

Q. "Do you think we live in a teen-age culture, as so many people say?" . . . A. "Not at all — not even close. The most you can say is that teens buy a lot. I don't feel though that teens influence major decisions in any way — and in entertainment, the new comedians haven't gone out of their way to appeal to teens, nor any legitimate major talent like Barbra Streisand. Some, naturally, like the Beatles, appeal to teens, and that's good and fine, but there are also some, unfortunately, who just want to cash in on them. No artist worth anything would ever slant his work towards one particular group."

Nice Things to Say

Q. "How do you like today's teenagers?" . . . A. "I love their clothes; I love their dances. I love their music. There's nothing bad to say about them. Basically, their interests are creative ones. I like their music — it's melodic and rhythmic though I think the lyrics stink."

I'd say teens are becoming more non-conformist. That's one of the good things about them today. And the girls are immeasurably prettier. . . They're also non-violent and civil-libertarian, which is all towards the good. It all conspires towards a general sophisticated understanding of things."

Q. "Suppose a teen wanted to write comedy, how should he start?" . . . A. "First you should live in either New York or California — that's where everything's happening. Then you write material for a special come, for example. Try to contact his agent. He'll reject you, most likely. But you try someone else. You hang around in agents' offices, bringing material up. Finally you get a job for $100 and then nothing else for months, but gradually it begins to happen. You've got to be immersed in it and producing and eventually a certain amount of breaks come your way."

Well — why not? If it could happen to Woody, it could happen to you if you're a 15-year-old agonizingly shy, rabbit-eyed bencherous of a maternity bed at St. Elizabeth Hospital.

Mrs. Pelkey is presently a member of the Circle's Distributing Committee, which disperses the various Foundation funds. Now the grandmother of 10, Mrs. Pelkey has worked at the Blood Center and is a member of Lawyers' Wives. She and her husband have attended all but two or three of the Charity Balls held since 1929.

Stretched Interests

Mrs. William E. Buchanan came into Infant Welfare in 1931 and in 1934 served as Charity Ball chairman. The event, still held at that time at the Cinderella, now provided for further community endeavors. With proceeds from the 1933 through 1941 parties, the Circle established a school milk fund to distribute milk to children who couldn't pay.

Mrs. Buchanan, during her King's Daughters years, has been president of the Wisconsin Branch for two years. When the combined circles set about establishing a Community Blood Center, she served on the investigation committee and then was president for two terms.

Mrs. Buchanan will be chairman of next year's King's Daughters Wisconsin Convention, for which the Infant Welfare Circle will be hostess. She is also a delegate to the King's Daughters Council. Outside the Circle, she served for 20 years on the state board of the Children's Service Society and is a member of the Fox River Valley advisory board of that agency. She's been on the Appleton Memorial Hospital board of directors for six years, and served as president for two.

First After War

When the Charity Ball was resumed in 1946, after being discontinued during the war years, Mrs. Ralph McGowan served as chairman. The Infant Welfare Circle then bent to another task, the establishment of a Visiting Nurse Association. With the proceeds of eight Charity Balls, a fund was set up. Pledges totalling $8,000 raised through Charity Balls through 1953, brought the VNA into existence. It is now supported by United Community Services.

Mrs. McGowan was a VNA board member for six years and a member of the Wisconsin King's Daughters board for another six. She has kept records for the Blood Center since its beginning and still is on call as a reserve. She's served on the Fox River Area Girl Scout board of directors and on the committee that raised funds for Peabody Manor. Mrs. McGowan has also been chairman of the Circle's spring and fall rummage sales, the only fund-raising projects they have besides the Charity Ball. The McGowans haven't missed a Charity Ball since she joined the Circle in 1936.

New Projects

Mrs. Harold Adams joined Infant Welfare in 1953 and, two years later, was chairman of the Charity Ball.

During the '50s both the Infant Welfare Circle and the Foundation provided many new and continuing benefits. With the VNA pledge completed in '53, the Circle donated its '54 Ball proceeds to Morgan School. A pledge of $2,000 was made to the Blood Center in '54, and in '55, the Circle established a Dental Clinic, with an annual pledge of $1,000. The total given this project is now over $11,000 and the Circle recently voted an increase to $1,500 a year for three years to offset rising costs and increased numbers of children.

A pledge of $3,000 to Appleton Memorial Hospital was fulfilled during the '50s, raised primarily through the '56 and '57 Charity Balls. The next four provided $5,000 for Peabody Manor.

Mrs. Adams was a member of the Circle's distributing committee for four years and the VNA board for six. Her community interests are wide and include membership in AAUW, P.E.O. Sisterhood, Appleton Chapter of American Field Service and Appleton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary. She has been a participant and performer in the Auxiliary's Petite Musicales; president of Sigma Alpha Iota, vice president of Wednesday Musicales Club and advisor to Junior Wednesday Musicales.

Daughters to Attend

This year's Charity Ball chairman, Mrs. Roger Baird, joined Infant Welfare in 1960. Since she joined the Circle, Ball proceeds have provided $1,000 to the Outagamie County Guidance Center; $3,000 to the St. Elizabeth Hospital Building and Modernization Fund and $3,000 to the YMCA Building Fund. In 1966 an additional $1,000 was given each hospital's building fund.

Since the Bairds came to the Appleton area in 1956, Mrs. Baird has been active in a host of civic activities. Her involvement has been as a Pink Lady at Appleton Memorial Hospital, a member of the Girl Scout Council, League of Women Voters, V.N.A. Board and Calumet County Republican Women's Organization.

Adding to the party excitement, the Bairds' daughters will arrive at home in time to attend this year's Ball. Jane, employed in New York City, and Ann, a senior at Smith College, will both get home for the holidays the day before the formal party.

A-Mara-Can Girls Tell Programs for Next Year

A dinner and annual Christmas party was held at 8 p.m. Dec. 5 at Biggar's Restaurant by the A-Mara-Can Business Club of American Can Co., Neenah and Menasha. Entertainment was provided and gifts were exchanged.

Mrs. Robert Smith had charge of the program, assisted by Miss Karen Brownson, Miss Sharon Leach, Miss Linda Foth and Miss Delores Pratt.

Programs have been scheduled for future months. Dr. S. F. Darling, a Lawrence University professor of chemistry, will present "Cosmetics and Perfumes" at the Jan. 23 guest night meeting. Mrs. Donna Grygny will have charge of the program.

A Feb. 27 tour of computer and S.A.C. areas of the general office building will be conducted by Robert Haddock. The program will be arranged by Miss Barbara Iron.

The March 27 alumnae night meeting will feature a spring fur style show by Kriek Furs, Inc. The program will be in the charge of Miss Jean McLeod.

Cruise Planned

Dr. F. L. Schaefer, a member of the American Cancer Society, will present "Conquer Uterine Cancer" April 24. Miss Donna Sturges will direct the program.

A May 22 tour of the pilot plant will be conducted by W. H. Gehrke and John Brann.

son, Dan Courtney, Paul Wesco, Dan Hardt, William Pifer, Russell Bauman, M. J. Schulenberg, V. I. Minahan, Douglas Mann, Douglas Knight, Kenneth Craig, William McGraw, J. Treat Thomas, Henry Bailey, and twice, by Mrs. William Buchanan, Mrs. F. Stansbury Young and Mrs. Andrew Sharp.

Forester Courts Have Party

The adult and junior courts of the National Catholic Society of Foresters held their annual Christmas party at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday at St. Mary School cafeteria. A potluck supper was served. Gifts were exchanged and children given toys and candy.

Baby clothing was collected for the Holy Fathers' Storerom.

Mrs. Joseph Wydeven has charge of packing and shipping arrangements. The group voted to also donate a monetary gift to the storeroom.

Chairmen for the party were Mrs. Edwin Massonette, Mrs. Raymond Heegeman and Mrs. Albert Will.

Romantic Readers Take Issue When Ann Knocks 'Vaudeville'

DEAR READERS: Recently I printed a letter from an engaged girl who is making plans for her wedding. Her fiancé, she said, has a beautiful voice and wants to sing a solo at their wedding. She asked if it would be proper. I told the girl the bridegroom is on hand to be married and not to entertain the guests, and in my opinion they had better get someone else to sing.

Here is a sample of this week's mail:

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter has been crying all day on account of you. Just last month we gave her a lovely wedding and everyone said it was perfect down to the last detail. When Monica came down the aisle on her father's arm, her husband-to-be walked toward her singing "I Love You

Landers that you feel it is in poor taste. Who appointed you judge and jury of the whole world? — Short Hills, N.J.

Dear Know-It-All Ann Landers: When my husband and I were married 18 years ago, he took my arm from my father who had walked me down the aisle, we both faced the guests in the church and he sang "Because." This was not planned, in fact it was a surprise to me and I was thrilled. When our daughter is married, I hope her husband does the same thing. A spontaneous song from the bridegroom is much more meaningful than a professional singer who gets paid.—Burlington, Vt.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are so arrogant you make me sick. Why do you feel that your way is the only right way? I refer to your statement that it is in poor taste for a bridegroom to sing at his own wedding.

Our son married a lovely girl who had been married previously and was divorced. When the bride and bridegroom met at the altar, she turned to him and sang, "The Second Time

Tri-Y Clubs Tell Service Projects

Christmas activities and service projects of Appleton Tri-Y clubs were recently announced by the YMCA.

Lawrence University advisers surprised Venora-Libre Tri-Y members with a Christmas party Dec. 5. The group will serve cookies and punch to the Cotillion Dance Club Saturday. Committee members will be Pamela Brewer, Debbie Grow and Sue Breil.

The Apollo Tri-Y will provide refreshments for the YMCA Girls Chorus party 4 p.m. Wednesday. Rhonda Spence and Nancy Bergman have charge. Laetus Tri-Y is buying ornaments to trim a Christmas tree at the YMCA.

Skit Prepared "The Night Before Christmas" will be presented by Les Amies Tri-Club at 2 p.m. Saturday at St. Elizabeth's Hospital. The YMCA Girls Club will view the presentation at 4 p.m. Friday.

Caroling Plans A caroling party is scheduled by Zodiac Tri-Y at 7 p.m. Dec. 22. Refreshments will be served at the home of Kathie Miller, 1508 S. Outagamie St.

Cho Cho Sr. Club members heard Miss Shirley Zehr, an exchange student from Iran, speak at a Dec. 6 joint meeting with all senior high school clubs.

Cor Unum Tri-Y members will decorate for the Dec. 23 Den dance. In addition the club will present a gift subscription to the YMCA women's department. The group publishes a bi-monthly Tri-Y Times paper.

Slave Day Held A slave day to raise funds for service projects was held Dec. 3 by Donas Tri-Y. Members, who sent cards to soldiers in Vietnam, will carol for residents at Appleton Memorial hospital during the holidays.

A Dec. 6 Christmas party was held by Gemini Tri-Y. The group has scheduled a roller skating party Jan. 8.

A modern version of "Cinderella," will be presented by the Cho Cho Jr. Tri-Y Club at 2 p.m. Sunday at the City Home. After refreshments have been served, members will return to the YMCA for a Christmas party beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Court Awards Couple $5,000 For Cancellation

DETROIT (AP)—A young Detroit couple was awarded $5,000 by a judge Thursday because a hall canceled reservations for their wedding reception two days before the marriage.

Common Pleas Judge George D. Kent awarded the judgment to Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse B. Resmer of nearby Royal Oak.

Mrs. Resmer said the hall was rented by her father almost six months before the July 2 wedding.

Two days before the wedding, the hall canceled, saying there had been a scheduling mixup. The couple said this spoiled their wedding.

who cares how liquored our tea is?

When we speak of liquor we mean body. And when it comes to full-bodied flavor in tea, A&P is hard to beat. We've been blending teas of rare, rich body for over 100 years.

Our tea has some body.

We know what the flavor, body, fragrance and color of a great cup of tea should be. And we'll blend 15 different teas from the finest estates—from as many as ten different countries—to make sure you get it.

Every blend is a triumph in flavor.

A lot of trouble? Yes. But then, tea was the first product we ever sold, and we've made it our business, since 1859, to supply the finest blends of never-varying quality. We have no intention of changing.

Setting Up Doll House Display Done With Tweezers, Patience

BY GLORIA BABLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEENAH — "It's an addiction," says Mrs. Raymond Newman, as she unpacks boxes and cartons of doll house furnishings at the Bergstrom Art Center, 165 N. Park Ave.

The Milwaukee woman will display 14 cases of her Marion Newman Collection to the public beginning Wednesday and running through Jan. 15 at the center. It has been shown previously in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Milwaukee.

Emphasizing that the cases are settings for doll houses, not doll houses themselves, Mrs. Newman says it is impossible to estimate how many pieces she has in the collection because she adds to it constantly. One setting of a kitchen, however, does have over 1,000 items she remembers. "Kitchens have the most utensils," she sighs.

Uses Tweezers
Continuing to unpack the tiny accessories and placing silverware on the small tables with a tweezers, she recalls that she began her "addiction" four years ago.

"The Layton Art Gallery in Milwaukee asked if we would show our home in Milwaukee for a benefit event because it had a ballroom on the third floor. We had used it as a playroom and while tidying it for the benefit I found assorted doll furniture and items.

"I had a doll house which my father had built. When friends moved into smaller homes and apartments they began giving me their doll furniture because they knew I was interested... now I'm in the business," she explains.

Patronizes Sales
Since 1962, Mrs. Newman has completed 52 cases and is working to finish an additional 50. When she receives a few pieces of doll furniture from friends she tries to complete the period by going to rummage sales.

"Sales and church bazaar are my greatest joy. I love to go to them," she says enthusiastically. To find doll furniture I go to every rummage sale I know of. I also rob my friends' attics."

She also accompanies her husband on sales trips.

"When he goes on business I look up the rummage sales. I guess you could say I go to sales all over the country."

Many of the doll house furnishings are also purchased from manufacturers in Europe, particularly West Germany. The doll house items, she stresses, are not miniatures of exact copies of original pieces made to scale.

"They are doll house pieces and were made to be played with," she explains. They are made quite sturdily. Miniatures are not to be played with."

Disabled Make Cases
The display cases are finished inside with a wood preservative. Mrs. Newman then uses material fabrics and designs to cover the walls in period patterns. The materials, like the doll house furnishings, are found in attics and at rummage sales.

Usually seven to nine cases make up a unit or one full period of time. Each setting contains doll house furnishings displayed according to a ten-year period.

The oldest unit, dating to 1800, is not quite completed. The fragile dolls for that particular setting are 150 years old.

Some settings were purchased from other doll house collectors. One depicting San Francisco, 1900-1910 will be displayed at the Bergstrom

Mrs. Marion W. Newman prepared her collection of doll house settings at the Bergstrom Art Center this week. The exhibit will be open to the public Wednesday. Each accessory in the multi-piece collection was cleaned and unpacked by Mrs. Newman. Settings are arranged according to 10-year design periods. The furnishings were made by toy manufacturers in Europe and the U.S.

Art Center. It originally belonged to a San Francisco family and was given to a child in 1900. The collection was badly damaged by an earthquake in 1920. Thirty years later an antique dealer found it. He eventually sold the unit to Mrs. Newman.

"The only liberty I have taken with any period was in the making of missing pieces and repairing injured dolls or furniture," she points out.

Whenever the cases go on public exhibit, Mrs. Newman cleans each piece and packs it carefully. Particular pains are taken when the collection must be transported by truck. "Then each piece of furniture is carefully packed in shipping paper," she notes.

Labels Accessories
Accessories for each case or setting are labeled and packed in separate cases. "The furnishings are charted," she muses, "but not seriously. I'm the only one who really knows where everything goes. No one else can really help me unpack anything."

"My great enemy is vibration. That's why everything must be carefully packed," she adds.

Continuing to unpack the cartons she brought for the Bergstrom Art Center display, she says she is unable to estimate how long it takes to set up the exhibit because each setting takes a different amount of time to complete.

Featured at the art center will be settings of Christmas 1900-1910, 1930 to 1940 and 1960 to 1970. The San Francisco setting complete with living room, dining room, nursery and girl's bedroom will also be on exhibit.

Of added interest is a living-dining room from the 1920 to 1930 period. All the furniture was made by Mrs. George Bergstrom Jr.'s great grandmother, Mrs. Edwin Reed, when she was 89 years old. Mrs. Reed used cherry and peach bourses to fashion the doll furniture.

Decoration Idea

For an eye-catching mantle decoration this holiday, arrange greenery in an S shape and insert red candles and tiny elves so they appear to be peeking through the greenery.

Don't Wait To Ask Question

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Sooner or later in every bad drama one of the chief characters buries his face in his hands and wails, "Where did I go wrong?" You sometimes see it at the bridge table, as in today's hand.

My friend, Ronald Blau, played today's hand some years ago. He took the first trick with the ace of diamonds, cashed the top hearts to get rid of a diamond and then led the jack of clubs from dummy.

East took the king of clubs and led the nine of diamonds. West discarded a heart, and East led another diamond. Declarer ruffed with the ten of spades, and West discarded his last heart.

Blau gave up another club to East, and back came another diamond. Declarer had to ruff with the jack to shut West out. South now led his last club.

and ruffed in dummy. He drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and queen, and then merely had to get back to his hand to draw West's last trump.

Impossible Feat
Unfortunately, South couldn't get to his hand. He had to lead a heart from dummy, with just the K-8 of trumps in his hand. If South ruffed low, West would over-ruff, and if South ruffed with the king, West's nine would become the high trump.

"Where did I go wrong?" Blau blurted out.

The odds are that we'd have done the same thing, but it's easy to see the error from our safe kibitzing spot. The first three tricks — ace of diamonds and two top hearts — were right. But then South must ruff a heart.

The rest is the same, but when South finally ruffed a club in dummy and cashes dummy's two high trumps, he has only

Mother Worried Over Baby's Failure to Sit

BY JOSEPH MOLNER, M. D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 7-month-old son seems very smart but cannot sit up by himself. He seems to be afraid he will fall, because he stiffens every time I sit him up alone.

Is there some way I can give him courage in himself? Or some way to help his back become stronger? — Mrs. F. B.

Age varies in all the things infants learn, including sitting up. Some are early, some late. Seven months is about average for a baby to sit alone — and tend to lean forward.

Therefore you are rushing things. Wait a bit. The fact that he stiffens does not mean he is afraid. That is just your interpretation. He'll try to sit up by himself when he is ready.

Don't force him. Merely see that whatever he is sitting on is comfortable and that he is strapped so he cannot fall out.

Chances are that he is trying, or soon will be trying to sit up in his crib and he won't hurt himself if he falls over.

Give him more time. Don't make a fuss about it. His back muscles will take care of themselves when they are ready to do so.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes emphysema? Does it weaken the lungs? What can be done for it? — H. D.

the king of spades left in his hand. That's a trick he cannot lose.

Daily Question
Dealer, at your right, bids one diamond. You hold S K J 10 8 7 5, H 5, D 8 7 6, C 5 4 2. What do you say?

Answer: Pass, if you are the average player in the average game. This hand is worth a bid only if you use the weak jump overall, and you'd better be non-vulnerable to make a jump bid on this junky hand.

No exact cause of emphysema has been identified, but in general it is safe to say that various factors combine to cause it — smoking and other irritants, excessive strain on the lungs, and the like.

Weaken may not be the right word but it certainly impairs lung function. The tiny air sacs gradually break down and the lungs no longer are able to absorb oxygen, just as a worn-out sponge, with the little cells torn, will not hold as much water.

Effective treatment of emphysema is entirely possible, although I do not say "cure." Why don't you read my booklet, "How to Control Emphysema," which I wrote to answer just the kind of question you ask.

To receive a copy, send 10 cents in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have recently had a bladder infection three times. My doctor said if I have it again he will send me to a specialist.

Please tell me the cause of this and why it occurs so often. I am 38 and the mother of one child — Mrs. B.

Infection merely means that germs have settled in an area and are multiplying.

Bladder, kidney and related infections are particularly stubborn because germs, once they get there, find an environment in which they multiply readily.

If you have an infected finger, you can apply an antiseptic of such strength as may be needed with internal infections, you cannot attack with such directness.

The probability is that you have not had three infections, instead it is a chronic thing. You get it pretty well under control, but not totally subdued — so in time it flares up again.

Your doctor is wise to refer you to a specialist who often can detect and correct some underlying fault which has been contributing to your trouble.

Note to F. G. Occlusive vascular disease means that blood vessels (the vascular system) are at one or more points occluded, or closed off or clogged.

WSU-O Head Welcomes Out-of-State Students

Dr. Guiles Thinks 'Mix' Will Improve Without Financial Aid

MADISON — Dr. Roger Guiles, WSU-O president, would like to see a higher percentage of out-of-state students on the Oshkosh campus, but sees no need to attract them with special financial inducements.

The State Universities Board of Regents reopened the question this week of just how many non-state students should be allowed to attend Wisconsin colleges. The present limit has been fixed by the board at 25 per cent.

The limit does not affect the Oshkosh campus like it does the state universities near the boundaries of the state, like Platteville and Whitewater. But it could have an effect in the future. Oshkosh has about 4 per cent out-of-state, Guiles said.

Empty Dormitories
The reconsideration of the limit on outsiders was raised again in committee after the recent controversy over the unused dormitory space at the Whitewater campus.

Regent W. Roy Kopp, Platteville, chairman of the board's education committee, said the 25 per cent cutoff is subject to question in light of the unused capacity.

The central staff of the system was directed to prepare a report on the whole picture of out-of-state enrollments for presentation at the next board meeting.

Guiles said the "mix" of state and non-state students at the Oshkosh campus was improving gradually and would take care of itself over the years.

Twice as Expensive
The idea was raised that financial inducements might be a way to pull students to campus in the center of the state, rather than have them concentrated at the border area in institutions like Whitewater, Oshkosh campus, but sees no need to attract them with special financial inducements.

Guiles said he didn't think this would be necessary, as more out-of-state students became aware of WSU-O.

Presently Wisconsin students must be in good standing and in the top 75 per cent of their high school classes to enter the state university system, while out-of-state students must be in the upper 40 per cent in their states.

The tuition for Wisconsin students is now $250, compared to about twice that amount for non-residents.

The key question involved in the debate is how much tax burden should be placed on Wisconsin taxpayers to support students from other states.

One university president felt that if a non-resident has a chance to succeed as a student on a Wisconsin campus, he should be allowed to attend, but he should pay the full cost of instruction.

'Financial Discrimination'
Robert DiZonia, assistant director for the system, said this formula would amount to financial discrimination. He said the full cost of instruction would range between $860 and $1,000.

He said he would rather see "intellectual discrimination" than "financial discrimination."

Regent Dr. Stephen H. Ambrose, Whitewater, said out-of-state enrollments should be controlled through reciprocity agreements with other states.

'Bad Public Relations'
Ropp cited the bad public relations that result from a restrictive program and pointed out the governor had questioned the wisdom of the 25 per cent cutoff.

The same question is being raised on the University of Wisconsin-Madison campus, where a drop in resident enrollments has pushed the out-of-state percentage on the capital campus to 36 per cent of the freshman class. Next year the administration plans to reduce that percentage to the 30 per cent.

One was social, in which the child is talked to others for the purpose of communicating something and being understood. The other he called egocentric. In this kind of speech the child does not bother to talk to any particular person. Nor does he care whether he is being listened to or not. His speech may even be a babble of sounds with incomplete sentences and words. Listen for this in your children.

Visitor to Vietnamese Village Views Transportation Only an Elephant Joke

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
PANG SIM, South Viet Nam (AP)—Who, me? Ride an elephant? This had to be the absolute last of the elephant jokes.

"Elephants come at 4 o'clock," the chief said. "You want to ride with us, you be here. Four o'clock, no late."

Chief Nchat, the top banana in this Montagnard village deep in the jungles of Quang Duc province, made the announcement with all the bored indifference of a Long Island train caller.

Standing there in his black loin cloth, smiling his toothless smile and rattling the enormous ivory discs imbedded in his earlobes, the chief cut a rather raffish figure among the bare-footed menfolk and bare-breasted womenfolk of his village.

As Advertised

The chief bowed regally and crawled beneath the porch of his hut, out of the merciless sun, to resume his siesta. Soon he was snoring contentedly, side by side with a fat grey hog and a mangy dog with a tail long enough to flick the flies off all three.

At 4 o'clock, as advertised, the elephants came. There were four of them, bobbing up from the jungles into the little clearing of bamboo thatched huts.

All I could think to say was the same thing Tarzan said to Jane, according to the old elephant joke, when he saw the elephants coming.

"Here come the elephants!" I blurted out.

The chief scowled.

Several younger tribesmen hurried into a long, low hut and reappeared with two "howdah" baskets, ornate bamboo thrones right out of an old Sabu movie. They first covered the backs of the elephants with a grass mat, then strapped the baskets on tight with long leather thongs.

Hilarious Scene

Chief Nchat followed the saddling-up with the cold, suspicious eye of a private dick assigned to the paddocks at Aqueduct after a doping incident. The children of the village found the whole scene hilarious, especially the outrageous bush suits worn by the two round-eyed visitors.

With me was George Gaspard of Lee Hall, Va., the U.S. Agency for International Development representative in this jungle province 180 miles northwest of Saigon.

George had organized the impromptu elephant safari to study forest resources in a swampy section of the jungles inaccessible by foot or vehicle. Like me, he had never been on an elephant before, but someone had told him it was no more difficult than riding an Army mule. For some reason, George found this encouraging.

A Bit Independent

He drew a mount named Ban, a female renowned for her sweet disposition and her ability to lead the rest of the herd around by the tail, which is the way elephants are linked up for travel.

Mine was Dok, two tons of tusked temperament. Among the four elephants belonging to the tribe, Dok was the only male and understandably a bit independent.

He also boasted the only tusk, on his right side. All the others had had their tusks sheared off long ago and sold for ivory. For photographs, we had to keep shooting Dok on the good side of his profile.

The elephant drivers, called mahouts, climbed into their cockpits on top of the elephant's head just between the ears. With a smart crack of their malacca batons, they deftly brought the beasts to their knees and signaled us to climb aboard.

George made it into his throne with relatively little trouble: just a push and shove and a couple of heave-hos from the docile village wives and no more than a cascade of merry laughter from the small fry.

Giggling Ladies

My elephant, a paranoid pachyderm, was nowhere near as cooperative. Just as I went to climb aboard, using his massive rear end for a ramp, he suddenly reared up, bellowed ferociously as elephants do in all the Tarzan movies, and otherwise indicated that, like the New Haven Railroad, he wanted to get out of the passenger business. The kids sitting on the rail fence went berserk with hilarity.

"You shouldn't have worn those elephant leather shoes," George chided, pointing to the shoes I had recently acquired in a Da Nang bootery. "He's taking it personal."

At last, after much prodding from the mahout's malacca, Dok was persuaded to genuflect again, I was hurried aboard by the giggling ladies of Pang Sim and we were off, trunk to tail, into the jungles.

Landlocked Destroyer

Riding an Asian elephant out of a Montagnard village is a unique experience in surface transportation. You sit with your knees in your face peering out at a rolling, pitching, yawing world. It's a little like being on the deck of a landlocked destroyer, watching the horizon line rise and fall, and a lot like being rolled out of town on an enormous keg of beer.

But no matter what you may have heard to the contrary, elephants are amazingly agile and graceful animals. They filed out through an opening in the barbed wire guard fence, with hardly an inch to spare on either side, and headed into the jungle along a barely discernible trail. A few hundred yards into the vast teak and ebony forests and the trail disappeared altogether.

The elephants picked their way through the dense undergrowth daintily. Each time we came to a tangle of overhead vines or the low branches of a tree, they ducked down just enough to skim the passengers' heads.

Awesome Power

Once, a huge partially fallen tree slanted across our path. Ban, the lead elephant, curled her trunk around it, bent it to the ground, knelt on it first with a front leg, then a back leg, and passed it on to Dok, who similarly held the offending limb down long enough for the next elephant to get a leg up on it. It was an awesome display of power and teamwork.

Three kilometers into the jungles, we came to a swollen stream, too swift to bridge at the height of the monsoon season. The elephants waded in, swayed laterally for one frightening moment in the torrent, and then with a determined grunt slogged on to the opposite bank.

Once across, Dok dipped his trunk into the seething stream for a long drink and, with what seemed a malicious grin, made like he was about to operate an impromptu jungle car wash. One smart smack from the mahout's baton and he desisted, spraying the water back into the stream instead of on top of us.

Belly Laughs

There's an old vaudeville joke about how you get down off an elephant. You don't, you get it off a duck. The kids of Pang Sim never heard it, but they got lots of belly laughs out of the real thing.

George got down somewhat ungracefully but without incident, falling in a heap into the arms of the assembled ladies of Pang Sim.

Dok, as usual, proved difficult. Just as I was getting down, he decided to get up. The mahout left me teetering somewhere between the roof of the nearest hut and the business end of his only tusk.

After two hours of my being on top of him, he seemed to feel that turn-about was only fair play. The kids of Pang Sim were in uproarious agreement.

But true to the script, the son of Sabu brandished his malacca baton, applied the necessary restraints, and effected a speedy if somewhat inelegant debarkation. My escape route consisted of sliding down Dok's rear quarters in confusion.

Wisconsin Delegation Figures Prominently in NLC Debates

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

There was much to be said in "the small world department" this past week at the Congress of American Cities at Las Vegas, Nevada.

The Wisconsin delegation figured prominently in Congress deliberations, and also gave part of the Fox Valley good representation.

Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, West Allis, Eau Claire, Madison, Wauwatosa and Milwaukee were member municipalities of the National League of Cities that sent delegations.

Mayor Donald Tilleman of Green Bay, a member of the NCL Community Development Committee, was unable to attend because of municipal business.

Tilleman had intended to be at the Congress but cancelled out the day before when there were major developments in Green Bay's multi-million dollar urban renewal program.

Buckley Absent
Appleton's Mayor George Buckley, who was out of state, declined to attend, although he is a member of the Natural Resources Committee.

In connection with the absence of Appleton representation for the first time in recent years, a question was raised whether the hub of the Fox Cities had withdrawn from the NLC at a point when more Wisconsin cities are joining annually.

Disclosure was made that either through inadvertence or a deletion in the budget, Appleton would not be paying its $250 dues for 1967 and faced being dropped from the membership roll of more than 14,500 municipalities that belong to the NLC.

Browne gave a short report on the extensive debate the public safety committee agenda aroused.

Breakfast at Dunes
The Fox Valley officials were at the Wisconsin delegation breakfast at the Dunes where they participated in an informal caucus presided over by Ed Johnson, executive director of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

Mayor Henry Maier of Milwaukee talked briefly and urged them to speak out on the problems confronting their various cities.

Several delegates from Wisconsin also conferred at some time or another with representatives of various federal agencies from Washington concerning federal grant applications which are pending.

Every year the federal officials practically move their Washington offices into the city where the NLC Congress is being held so local governmental officials can make personal contacts.

There was no official Appleton representative to check on the status of that city's $1.3 million water expansion grant application, or progress of announced plans last month for a new post office.

Own Post Office

It was learned, however, the U.S. Postal Department is getting out of the leasing business and intends to design and build its own post offices from now on.

It was surprising the number of people from other Wisconsin cities and states the Fox Valley delegation met in person after having corresponded with them on governmental or personal matters over the years.

One delegate, representing the Nebraska Municipal League, was no stranger to Wisconsin. He was Edwin (Ed) F. Weis, former mayor of Fond du Lac for several years.

Weis has been city manager at Chadron, Neb. ever since he left Fond du Lac in the late 1950's.

"I'm still a taxpayer in Fond du Lac, though," Weis remarked, "It's my former home."

Weis said he enjoys his job in growing Chadron — a college town — and had stopped off in Las Vegas after attending the manager's session at Phoenix.

Keeps Abreast

"I keep abreast of what's going on in the old home town," Mr. and Mrs. Weis also sent a "hello" to their niece, Phyllis, who is Mrs. Kenneth Boulay, 815 S. Pierce St., Appleton.

Later Weis had a chance meeting with Harold Taft, formerly a supervisor for the Soo Line Railroad at Fond du Lac, and now in North Dakota. Taft, who works for another firm now, got interested in local politics and is now a city councilman.

A Lawrence University graduate, who formerly resided in Neenah, was here with the Council Bluffs, Iowa, contingent.

Four members of the Fond du Lac city council attended various workshop sessions for cities of 25,000-50,000 population, and the general assemblies to hear the nationally-known experts.

Ray Puddy, council president, headed the Fond du Lac group which also included Councilmen Conrad Zimmerman, George Moses and Paul Michler.

Fond du Lac has the council-manager form of government, so City Manager Henry Buslee was not with the group because the National City Managers Association met previously in Phoenix, Ariz.

"It's been a good Congress," remarked Puddy, "Our group has gotten a lot out of it."

Mayor Joseph R. Browne of Sheboygan was attending his first Congress and participated in all-important public safety committee discussions, which dwelt heavily on matters dealing with police recruitment training, and a national program to help lower car thefts.

Dr. Walter R. Hathaway, anatomic and clinical pathologist who practiced medicine in Neenah for four years until leaving in about 1962, is now a member of the Council Bluffs city council.

"I find being in government very interesting and challenging," Dr. Hathaway said, adding his "greetings and best wishes" to acquaintances back in the Appleton-Neenah-Menasha area.

Dr. Hathaway, who resides at 120 Kenmore Ave., Council Bluffs, is on the staff at Edmundson Memorial Hospital there.

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Dec. 12, the 346th day of 1966. There are 19 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1894, a law was passed permitting the government to collect taxes on income of more than $4,000 annually. The Supreme Court declared the income tax unconstitutional the following year.

On this date:

In 1787, Pennsylvania became the second state to ratify the U.S. Constitution.

In 1870, the first Negro member of the House of Representatives, Joseph Rainey of South Carolina was sworn in.

In 1901, Guglielmo Marconi sent the first wireless telegraph signal across the Atlantic.

Ten years ago — The U.N. Security Council voted unanimously to recommend Japan for admission to the world organization as the U.N.'s 80th member. However, the council refused to recommend Outer Mongolia, a Soviet candidate for membership.

Five years ago — The Soviet Union demanded the United States arrest and turn over to it West German Gen. Adolf Heusinger, chairman of the NATO military committee in Washington. The Russians said they wanted to try the general as a war criminal. Heusinger was the German army's chief of operations during World War II. The United States rejected the Soviet charges.

City Recreation Leader to be Selected Soon

Joint Commission Wants Time to Study Applications

Appointment of a new Appleton municipal recreation director is expected within the next two weeks.

Members of the park-recreation commission interviewed four candidates for the job Friday.

There was indication then that an appointment would be made over the weekend.

However, park commissioners decided to review the information obtained from the one Iowa and three Wisconsin applicants.

It is possible the appointment will be made for the post, which has a $630-750 a month salary range, when the commission holds its regular meeting in two weeks.

Participating in the oral interviews of candidates were: Commission President Art Jones, Atty. William Heermann, Atty. Wendell Smith, Aids. Orville Strutz (17th) and Al Stoegebauer (4th), Personnel Director J. W. Rusch and Robert Horey, representing the National Park and Recreation Association.

Horey did most of the questioning of the aspirants seeking to fill the position formerly occupied by E. W. Grover, who retired this fall.

Lloyd Koehnke Jr. is now acting director.

AHS Yule Concert Ends Era

The final annual Christmas concert of the entire music department of Appleton High School will be presented at 7:30 p.m. tonight. Next season Appleton High School-East will share the spotlight.

Performing will be the orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. William Wilke; the choir, directed by L. E. Schulz with Nancy Reed and Mary Kuehl as accompanists, and the concert band under the direction of Ivan Spangenberg.

Kaukauna Tot Remains Critical Following Fire

NEENAH — Three-year-old Catherine Haanen of Kaukauna remains in critical condition today in the burn center of Theda Clark Hospital, following an accident Saturday in which she suffered second and third degree burns over her entire body.

The youngster was burned when her flannel pajamas ignited as she reached across a burner on the kitchen stove.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Haanen of 137 Grant Street.

A sister, Mary Beth, age 16 months, suffered second and third degree burns to her left hand and arm in the accident. The girls were alone in the kitchen when the fire started. Their father was upstairs.

Dr. Haanen suffered first and second degree burns to both hands when he attempted to tear the burning clothing off the little girl.

Mt. Olive Lutherans Elect Four Councilmen

Four new members of the 12-man church council of Mt. Olive Lutheran Church were elected at the annual congregational meeting Sunday.

Elected to three-year terms were Karl Jahnke, Ray Kasten, Kenneth Neumann and Donald Schroeder.

The four will replace Alvin Sonnenberg, Jerome Greve, Carl Gerlach and Kenneth Gertsch, whose terms expired.

Some of the 4,000 Boxes of candy which will be sold by children in an Appleton project from now until March, are picked up by Doug Buelow and Sherry Gygi. Distributing the boxes is Wendell Smith, the new youth director.

Outagamie Traffic Toll Holds Line

Accidents in '66, Report Shows

The total number of accidents investigated by Outagamie County traffic police during the year ending Oct. 31 was almost identical to the same period the previous year, according to the annual report of Lt. Lowell Veitch.

Police investigated 770 reportable accidents (those involving more than $100 damage) during the past year — one less than the year ending Nov. 1, 1965 — a period which had the highest total for the past five years.

Although the number of accidents remained about the same, injuries jumped from 410 in 1965 to 466 for the first 10 months. Veitch pointed out. The 1965 traffic death toll in the county (including municipalities) was 27, while the 1966 count stands at 20.

Estimated Damage
An unofficial estimate of property damage in accidents through October of this year shows nearly a half million dollars, Veitch said.

As was the case last year, Veitch said, the greatest single grouping of accidents occurred between 4 and 6 p.m. The 120 accidents during that two-hour period was only 16 ahead of the second most popular time for accidents — between midnight and 2 a.m. December led the one-year period with 86 accidents.

Cold, Hungry Child Found In Parked Car

Two sisters, ages 2 and 3, were placed in custody of the Outagamie County Welfare Department after the 2-year-old was found cold and hungry in a car parked near a Town of Oneida tavern late Sunday night.

Two women, ages 32 and 25 — one of them the mother of the children — are being held in Outagamie County jail awaiting court appearances expected today.

The sheriff's department was informed about 9:40 p.m. Sunday that a child had been crying in a car outside Van's Valley Tavern for about an hour.

Police investigated the report and found the poorly dressed child alone in the car. The engine and heater was not operating, police said.

The two women and the oldest child were found inside the tavern. All were brought to the jail where the youngsters were fed and released to welfare authorities.

At Awards Dinner

Kaukauna Jaycees to Honor Civic Leaders

KAUKAUNA — The Jaycees have announced plans to honor two men who during the past year have distinguished themselves by their community service work.

Burt McIntyre, president, named Charles Lenius to head a committee to seek nominations for the Distinguished Service Award (DSA) and Distinguished Citizen Award, (DCA) to be presented at a dinner meeting in January.

Last year the Jaycees honored only the most outstanding young man, which limited the field to those under 35.

The DSA is presented to the man between 21 and 35 who gives the most meritorious service to his family, church, community and nation. The local winner will be entered in Wisconsin Jaycee competition and state winners are entered in national competition where America's 10 outstanding young men are chosen.

The DCA will be presented to a citizen who is 36 years of age or older who meets the same qualifications as required for the DSA. It is being presented for the first time and although only a local contest, Jaycee members felt the community's older citizen also should be recognized.

The recognition banquet will get underway with a 6 p.m. cocktail hour at Oakwood Hills Supper Club Jan. 19 followed by the dinner and awards ceremony at 7 p.m.

Individuals, organizations, associations or institutions may submit information on nominees. Nomination forms are available from any Jaycees and the winner will be selected by a committee on a basis of his achievement or contribution of importance in his chosen field, organization, community, state and nation.

Kaukauna Area
Judges will be Mayor Gilbert Anderson, George Greenwood, director of the Chamber of Commerce; Henry Dreschler, principal of Nicolet Elementary School; Robert Aranowski, U.S. Army, and Lenius, employee of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co.

Nominees for the DSA are not eligible if they become 36 before Jan. 1, 1967. They must be citizens or applied for citizenship of the United States, resident or employed within the metropolitan area of Kaukauna.

Nomination forms must be signed by nominees, attesting to facts contained on the form, give permission of publication of facts and indicate willingness, barring extreme circumstances, to attend the banquet if under final consideration. Forms must be filled out completely and mailed to Lenius, 206 E. Division St., Kaukauna, prior to Jan. 8. Qualifications for the DCA award are the same except candidates must be over 36 as of Jan. 1, 1967.

Traffic Charge
A bench warrant also had been issued for Ellis on two traffic charges brought by Appleton police.

He was sentenced to 30 days in jail for driving after his license was revoked, and was fined $20 and costs or another 10 days in jail for a stop sign violation. Both the city offenses occurred Nov. 4 at Seymour and Oneida streets.

Ellis told authorities that although he did not go to Mexico, he had gone to California, but then decided to return. He faces more than seven months in jail if he does not pay the fines.

Wardens had been holding Pottenger's deer — on ice — pending the disposition of the Ellis case. Warden Dale Moray turned the deer over to Pottenger this afternoon.

Hope Dim for Winnebago Water Without Federal Aid

Appleton Continues
Study of County
Right-of-Way Buying

Appleton and Outagamie County Board officials were scheduled to hold a special meeting at the courthouse this afternoon, reportedly to discuss highway construction financing.

The city council three weeks ago requested the county board for an audit of Outagamie Highway Department road construction projects over the past 10 years.

Ald. Roy Pointer (14th), council president, inferred that Appleton was not getting its share of financial assistance from the county on road projects.

Represent City
Mayor George Buckley, City Atty. David Geenen, Finance Director Henry Schreve and City Planner Walter Rasmussen were to represent the city today.

The county was expected to be represented by Supv. Sylvester Esler, county board chairman, and Alvin Woehler, county executive secretary.

Buckley reportedly requested the meeting to determine what progress, if any, is being made on the audit.

Review Policy
A review of the county's right-of-way purchase policy also is expected.

The city's request for an audit was to determine the amount of state-county funds spent on projects in various county municipalities in comparison to Appleton.

It stemmed from a recent incident in which county officials said the burden was on the city to purchase right-of-way for a portion of the E. College Avenue extension located within the corporate limits.

Auto Crash Injures Pair

Car Misses Curve, Hits Gasoline Pumps
At Little Chute

LITTLE CHUTE — Two persons were injured in a one-car crash with damage estimated at more than $1,000 at Madison Street and Lincoln Avenue about 12:05 a.m. Sunday.

Police said a car driven by Larry Klarner, 18, 403 E. Third St., Kimberly, was going north on Madison when it failed to make a curve, went 92 feet over the curb hitting a parked car owned by Charles Stadler, 1227 E. Garfield St. and then traveled another 46 feet striking gasoline pumps at a service station.

Stadler's car was parked at the station. Klarner suffered lacerations to the forehead, nose and upper lip and a passenger Charlette Verstegen, 18, 1124 LaFollette St., suffered lacerations to the right lower leg and bruises to the right arm.

Both were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital in Larry's ambulance.

City Investment Interest To Soar to Record High

An Increase of $126,788 Over Last Year

Appleton City Treas. Ray L. Feuerstein announced last week that interest earned on city investments in 1966 will soar to $355,615 by the end of this month, due largely to an anticipated $171,875 collected on the Appleton High School-East building fund.

This year's net interest collections, will show an increase of approximately $126,788 over last year when $228,827 interest was collected, Feuerstein said. In a report to council during October's budget hearings, Feuerstein said, "If you have watched interest rates, you know that they have been going up through the entire year with the tight money situation being given as the main reason."

Rates Checked
"At the beginning of this year when most of the investments were made, I received an interest rate of 4 1/2 per cent," the city treasurer said. "Any holdover or new investments will be checked for rates at the beginning of next year."

Most of the investments listed are time deposits. Local banks participate in the city's investment program and checking account activities. The large sum earned on the AHS-East building fund investment is placed in a separate account and used to reduce the tax levy for school bond indebtedness, Feuerstein said.

General Fund Credit
All other interest earned is credited to the general fund with the exception of special accounts such as police and firemen's pension funds and the Peabody Trust Fund.

The largest single amount invested is $2.2 million in the new high school account. An anticipated $97,000 interest will be earned on the sum by the end of the year. Bond issue proceeds on the Turn to Page 3, Col. 6

Grant Key To Pipeline, City Told

Unless a federal grant is forthcoming soon, Appleton will have to abandon its plans indefinitely for a Lake Winnebago pipeline, it was learned today.

The conclusion was one drawn from a meeting at city hall last week between city officials, representatives of the Appleton Water Commission and the city's financial consultants.

Two Chicago engineering firms have been preparing plans and specifications for a proposed water plant addition and the pipeline to the lake — the total project estimated to cost about $4.5 million.

Sought Grant

Several months ago the city applied for a $13 million federal grant. Last month U.S. Sen. Gaylord Nelson and Rep. John Byrnes said the city's application had been processed through the regional Housing and Urban Development Department (HUD) office at Chicago and was awaiting final action in Washington.

Last week's meeting was arranged by Mayor George Buckley after members of the Water Commission criticized the city administration for not moving faster on the proposed project.

Water commissioners said then they saw no reason why the city could not proceed on its own if a federal grant was not forthcoming, pointing out that revenue bonds would have to be issued for the multi-million dollar project even if federal aid is available.

Money Problems

However, Lyle Olson and Homer Dodge, financial consultants with T G Evenson and Co., Minneapolis, informed local officials Appleton would have financial problems if it attempted to sell a $4.5 million revenue bond issue.

They pointed out that when the Appleton Water Commission floated a bond issue for its last water plant expansion, the authorizing resolution contained a restriction that no further bonded indebtedness be incurred until all outstanding bonds were paid up.

There are about $300,000 in bonds outstanding. To solve the problem, it would be necessary to locate holders of those revenue bonds which consultants say is an almost impossible task. But they reportedly agreed to start working on it.

Unless the $300,000 in bonds are paid off, Appleton would have to issue so-called second mortgage bonds which would

Yuletide Scrooges Steal Bulbs, Dim Season's Joy

Christmas season has arrived and so have the "bulb snatchers."

Appleton police are experiencing their traditional problems with youths stealing bulbs and other items from outdoor Christmas displays.

More than 200 bulbs and lights were reported stolen since Sunday morning, police said today. The bulb snatching reports began coming in when residents started arranging outdoor displays about two weeks ago.

A woman reported a wreath missing from her door and this morning, an Appleton man said an outdoor spotlight was stolen from his front yard Sunday night.

Often, complete sets of lights are taken. Other times, the bulbs are taken out of strings of lights on shrubbery and trees. One resident reported 53 bulbs missing from his display.

Three boys, two 13 years old and the other, 14, were apprehended by police after they stole several lights Sunday. They were referred to juvenile authorities.

Kept on Ice Musketeer Gets His Deer

Charles Pottenger, 32 West Court, got his six point buck back late this afternoon.

And Duane G. Ellis, 22, 521 N. Vine St., who stole the deer from Pottenger Nov. 19, this morning began serving a five months jail sentence.

Pottenger shot the buck in the Town of Bovina Nov. 19, using a musket from his gun collection. He dragged the deer halfway out of the woods when he was summoned to aid a companion who also had shot a deer.

Remove Tag
When he returned, he found two men had removed his tag from the deer's leg, and inserted their own. They were dragging the animal toward their car. Pottenger obtained their back tag numbers and the license number of their car and notified wardens who found the deer in an Appleton youth's garage.

13 DAYS TILL CHRISTMAS

Elderly React to Kellett Proposal

OSHKOSH — "Health we'd be glad to have, but we're not anxious to be equated with welfare," a spokesman for the active Association of Retired Persons said last week.

The reference was to the Kellett committee's recommendation that the State Commission on Aging be made a part of the Department of Health and Welfare.

The subject was one which the Winnebago ARP Chapter plans to discuss when the commission holds a regional conference here May 3 to gather grass root reaction to commission programs.

Some 60 members of the ARP Chapter have decided views of retirement programs, according to Miss Oranda Bangsberg, the chapter's corresponding secretary. She said the national organization has been working for a decade to see senior citizens recognized as a self-respecting group, shouldering full responsibilities as part of the community.

She predicted that ARP will be well represented at the commission conference here.

"We are not second rate citizens," Miss Bangsberg says of the retired. "What we need is opportunity for service." She said ARP is most interested in community programs geared to helping the retired take care of themselves such as the recently started "meals on wheels" project here.

Also expected to reflect community interest in the commission are members of the Golden Age Club, an organization largely interested in recreation for the elderly.

Commission activities since organization in 1962 have been concentrated on needs indicated by a series of 24 hearings conducted around the state that year. It has publicized Medicare needs, pushed for homestead tax relief, helped set up local commissions on aging and community action programs.

William Fries, director of the Social Security office here, said the commission has assisted developers and community housing authorities in obtaining federal grants to provide housing for the elderly and backed efforts to get Wisconsin county governments to eliminate ceilings on Old Age Assistance allotments.

Car Smashes Into Menasha Filling Station

MENASHA — A teen-age driver escaped unhurt Saturday night, according to police, after the car he was driving roared out of control and swerved in a wide arc from a service station driveway, into the street and onto the apron of an adjoining service station and smashed into the building.

Officers reported Mark L. Bubltz, 16, 650 Appleton Road, drove from the Erickson Service Station at the corner of First and Racine Streets and lost control of the auto, which veered in a left-hand arc into the front of Terrell's Standard Service Station next door, on the Broad and Racine street corner.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,000 and to the service station door and wall at $350.

The owner of the auto was listed as Walter P. Wessenberg, 1115 Hewitt St., Neenah. The accident was reported at 10:25 p.m.

'Death of a President'

Kennedys Reportedly Regret Backing Book

CHICAGO (AP) — A book commissioned by the family of John F. Kennedy to describe the aftermath of his assassination has aroused their anger, the Chicago Daily News says.

The family "is engaged in a strange and bitter struggle to delete" Mrs. Kennedy's recollections from "The Death of a President" written by William Manchester, according to Peter Lisagor, Daily News Washington bureau chief.

Lisagor quoted one person who had read the manuscript as saying, "Jackie now regrets having poured out her soul to Manchester as if he were a psychiatrist." Manchester was selected by the Kennedys to write the book.

The Daily News story said "The manuscript is understood to contain hitherto unpublished material involving President Johnson and the Kennedys. These details are likely to increase existing tension between Mr. Johnson and the Kennedy clan."

The book is to be published by Harper & Row and serialized in four installments in Look magazine starting Jan. 10.

Former Ambassador Says Soviet-U. S. War Will Not Occur

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Foy D. Kohler, former U.S. ambassador in Moscow, says the Soviet Union would never go to war with the United States because of China.

The Soviet-Chinese split is a national conflict, he told a conference of the Florida Department of the American Legion Sunday.

"There is a built-in antipathy in the Russians against the Chinese," Kohler said. "I made a speech in 1961 saying it was unthinkable that long-range

Appleton Man Fractures Jaw In Calumet Crash

CHILTON — Jerome P. Short, 54, 613 W. Packard St., Appleton was taken to Calumet Memorial Hospital suffering from facial cuts and a fractured jaw after an accident that demolished his car about 4:45 p.m. Saturday.

The one-car crash occurred about seven miles of here on State 55 and County Trunk F. Short told Calumet County police he was traveling west on F when his brakes failed on a hill causing the car to swerve across the highway and strike a utility pole and a sign at the Lakeview Motel.

Short is reported in satisfactory condition by a hospital spokesman.

Kimberly Youth Is Hurt In Accident

Russell R. Robley, 18, 1581 N. Railroad St., Kimberly, suffered a forehead injury at 12:25 a.m. today when his car left Holland Road at Outagamie County and went into a ditch.

Outagamie County police, who are still investigating the accident, said Robley was southbound on Holland Road when he crossed the county highway and went into the ditch.

Miss Drummy is now executive director of the New York based National Center for Education in Politics. She has a bachelor's degree in political science from the University of Wisconsin and has completed three years of graduate study in public administration and government at New York University.

Rietz, who has been Sixth District GOP publicity chairman and state YGOP publicity chairman, was field director for the Steiger for Congress committee during the recent congressional campaign.

His duties with Steiger in Washington will include press relations, drafting legislation and aiding municipalities with federal grant requests.

Mulligan is a former reporter for the Oshkosh Daily Northwestern and was Sixth District YGOP chairman in 1965. This year, he was named one of the 10 outstanding Wisconsin Young Republicans. A schedule of regular office hours is being planned by Mulligan in Oshkosh to assist constituents.

Report Due on School Lunch Time Supervision

MENASHA — A report on the progress of negotiations in the matter of relieving instructors from supervising the hot lunch program in the Menasha public schools will be of major interest at 7 p.m. today when the board of education holds its regular monthly meeting.

Since Aug. 29 the possibility of having persons other than teachers supervise lunch hours at the elementary schools, the junior high school and senior high school has been under study by the board's personnel committee, members of Menasha Teachers Union, Local 1166, AFL-CIO, and school principals. Dems Study 'United Fund' For Campaigns

Party Would Head Appeal, Dole Out Money to Aspirants

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A "United Fund" method of financing the Wisconsin Democratic Party and its candidates may be proposed by the Democratic state committee to make its budget management more efficient and fund-raising more fruitful.

The plan was filed here during the weekend by Assemblyman Frank Nikolay, Clark County, retiring Democratic majority leader in the state assembly, who said it is the only means through which the party will achieve its desired stature as the vehicle for liberal action in Wisconsin.

Chairman Responds

Chairman Louis Hanson responded enthusiastically, reporting that the number and variety of individual candidate fund-raising dinners and other financing devices have severely handicapped the party's own fund-raising efforts in recent years.

He said that in 1965 when Lt. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey and Sen. William Proxmire sponsored money-raising dinners with the Kennedy brothers as speakers, they virtually smothered the official state party financing dinner, held shortly afterwards.

Under the Nikolay plan, all or virtually all, fund solicitations would be made by the party and its local agents. This group would budget according to its conception of candidate needs and prospects.

Meet Resistance

Several members of the committee said office-holders and candidates for high office, in view of the heavy financing requirements of the times, would resist such a united funding project. But Nikolay said the party could raise its financing sights to acknowledge their reasonable campaign budget requirements.

The Democratic leaders did not mention it, but the united fund scheme would follow the procedure of the Republican state organization on behalf of its endorsed candidates.

Nikolay this year, although he lost his own Clark County seat to a Republican, was the chief manager of a united Democratic legislative campaign which was hailed as the most successful the Democrats have ever operated. Some observers feel that without mutual fund raising, publicity and other mutual efforts, the Democrats would have lost more of their legislative seats in the strong Republican sweep.

Bills Being Readied

Maplewood Tax Rate Increased 14 Per Cent

MENASHA — Town of Menasha property owners on the east side of Little Lake Butte des Morts will face a 14 per cent boost in taxes next year, with most of it coming from increased school costs.

Clerk Robert Jacobs is preparing tax bills for residents in Sanitary District 4 and the area attached to the Appleton Joint School District. The tax bills for persons living on the west side of the lake won't be determined until after the public hearing and the adoption of the school budget on Dec. 19 in Neenah.

Up $3.55
The tax rate for the area attached to the Menasha Joint School District totals $28.89 per $1,000 of assessed valuation, up $3.55 from this year's $25.36.

Townsmen are only charged for school taxes and taxes for the sanitary district. General governmental expenses come from the general fund and are not charged to the property owners.

The town will pay $473,549 of the Menasha school district's 1967 expenditures. This amounts to $22.89 per $1,000, an increase of $2.55 over the present rate of $20.34.

Sanitary District 4 has added another $1 to its levy bringing its tax to $6 per $1,000. The additional dollar charge is listed for fire protection and the installation of fire hydrants. Jacobs said in many cases this increase would be offset by lower insurance premiums. Individual property owners would have to contact their insurance agents to receive the new rates.

Appleton Schools

The six pieces of property which are attached to Appleton for school purposes will pay $26.95 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. This amounts $1.12 less than this year's $28.07 rate because of general increase in the value of the land in this area. Next year the town will be charged $1,501 by the Appleton school district compared to $1,476.

Following the Neenah budget public hearing next Monday, Jacobs will prepare the tax bills for the residents living on the west side of the lake.

Appleton Man Hurt in Crash Early Sunday

Elmer L. Steffens, 29, 1002 N. Morrison St., Appleton, suffered internal injuries and cuts and bruises on his head, face and legs when his car left Outagamie County Trunk A and rolled over about 1:20 a.m. Sunday.

Steffens was taken by Ambulance to Appleton Memorial Hospital. County police said the accident occurred about a quarter mile west of State 47.

Steffens was eastbound on A when he apparently lost control of his car which skidded then rolled sustaining about $900 damage.

Appleton's Share of State Utility Tax Amounts to $232,790

Appleton received a check for $232,790 from the state today as its share of the annual public utility tax.

Treasurer Ray Feuerstein said the total was $16,000 more than last year.

And it was about $6,000 higher than anticipated in the revenue category of the 1966 city budget. Feuerstein said most of the $232,790 could be attributable to the power company here.

Auto Crashes Injure Three

Mother, Infant Hurt In Sunday Mishap at E. Wisconsin, Drew

Edwin A. Lueck, 47, 1920 Behms Court, escaped with a sprained and cut wrist when his car tipped onto its side after being struck about 8:20 a.m. today at Locust and Fourth streets.

Appleton police said Lueck was southbound on Locust when his car was struck in the right side by an eastbound car driven by Mrs. Barbara Ann Tracanna, 525 W. Fourth St. Mrs. Tracanna and her son, Todd, 4, escaped injury.

Firemen were called to wash down gasoline leaking from Lueck's auto.

Mrs. John Mayefski, 1412 S. Walden Ave., and her daughter, Lisa Ann, 1½, were taken by ambulance to Appleton Memorial Hospital after the car in which they were riding was struck at Wisconsin Avenue and Drew Street about 8:50 a.m. Sunday.

The woman suffered chest and leg injuries while the girl was cut on the mouth, police said.

The Mayefski car was southbound on Drew Street when it was struck by a car driven by Charles W. Smith, 17, route 1, Black Creek, which went through a red light while eastbound on Wisconsin Avenue.

Appleton Woman Granted Divorce

Tryouts Tonight for Center Production, 'John Brown's Body'

MENASHA — Tryouts for University of Wisconsin-Fox Valley Center's production of "John Brown's Body" begin at 7:30 p.m. today in Center room 46, according to Kenneth Anderson, director.

Tryouts will be held from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Fine Arts Theater. Community members are invited to audition for speaking or choral parts for the February production.

New Bank To Offer Two 'Firsts'

Two area banking "firsts" have been announced by the American State Bank, Appleton, which officially opened for business today. They are da interest on savings accounts and a "no-charge" personal checking account.

Savings accounts begin drawing interest the day the deposit is made. Customarily, banks have begun paying interest on the first of the month following the deposit, though in certain cases a deposit within the first 10 days became retroactive to the first day of the month.

American State Bank will credit interest on savings accounts four times a year.

The new bank's other "first" is its no-charge personal checking account, provided a minimum balance of $200 is maintained. The number of checks that may be written is unlimited.

All other standard banking services are being provided by the new financial institution, located on W. College Avenue. Chief executive officer is Leo W. Martin.

Outagamie County Judge Gustave J. Keller this morning continued a driving charge against an Appleton woman to this afternoon and ordered a $250 bond.

Carol J. Kahler, 24, 720 W. Grant St., appeared in County Court Branch 2 on a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicants. She did not enter a plea.

Outagamie County police arrested her about 1:15 a.m. today after they said she forced a squad car to the shoulder on a curve on County Trunk A in the Town of Grand Chute.

Man Snuffs Car Fire Before Trucks Arrive

Little damage resulted when a car owned by Robert Grossman, 1621 N. Clark St., caught fire in the 1300 block of N. Oneida Street about 10:40 a.m. Sunday after its engine backfired.

Appleton firemen said Grossman used a pair of coveralls to smother the carburetor fire, which was out when firemen arrived.

At 2:17 p.m. Sunday, firemen were called to Summit and Roberts streets to extinguish a grass fire.

Three soloists for the Little Chute St. John High School, music program, "Sounds of Christmas," rehearsal for the event. Joanne Van Wymeren sounds the note on the piano as William Koehne and Linda Vosters look on. Performances are scheduled at 8:15 p.m. Sunday and 8 p.m. Dec. 20 in the school auditorium.

Handel's Classic

Brilliant, Perhaps Final, 'Messiah' Opens Lawrence Christmas Season

By MARGUERITE SCHUMANN
Of Lawrence University
If the projected 1967-68 academic calendar for Lawrence University comes to pass, this last weekend's double performance of "The Messiah" by G. F. Handel may well be the last hearing of the Christmas classic on the stage of Memorial Chapel.

The new calendar calls for an early September start and a holiday dismissal beginning shortly after Thanksgiving, which would effectively put the Lawrence Choral Society out of business for the Yuletide season, but take heart, Messiah-lovers, the Lawrence students are even now busily protesting the new calendar.

If protests fail, however, and this pair of performances does indeed turn out to be the last, their historical significance heightens the very real religious and musical meaning "The Messiah" has brought to the Advent season in Appleton for many years, more than 50 by the calendar, but 40 by actual performance count.

Logistical Genius
LaVahn Maesch's dynamic concepts of the ageless music and his sensitive direction made this a lustrous, particularly exciting Messiah. He had (with a certain logistical genius) assembled more than 225 bodies on the chapel stage — chorists, full orchestra, four soloists, harpsichord and organ players plus a couple of page-turners — to the point where it seemed prudent to withdraw a little from the multitudes onto a sort of nautical bow pulpit protruding from the stage. From this nervous perch he proceeded to make musical magic, and elicited standing ovations from both the house of 1,100 on Saturday and the capacity crowd on Sunday.

The great virtue of an undergraduate chorus is its fresh, pure sound, eternally renewed by each successive collegiate generation. This unspoiled style, innocent of vibrato, is enormously effective in most florid baroque music, and the chorus revealed its way through such ornamented choruses as "He Shall Purity," "For Unto Us," "His Yoke is Easy," and "He Trusted In God" in high style. Yet Maesch can demand, and get, a compassionate depth and warmth from his young voices. As long as "The Messiah" has been given in Appleton, the chorus has been the star of the show, and this was no exception.

Handel's demands on his soloists are just plain hard. Many of the runs are instrumental, not vocal. They demand barrelsful of breath, the vocal cords of a canary and the tonal size of a Valkyrie. The composer has further exhibited a marvelous lack of psychological consideration in arranging the arias. The tenor soloist comes onto the stage well warmed up, sings his opening aria, and relapses into silence for 70 minutes. The soprano comes out, raring to sing, and doesn't have to open her mouth for 50 minutes.

Soloists Capable
In spite of the pitfalls of the page, the soloists for the two performances acquitted themselves handsomely. There was a change in team between Saturday and Sunday — the first night featured the home squad, while the second featured the visitors.

Appearing in both performances were soprano Mari Taniguchi of the Lawrence faculty and one of her most able pupils, baritone Dale Duesing. It was a proud occasion for the Taniguchi studio, for it gave a handsome report of the dynamic soprano's ability to produce high-level singing in herself and others. She was in brilliant, flexible voice for that soprano-killer "Rejoice Greatly," while Duesing sang like an old pro — mellifluously, commandingly and intelligently. The baritone solos are full of sound and fury; with Miss Taniguchi's taste and Duesing's voice they turn into music, not gymnastics.

Saturday's contralto was Mrs. Richard Stowe, who has a delightful firm, fresh voice and a warmly sympathetic approach. Her stately demeanor was the more remarkable because she had ten days to prepare the role. On Sunday, Ruth Slater from Chicago was heard in her 5th Lawrence performance. She is a polished professional in all that she does.

Fine Accompanying
Lawrence was fortunate to find a pair of such competent tenors as Karl Brock on Satur-

new school this year amounted to $5 million. Feuerstein said $300,000 was placed in checking accounts. The $4.7 million balance was invested Jan. 13 and to date has collected $49,575 interest. Another $122,300 will be forthcoming by January, according to the treasurer's report, raising the school building fund total interest earned to $171,875.

Invested Balance
There remains invested a $2.8 million balance on the bond issue which is still earning interest. The balance in checking accounts totals $65,813.

Other investments, totaling 26 separate accounts, range from $5,000 for police pensions to three investments of $1 on general fund accounts.

The Soldiers Square Parking Ramp account, with $800,000 invested, will draw $11,440 interest by the end of 1966.

This year's total city interest earnings far exceed any previous years' total, Feuerstein said. The amount has increased steadily year-by-year.

Increased investments coupled with constantly rising interest rates are causing the upward trend.

Within the past 15 years, the city treasurer noted, interest rates have climbed from less than 1 per cent to their present 4.6 per cent.

by Miriam Clapp Duncan on the harpsichord and John Hall on the organ and there were some thrilling trumpet sounds out of a freshman in the back row of the orchestra.

The foregoing is not to suggest that Lawrence's 40th Messiah was completely without flaw. With 225 persons in the act, there are always some bobbles somewhere, and even some of the hired soloists were not impeccable in such a basic skill as pitch. But a couple of human aberrations do not detract from genuine communal brilliance.

Hope Dim for Pipeline Without Federal Aid put the city in the position of having to pay a much higher interest rate than practical at this time.

Disappointing News

The news, while disappointing, reportedly cleared the air between the water commission and city hall. Robert DeLand, commission chairman, and Dr. William Gallaher, plant superintendent, attended the session as did Mayor Buckley and Finance Director Henry Schreve.

Heavy emphasis was placed on the city obtaining the federal grant when the Minneapolis consultants appraised the situation.

They said without federal funds, the city would have other alternatives to cope with the serious water problem existing here in recent years. But Appleton would have to pay a financial penalty, they indicated.

It was learned that as a last resort, the city could proceed with bonding for the water plant addition which would increase the daily pumpage maximum now short of the 12 million figure.

Fox River Supply

However, Appleton would continue to get its water supply from the heavily polluted Fox River, which the common council has said should be abandoned as a water source.

Based on last summer's experience, the city's water production has to be increased to meet community demands.

The general feeling is that if a choice has to be made on the basis of available funds and priority — the plant addition will have to come first, followed by a pipeline to the lake at some future date.

Kaukauna Pair Hurt as Car Hits Utility Poles

KAUKAUNA — Kenneth Bay Jr., 27, 134 Doty St., suffered head cuts and bruises, his wife suffered back injuries when the car in which they were riding left the road about 10:55 p.m. Sunday and struck two utility poles.

According to police, Bay was headed east on Green Bay Road when he failed to negotiate a curve, left the road, traveled about 80 feet, glanced off a pole, traveled another 61 yards and slammed against a second pole.

Bay was thrown from the car. Both he and his wife were taken to Kaukauna Community Hospital in the city ambulance.

Nancy Richey Recommended for Second Spot

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Billie Jean King of Alhambra, Calif., is the nation's No. 1 woman tennis player, according to the recommendation made Saturday by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association ranking committee.

The rankings must be approved by the USLTA at its annual meeting in February.

Mrs. King, winner of the Wimbledon championship was placed above Nancy Richey of Dallas, with whom she shared top ranking last year.

The biggest gain was made by little Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, who jumped from 11th to third. The 18-year-old Miss Casals scored two victories over Mrs. King, the former Billie Jean Moffitt, and put up the strongest fight in the U.S. Nationals at Forest Hills against the winner, Maria Bueno.

Other new additions to the top 10 in women's ranking are Peaches Bartkowicz of Hamtramck, Mich., from 20th to fifth, Stephanie De Fina of Hollywood, Fla., from 15th to ninth, and Peachy Kellmeyer of Charleston, W. Va., 14th to 10th.

Miss Casals and Mrs. King were placed No. 1 in women's doubles.

Detroit 4, Toronto 1
Chicago 2, Boston 2 tie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Just in case Notre Dame and Michigan State are interested, there's no question among New York Ranger fans today about who's No. 1.

Midway through the third period of New York's 4-2 victory over Montreal Sunday night, the balcony fans at Madison Square Garden started chanting "We're No. 1."

And about an hour later, after Detroit had whipped Toronto 4-1 and Boston had battled back to tie Chicago 2-2, the Rangers were indeed, No. 1.

The Rangers have lost just two games in the last 15 and have shot from last place to the top of the league. They are one point ahead of the Black Hawks and Maple Leafs, who are tied for second.

Fox Lutheran JVs Score 2 Wins

The Fox Valley Lutheran junior varsity cagers scored twin weekend victories. The Junior Foxes ripped Racine Lutheran, 47-16, at home and outscored Wayland in a road tilt, 46-37.

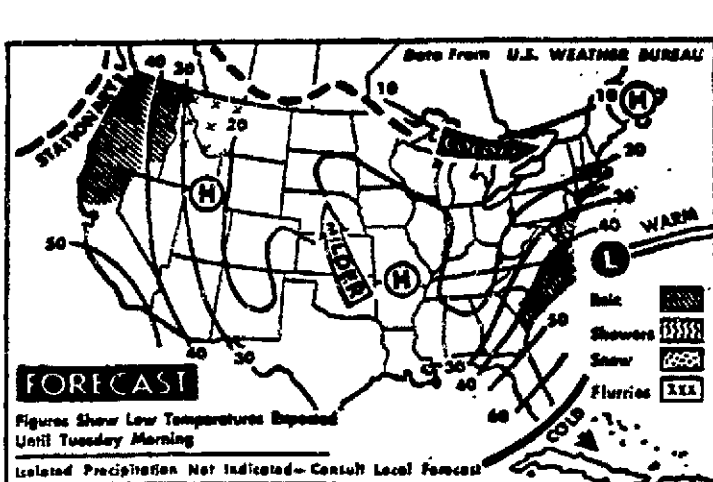

Beck Goldbeck led the Foxes' rout of Racine with 10 points as 11 FVL players broke into the scoring column.

Wayland pulled into a 27-27 tie at the third quarter mark, but couldn't handle FVL's half-court press in the final quarter. Goldbeck led all scorers again with 18 points, and Scott Wood hit 14.

Even Sayers Has Bad Time of It in Humiliating Defeat
CHICAGO (AP) — Gale Sayers' punt 57 yards for another touch-down. Those are examples of the way the once-mighty Bears played.

With the game apparently out of reach, the Bears began experimenting. Larry Rakestraw went in at quarterback late in the first half for his National Football League debut after three years on the taxi squad. He was given the kind of protection one might expect from a high school team playing the Green Bay Packers. Things got lost which was humiliating. Al-so bad in the second half that in Randolph intercepted an aging Bill Wade, bad knee and Rudy Bukich pass and raced 94 yards for one touchdown.

Jimmy Jones caught a pass drive but that came after the and then, while he was dancing 49ers led 41-7 and was scored to avoid tacklers, fumbled with- by Sayers.

to a man touching him and Kermit Alexander picked up the ball and ran 14 yards for an easy 49ers score.

Alexander later returned a for the season.

$114,000 in Gas Firm's Tax Back in Valley

Kaukauna's Share Of $20,228 Is Greatest in Area

More than $114,000 in Wisconsin Gas Co. property tax payments for 1966 will be split between Outagamie, Calumet and Waupaca Counties and 30 municipalities within the counties' boundaries.

The taxes, which are collected by the state, were paid earlier this month, gas company officials announced. The state directly assesses utility taxes on company property, breaking down the total for distribution to local governing bodies.

A total of $69,764 will be received by Outagamie County and its towns, villages and cities. Waupaca County governmental units will receive a total of $43,412 while $832 will be shared between Calumet County and the Town of Harrison.

Outagamie County, as a single unit, will receive $16,390. Within the county, the City of Kaukauna is listed for $20,228. Other cities listed are Seymour, $3,413 and New London, $2,096.

Village Shares
Villages in Outagamie County and their shares of the utility tax are Combined Locks, $7,847; Kimberly, $5,819; Little Chute, $5,796; Hortonville, $2,150, and Bear Creek, $1,033.

Towns receiving payments are: Buchanan, $2,315; Vandenberg, $810; Hortonville, $716; Osborn, $575; Freedom, $464; Seymour, $63; Kaukauna, $38, and Deer Creek, $3.

In Waupaca County, cities' shares are New London, $3,420; Clintonville, $8,227; Waupaca, $7,338, and Weyauwega, $4,170. The Village of Embarrass will get $782.

A listing of towns in Waupaca County shows Mukwa, $1,097; Larrabee, $837; Waupaca, $515; Roylton, $217; Bear Creek, $215; Weyauwega, $177; Mattoon, $165, and Farmington, $47.

Only Calumet Payments
The Town of Harrison is the only local government in Calumet County to receive a payment. It will be $637. The county itself will receive $185.

The firm announced total payments of $4,451,670 in the state.

The tax money, by statute, is divided into three categories. The largest share, 63.5 per cent, is returned to communities where the property is located. Counties receive 19.5 per cent and the state retains 17 per cent.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

CLOSING TIME

Want ads accepted to 4:00 p.m. the day before day of publication. For Monday-Before noon Saturday. For Sunday-Before 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

CORRECTIONS OR CANCELLATIONS

Want ad corrections or cancellations accepted to 4:30 p.m. for the same day publication. For Sunday-Before 10:30 a.m. Saturday.

IMPORTANT

Composition costs will be charged, if an order is cancelled before publication. After an ad is ordered, it cannot be changed before one publication. When cancelling an ad, demand a "full number." No claim is recognized on ads cancelled without it. The number of days an ad is published determines the rate of such ads.

ADJUSTMENTS

The Post-Crescent assumes no responsibility for verbal statements in conflict with its established rules, policies or rates. All claims for adjustments or refunds must be made within 7 days after expiration of ad. Errors, not the fault of the advertiser, which make the advertisement less valuable, should be corrected the first day, when one extra corrected insertion will be made without charge. The Post-Crescent assumes no responsibility for error after the first insertion.

NOTICE

The Post-Crescent is exercising all precautions to avoid publishing any fraudulent or misleading advertising. However, if any ad appearing in the classified columns of the Post-Crescent can be proven fraudulent or misleading, we would appreciate your informing us immediately.

B52s Strike at Reds Believed Reaching Drive

Strategic Pass
In N. Vietnam

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — Striking at Communist forces believed reaching another drive south, U.S. B52 Stratofortresses bombed the Mu Gia Pass in North Vietnam today and the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam Sunday.

The giant eight-engine bombers, each carrying up to 27 tons of bombs, struck at a mile-long stretch of the mountain pass through which the North Vietnamese filter into Laos and down to South Vietnam.

The B52s attacked Communist concentrations Sunday in the demilitarized zone seven miles north of the U.S. Marine stronghold known as the Rockpile.

The attack on the Mu Gia Pass was the eighth B52 raid on North Vietnam and the first since Oct. 10. The B52s had not hit the demilitarized zone in almost two months, although other U.S. planes have pounded it repeatedly.

Strength at 365,700

In other developments:
—Some 2,000 more American combat infantrymen arrived in Vietnam to bolster U.S. strength here to 365,700 men.

—Two warships of the Thai navy arrived in Saigon to add to Thailand's contribution to the allied side. Thailand previously sent two C123 transport planes.

—U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge left by plane for the United States to spend the Christmas holidays with his family. Lodge has scoffed at speculation that he would not return.

—A U.S. Navy spokesman said some North Vietnamese MIG pilots duck across the border of Red China to escape pursuit by American jet fighters.

In 'Some Cases'

"Certainly I am positive that in some cases, when they decide to retreat, they go north," the spokesman said. He added, however, that he had no information that the North Vietnamese are using bases in China.

Viet Nam Is Vietnam

A survey by The Associated Press shows that "Vietnam," as one word, is the most common usage for the name of the Southeast Asian country, and this form is being adopted effective today by the AP and The Post-Crescent.

There are three ways to spell the country's name, and none is really wrong.

The Saigon government on its postage stamps uses a hyphenated form: Viet-Nam. This is also used at the United Nations.

The two-word form, Viet Nam, is used on many maps including those of the National Geographic Society.

However, Vietnam as one word is most commonly used in reference books. In its favor, also, is the derivative word "Vietnamese," used as both adjective and noun and rarely appearing as two words although it is sometimes hyphenated.

High Court Affirms Conviction of Hoffa

Top Teamster Still Has Legal Steps to Take

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court upheld today the 1964 conviction of James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, on jury tampering charges.

"The use of secret informers is not per se unconstitutional," Justice Potter Stewart said in delivering the court's divided decision.

In his appeal Hoffa claimed his rights were violated by use of a paid government informer to gather information against him.

Stewart swept aside this and other of the union leader's constitutional claims in affirming his conviction.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The death of a five-year-old rural Merrill girl raised Wisconsin's weekend fatality toll to six and the state's tragic 1966 highway death count to 1,040.

This figure compares with 971 on this date last year and 1,016 at this time in 1964 when a record 1,059 persons died in Wisconsin traffic accidents.

Condition 'Good' For Eisenhower

Byrnes Undecided On Whether to Ask For Increase in Tax

Needed, but Doesn't Say How

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John W. Byrnes, R - Wis., said today he wants to obtain a clear picture of the fiscal situation before he decides his own position on a tax increase if one is requested by President Johnson.

The senior Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee, which initiates all tax legislation, said he will not "out of hand" oppose any increase in taxes that might be requested.

"There is no question," he said in an interview, "that there will have to be a substantial cut from the current expenditure levels or there will be a tremendous deficit — or a substantial tax increase."

Byrnes said he will have to see more official figures and what the Johnson administration contemplates before he makes up his own mind about increase in income taxes.

At the same time, Byrnes said he would not speculate on whether Johnson will ask the 90th Congress, which convenes Jan. 10, to increase taxes.

"So far there has been nothing but confusion out of the White House in regard to taxes," he added.

"That," he said, "is regrettable because it leads to uncertainty in the business community. People do not know how to plan."

If the same trend of spending continues, Byrnes said, there will be a deficit of about $10 billion by the end of the present fiscal year next June 30.

It would not be realistic, he said, to think that Congress can

Gall Bladder Removed From Former President In 1½-Hour Operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's condition was reported as "good" by Walter Reed Army Hospital today following removal of his gall bladder.

The report on the 76-year-old Eisenhower's condition was made to newsmen at 11 a.m., about three-quarters of an hour after the surgery had been completed.

According to Maj. James Sonneborn of the hospital's public information staff:

"The operation has been completed and Gen. Eisenhower was back in his room at Ward 8 of the hospital at 10:05 a.m.," he said.

There was no immediate word on how long the surgery itself lasted. But it had previously been reported that it began promptly at 8 a.m. as scheduled.

Doctors had said prior to the operation that it was expected it would take "about an hour and a half."

After giving the announcement, Sonneborn was asked, "How does he feel?"

Sonneborn said he had no information on that at the moment, but that he expected to get it momentarily.

The announcement was the first since shortly after the surgery began.

A team of surgeons headed by Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the Army's surgeon general, was at the operating table. The head nurse with the task of handing instruments to the surgeons was Maj. Hazel Outlaw of the Army Nurse Corps.

The operation was expected to last an hour and a half.

Not in Prisoner Exchange

U.S. to Send Wounded N. Vietnamese Home

MADRID (AP) — U.S. presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman said Sunday night that the United States plans to send some sick or wounded North Vietnamese prisoners of war home.

Harriman indicated that the United States would like to have a prisoner exchange, but that the U.S. plan was not conditional on any reciprocal action from Hanoi.

He did not say when the repatriation would be done nor the number involved. The release, he said, would be undertaken through the International Red Cross and not by direct approach to North Vietnam.

Harriman, who arrived Sunday from Algeria, told newsmen of the plan in conversation during a reception at the U.S. Embassy. He is on a tour of various nations to explain the U.S. position on Vietnam and the decisions of the recent Manila conference.

The only North Vietnamese known to be held by the United States are 19 seamen pulled from the Gulf of Tonkin when their torpedo boats were sunk. The Saigon government has custody of most North Vietnamese captured in fighting, including nearly 600 seized by U.S. units. Premier Nguyen Cao Ky has been said to be willing to "offer an uneven exchange" for U.S. airmen held in the north.

As of mid-October, official U.S. figures listed 334 Americans as missing in action, with 78 of those confirmed captured in the north and south.

Thus far attempts to arrange a prisoner exchange with North Vietnam have been unsuccessful.

Weather Remains Cold but Clear

Five Day Forecast — Tuesday through Saturday temperatures expected to average near normal highs of 22 to 29 and lows of 13 to 18. A little warmer Tuesday with little variation the rest of the week. Best chance of rain or snow about mid-week.

Road Report — All Wisconsin roads are clear.

Appleton — Observations over the past 24 hours show high, 28 degrees; low, 16. Barometer at 10:30 a.m. was 30.50 and steady. Winds southwest at 9 miles per hour. Relative humidity, 72; dew point, 16. Skies cloudy. No precipitation.

Sun sets at 4:14 p.m., rises Tuesday at 7:20 a.m. Moon sets at 4:32 p.m. Saturn is now about 866 million miles from the Earth.

Annual Christmas Shows

BY JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP) — As Christmas draws near a different sort of buildup is taking place in Vietnam. It's an entertainment escalation, and the "old soldiers" heading for the combat zone include Bob Hope, Martha Raye, Frances Langford, Anita Bryant and Johnny Grant.

Hope, who ought to rate as many hash marks as a 30-year sergeant, is making his 15th Christmas tour. "You should have seen me at Appomattox," he said. "I was a smash there."

Phyllis Diller, making her first trip to Vietnam as a member of the Hope entourage, said she is helping Lady Bird Johnson's "Keep America Beautiful" campaign by leaving the country. She is taking along a half-million pieces of bubble gum, which ought to set a few jaws to wagging.

The USO shows lined up for Vietnam over the holidays include the Bob Hope show, Martha Raye, Frances Langford, and the Clara Ward Singers, a Gospel group.

Disc jockey Johnny Grant, making his 29th overseas tour, is taking along actresses Tippi Hedren and Diane McBain to cheer up servicemen from Saigon to Da Nang. "The soldiers call me the GI Santa Claus who brings them pretty girls," Grant said.

Other troupes — including two college groups — will entertain American servicemen in Europe, the Pacific, Caribbean, Alaska, and Greenland.

Hope leaves Hollywood this Friday for two weeks, but his exact itinerary overseas is a military secret. The American high command in Vietnam figures the Communists wouldn't pass up an opportunity to ambush the entertainers if they knew their schedule.

Despite any personal qualms some entertainers may have about American involvement in Vietnam, there have been no difficulties recruiting performers for the tours.

"We offer the performers the motivation that a lot of young Americans are over there and they need help,

Jurgensen Sparks Redskins To 34-31 Upset Over Dallas

Cowboys Still Need Victory Or Tie for Championship In NFL's Eastern Division

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Sonny Jurgensen beat Dallas for the third time in six efforts Sunday and it's making the Washington Redskins quarterback persona non grata.

Not that the Dallas Cowboys don't admire and respect Jurgensen but they'd just as soon he did his playing elsewhere.

He had to pick the day when Dallas figured on sacking up the Eastern Conference title in the National Football League. Everything was all set for it.

St. Louis had lost 16-10 to Atlanta and all the Cowboys had to do was beat or tie Washington and they were in—ready to play Green Bay for the league title Jan. 1.

with time-consuming line plunges by his backs.

With only eight seconds left, Charley Gogolak, who kicks soccer style, booted the 29-yard field goal that beat the Cowboys 34-31 and delayed, at least, Dallas' ascension to the Eastern Conference crown.

The Cowboys just didn't have enough time to do anything about it.

They can win it without turning a hand should St. Louis lose to Cleveland Saturday. But even if St. Louis wins, Dallas could then take the title with a victory or tie with New York at New York next Sunday.

But the Cowboys still would consider Jurgensen a pain in the neck.

Get in Position
But Jurgensen twice passed for touchdowns to keep the Redskins tied with Dallas, then he maneuvered around and got the ball in position for a field goal,

Nobis Anchors Rugged Defense

Falcons Upset Cards, To Gain Third Win In Last Four Games

By JOE ZELLNER
ATLANTA (AP)—The last time Tommy Nobis met Johnny Roland on a football field, they were both in high school.

"I weighed about 175, and he must have weighed about 205 or 210 then," Nobis said. "I can remember him pulling me into the end zone one time. They beat us. I don't remember the score, but I think it was in the state quarter-finals."

That meeting came when Nobis played at San Antonio and Roland was at Corpus Christi, both in Texas.

Roland and Nobis, both leading candidates for National Football League rookie honors, met again on the field Sunday, but this time Nobis weighed 235 and was on the winning team as the Atlanta Falcons downed St. Louis 16-10. And, he was not pulled into the end zone by anyone.

Nobis made several key tackles as a mainstay in the Falcon defense which boosted Atlanta to its second straight victory and third triumph of the season to tie the record for an expansion team.

Only Cardinal Weapon
Roland was the only Cardinal back effective against the inspired Falcon defense. He carried 12 times for 61 yards and completed two passes from his halfback slot for another 35 yards.

"It wasn't a personal duel to me," Nobis said. "If you start these other things, it can mess you up. I think Johnny is a fine football player... I don't consider this my best effort today, but over-all for the team, it was a great defensive effort."

Roland, disappointed by his team's loss, said, "I think Nobis is a great athlete. He will improve, but so will I."

Another Cardinal, flanker Billy Gambrell, commented, "That Nobis is great. He caught me from behind once on the sideline, and that is embarrassing."

Atlanta's defensive unit held the Cardinals to three points until the final minutes of play while the Falcon offense turned St. Louis miscues into points.

The Falcons' Ralph Heck pounced on a bouncing punt after a Cardinal had touched it to give Atlanta possession on the St. Louis 30 in the first quarter.

Wheelwright Scores
A few plays later, Randy Johnson tossed a short pass to Ernie Wheelwright, who bowled over two defenders for a touchdown.

Lee Calland's interception of a pass by Cardinal quarterback Terry Nofsinger set up a 26-yard field goal by Lou Kirovac in the second quarter.

Kirovac booted a 47-yard field goal to put Atlanta in front 13-3 near halftime and added a 14-yard scoring boot in the fourth quarter.

St. Louis was held to Jim Bakken's 27-yard field goal in the second quarter until Gambrell snared a 32-yard pass from Nofsinger on the Falcon two. Nofsinger rolled around right end for the score with 1:04 left in the game.

The victory was the third in four games for Atlanta and the first at home. The Falcons' three triumphs tie the record for a first-year team, set by Minnesota in 1961. Atlanta could break the record with a victory over Pittsburgh next week.

"I said we would win the last three," Falcon Coach Norb Hecker said, "and the job is two-thirds finished."

Alexander Tallies Two TDs; Sayers Passes 1,000 Yards

By JACK STEVENSON
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Kermit Alexander, who plays defense, outshone the Chicago Bears' offensive alignment in point production and hence the San Francisco 49ers might yet win the runner-up spot in the National Football League's Western Division.

Alexander set up the first 49er touchdown with a pass interception, scored twice himself and coached a fumble to a San Francisco record pass interception return.

All this as the 49ers smothered the Bears 41-14 at Kezar Stadium Sunday.

On the fourth play after Alexander intercepted a Ruby Buckich pass at the Chicago 30, the 49ers had their first touchdown and led 10-7. That tally came on John Brodie's pass to fullback Ken Willard on a play covering 57 yards.

Then in rapid succession, Alexander scooped up a ball fumbled by Jim Jones and ran 14 to score and then returned a punt 44 for another tally.

Then came the run by Al Randall, the rookie from Iowa, which broke a 20-year-old 49er record.

Gets Up
He picked up a Bukich pass at the 49er six and fell. Then he was up and threaded his way 94 yards to score.

"I told him to get up and run," said Kermit. "It's hard for a rookie to remember you can get up and run if you fall."

Red Mack Overcome by Emotion After Division Title-Clinching Win

Post-Crescent News Service
PALO, ALTO, Calif. — The secret of the Packers' success? We could name a dozen reasons — good quarterbacking, good linebacks, good coaching and good everything — but the real secret was unfolded during the Packers' jet charter flight from Baltimore to San Francisco after their title-clinching 14-10 victory over the Colts.

This was a champagne party — not with a boisterous escape where the players doused each other with the traditional toasting stuff, but a glass-clinking, smiling, singing and downright loving celebration of a job well done.

The champagne was opened a half-hour before the huge 727 jet left Friendship Airport — and somehow 40 voices took up the tune to "He's Got the Whole World in His Hand."

The wording was rapidly changed as the singing grew louder — such as "We've got the best team in the world" and "We've got the best coach in the world."

A beaming Vince Lombardi was touched when the word "coach" boomed up front and he responded with a 3-part solo. "We've got the best players in the world, we've got the best players in the world, we've got the best players in the world."

Dinner in Omaha

The merrymaking continued and sandwiches were brought forth as a sort of prelude to dinner which was served after a refueling stop in Omaha, Neb., not quite halfway in the 2,500-mile flight.

Few of the players sat down. They crowded in the main aisle chattering like a flock of kids.

What were they talking about? You'd have to say they were talking about each other, telling each other how good they were — like Forrest Gregg, with his arm around Willie Davis, saying things like "We've been through a lot together" and "You're the greatest."

And little Red Mack... eight weeks ago he was cut by the Falcons and picked up by the Packers as insurance on Bob Long. "Today he's a champion. He was still overcome by emotion — just as he was after the game when, with tears streaming down his face, he thanked Lombardi for picking him out of nowhere. "I've been in football since I was a fifth grader and this is the first time I've ever been on a championship team," Mack boasted.

"This is the fourth pro club (the others were the Steelers, Eagles and Falcons) and I mean it when I say this is the first time I've seen 40 guys all

Nelson in Record Runback

Eagles End Cleveland Hopes With 33-21 Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—All two pass interceptions scored a pair of touchdowns to cut the Eagles' lead to 27-21. But Baker's four field goals helped the Philadelphia Eagles to an upset 33-21 victory over the Cleveland Browns Sunday, eliminating the defending National Football League Eastern Conference champions from title contention.

Nelson, a defensive back, took Lou Groza's short field goal effort with one foot in the end zone, and raced the length of the field for a touchdown that gave the Eagles a 27-7 lead on the last play of the first half.

Jimmy Nittles, a 177-pounder applied a crushing block on the 250-pound Groza to clear the way for Nelson, who broke the record of 99 held by teammate Timmy Brown, Carl Taseff, formerly of the Baltimore Colts, and Jerry Williams, one-time Los Angeles Ram.

Cleveland rallied in the second half and with the help of

Interception Stops Drive

In the third period, Ross Fichtner intercepted a Concanon pass and returned 39 yards for a touchdown to make it 27-14. Again taking advantage of an intercepted pass, Cleveland scored on a 10-yard aerial from Frank Ryan to Gary Collins to make it 27-21.

The Browns began driving again but Nate Ramsey intercepted a Ryan pass and lateraled to Joe Scappati, who returned 27 yards to the Cleveland 37. Baker then booted a 42-yard field goal Baker kicked a 30-yarder before it was over.

The victory enabled Philadelphia to deadlock Cleveland for third place in the East and kept the Birds' alive in the battle for second place and a spot in the Runnerup Bowl at Miami, Fla., in January.

Celts Break 76er Streak At 11 Games

117-103 Victory Extends Own Skein To Six in a Row

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Celtics, bidding for a ninth straight National Basketball Association title, face a do-it-yourself task and they're confident they can overtake the Philadelphia 76ers in the Eastern Division race.

The Celtics posted their sixth straight victory and snapped Philadelphia's 11-game winning streak by defeating Wilt Chamberlain & Co. for the second time in three meetings 117-103 Sunday night.

In the only other game played, the Los Angeles Lakers edged the Cincinnati Royals 119-118 on the West Coast as Jerry West scored a jump shot with 28 seconds to play. The loss was the seventh straight for the Royals.

"It's a long season and even if we had lost I wouldn't have been too upset," Boston Player-Coach Bill Russell said. "I still think we'll beat them in the long run."

The victory was the 21st in 26 games for the Celtics, but they still trail the 76ers by 3½ games. Philadelphia, which has lost to only one other club, boasts a fantastic 26-3 mark. The two rivals have seven regular season meetings left.

Hand Fracture Suffered by Timmy Brown

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Timmy Brown, the Philadelphia Eagles' star halfback, suffered a fractured left hand in Sunday's National Football League game with the Cleveland Browns and will be out for the rest of the season, a team spokesman said.

Brown suffered a "clean fracture," according to Dr. James Nixon, team doctor, and will have to wear a cast for at least six weeks.

Brown was injured while carrying the ball in the second period and had to be taken out of the game. He was examined and treated at Graduate Hospital.

Nick Eddy Signs Lion Contract

Notre Dame Star Will Receive About $250,000

DETROIT (AP)—Nick Eddy, the All-America halfback from Notre Dame, was signed by the Detroit Lions Sunday in hopes he can provide them with a breakthrough running threat.

The Lions outlined Denver of the American Football League to sign him to a National Football League contract. Eddy was redshirted one year and was drafted by both clubs last year.

No one would discuss contract terms, but the money was estimated to be around $250,000.

Eddy is 6-feet-tall and weighs 205. He compiled a 5.6 rushing average at Notre Dame in three years and caught 44 passes for 708 yards. He turned in outstanding performances on kick returns.

Eddy was named the most valuable player on Notre Dame's national championship team and finished third in the voting for the Heisman Award

Tax Assessor System to be Drafted Again

Old Idea of County Units May Eliminate Dual Process in State

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — The state Tax Department will be working up a new draft of the old idea of creating a system of county assessors in the state rather than the present system of working through local assessors in each municipality.

Tax Department Commissioner James Morgan recommended a new legislative effort in this area to Gov. Warren Knowles in a budget hearing Friday.

"Year after year a large number of elected local assessors just copy the old tax roll," Morgan said. He said using "professional assessors" at the county level could eliminate the present dual assessment process, once at the local level and again at the state level to equalize valuation throughout the state.

Tax department officials recommended to Knowles that the draft of the county assessor system be made compulsory for all units in the county.

The governor cited as a disadvantage of the present system the fact that the work is not especially attractive and therefore often results in "old, old people" filling the local posts.

The last time similar legislation was introduced was in 1961, when it failed. The new draft would be based on the 1961 draft, probably with allowances for a gradual shift into the county system.

State Tax Head Backs Local Room and Auto Levy Proposals in Hearing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Tax Commissioner James Morgan found fault Friday with the proposal of the local government committee of the Legislative Council to allow local governments to levy an earnings tax.

The earnings tax proposal was one of three advanced last week by the committee to serve as possible means to alleviate some of the pressure on local property taxes. The other two were a "wheel tax" on vehicles in the locality and a sales tax on hotel or motel rooms.

Morgan said in an executive budget hearing he did not think it was good procedure to impose an income tax at another layer of government when that form of taxation is already employed at the state and federal levels.

He also pointed out that the

Outagamie County Report

Auto Mishap Rate Constant

The total number of accidents investigated by Outagamie County traffic police during the year ending Oct. 31 was almost identical to the same period the previous year, according to the annual report of Lt. Lowell Veitch.

Police investigated 770 reportable accidents (those involving more than $100 damage) during the past year — one less than the year ending Nov. 1, 1965 — the period which had the highest total for the past five years.

Although the number of accidents remained about the same, injuries jumped from 410 in 1965 to 466 for the first 10 months, Veitch pointed out. The 1965 traffic death toll in the county (including municipalities) was 27, while the 1966 count stands at 20.

Estimated Damage

shows nearly a half million dollars, Veitch said.

As was the case last year, Veitch said, the greatest single grouping of accidents occurred between 4 and 6 p.m. The 120 accidents during that two-hour period was only 16 ahead of the second most popular time for accidents — between midnight and 2 a.m. December led the one-year period with 86 accidents, while February had the fewest accidents — 44.

County traffic police arrests totaled 792 through the first 10 months of this year. Of the total, 328 of the arrests were for speeding.

Transition Year
Veitch, in his report to county supervisors, termed the past year one of "transition and change for the Outagamie County traffic department."

He reviewed some of the major changes which included the addition of five patrolmen, the start of an instructional program for new patrolmen at the State Patrol Academy, the consolidation of the investigative and traffic bureaus under the sheriff and the change from private to county-owned squad cars — a change which Veitch said has resulted in "a very frustrating operation" at times.

Fire Destroys Car On Rural Bear Creek Farm; Barn Saved

Around the World
Voice of America will broadcast a half-hour program of the Lawrence Choir throughout the world during the holidays, with announcing done in 37 languages. Miss Taniguchi has directed the choir in Bach's "Christmas Oratorio," with baritone Dale Duesing as soloist. Carols in English, French, Russian and Catalanian also will be heard.

Full broadcasts of the Lawrence presentation of "The Messiah" by George F. Handel will be heard on four state outlets. The state station FM network will carry the two-hour oratorio at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 18; WAPL will broadcast it on the same day at 6:10 p.m. and WBEV, Beaver Dam, has not announced its schedule.

WLUK-TV will do a short tape of The Messiah, both in rehearsal and in performance.

Feature Soloists
LaVahn Maesch directs the 180-voice Choral Society in the oratorio, with the following soloists — Mari Taniguchi, soprano; Ruth Slater, contralto; Richard Knoll, tenor; and Dale Duesing, baritone.

A half-hour program of the Bach "Christmas Oratorio" as performed by the Lawrence Choir, and carillon music by John Hall will be on WBEV at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 18, and 7:30 p.m. Dec. 25.

Last Sunday WAPL presented a re-broadcast of the Lawrence

Choir's earlier program in Memorial Chapel, which combined Christmas music with the Brahms "Liebeslieder Waltzes" sung in German and the coronation scene from the opera "Boris Godunov" in Russian. Arrangements for the programs have been made by Marguerite Schumann and Robert Peterson of the Lawrence University News Bureau, with Prof. Paul Hollinger as recording supervisor.

Steiger Names Office Staff

Waupun Girl Wins Top Spot, Campaign Aides Selected

WASHINGTON — Congressman-elect William A. Steiger (R-Oshkosh) announced here Sunday that Maureen Drummy of Waupun, will serve as his administrative assistant when he takes office Jan. 10.

Miss Drummy is presently the executive director of the National Center for Education in Politics, NCEP, based in New York. NCEP is a foundation established by the late Justice Arthur T. Vanderbilt to encourage persons with academic training to take an active role in politics and government. Its programs are directed from 20 college campuses around the U.S. and from the national office in New York City. Since 1956 NCEP has supported 2,600 internships for college students and teachers of politics in the offices of governors, mayors, congressmen and other elected officials.

Miss Drummy was born in Fond du Lac, graduated from Waupun High School, and in 1959, earned her bachelor's degree in political science at the University of Wisconsin. She has completed three years of graduate study in public administration and government at New York University. She served previously as executive director of the Wisconsin League of Women Voters and was employed by the Republican National Committee in Washington, D.C.

Press Assistant
Miss Drummy will be in charge of the administration of the congressman-elect's Washington office.

Hired as press assistant is Kenneth C. Rietz, Oshkosh.

Will Sample Opinions in Brillion

STOCKBRIDGE — School officials from Brillion, Hilbert and Stockbridge last week decided to withhold determining the location of a new school until district reorganization plans have been submitted to voters in the three districts.

Meeting at Hilbert High School to discuss reorganization were administrators Gaylord Unbehauen, Brillion; Earl Anderson, Hilbert; and Paul Dobias, Stockbridge.

A plan to inform residents in each district of reorganization proposals was set up and will begin with a meeting in Brillion.

Indicate Feelings
Officials said the meetings would indicate the feelings of district residents. If the opinions expressed at the Brillion meeting are favorable, officials said, the proposal will be presented to the other districts in the same manner.

Results of a preparatory meeting held by the three administrators on Dec. 5 at the Stockbridge Public School was presented to the committee. A map study was made indicating district boundaries. Segments were drawn to point out the geographical center of the combined area.

A prepared brochure consisting of a line and staff chart, curriculum considerations and curricular offerings was distributed and explained to the members. Under the new plan 60 subjects would be offered at the secondary level with a pupil-teacher ratio of 20 to 1 or 125 to 1 full level. Curricular offerings would be geared to meet the needs of both college and non-college bound students.

During a discussion of foreign language courses, it was pointed out that it would be best to concentrate on one language

Girl Burned Seriously At Kaukauna

3-Year-Old Reaches Over Burner; Flame Ignites Pajamas

KAUKAUNA — Catherine Haanen, 3-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Haanen, 137 Grant St., suffered second and third degree burns over her entire body about 8:45 a.m. Saturday when the flannel pajamas she was wearing ignited as she reached across a burner on the kitchen range.

A sister, Mary Beth, 16 months, suffered second and third degree burns to the palm of her left hand and part of her left arm, and the father suffered first and second degree burns to both hands when he attempted to tear off the little girl's burning clothing.

The father was upstairs and the children alone in the kitchen when the fire started.

Catherine was rushed to Kaukauna Community Hospital in a city ambulance, given emergency treatment and taken immediately to the burn center at Theda Clark Hospital, Neenah.

City firemen also were called to the home, but the fire was out by the time they arrived.

Mary Beth is in Kaukauna Community Hospital.

Handel's Classic

By MARGUERITE SCHUMANN of Lawrence University

If the projected 1967-68 academic calendar for Lawrence University comes to pass, this last weekend's double performance of "The Messiah" by G. F. Handel may well be the last hearing of the Christmas classic on the stage of Memorial Chapel.

The new calendar calls for an early September start and a holiday dismissal beginning shortly after Thanksgiving, which would effectively put the Lawrence Choral Society out of business for the Yuletide season, but take heart, Messiah-lovers, the Lawrence students are even now busily protesting the new calendar.

If protests fail, however, and this pair of performances does indeed turn out to be the last, their historical significance heightens the very real religious and musical meaning "The Messiah" has brought to the Advent season in Appleton for many years, more than 50 by the calendar, but 40 by actual performance count.

Logistical Genius

LaVahn Maesch's dynamic concepts of the ageless music and his sensitive direction made this a lustrous, particularly exciting Messiah. He had (with a certain logistical genius) assembled more than 225 bodies on the chapel stage — choristers, full orchestra, four soloists, harpsichord and organ players plus a couple of page-turners — to the point where it seemed prudent to withdraw a little from the multitudes onto a sort of nautical bow pulpit protruding from the stage.

From this nervous perch he proceeded to make musical magic, and elicited standing ovations from both the house of 1,100 on Saturday and the capacity crowd on Sunday.

The great virtue of an undergraduate chorus is its fresh, pure sound, eternally renewed by each successive collegiate generation. This unspoiled style, innocent of vibrato, is enormously effective in most florid baroque music, and the chorus revealed its way through such ornamented choruses as "He Shall Purity," "For Unto Us," "His Yoke is Easy," and "He Trusted In God" in high style.

Yet Maesch can demand, and get, a compassionate depth and warmth from his young voices. As long as "The Messiah" has been given in Appleton, the chorus has been the star of the show, and this was no exception.

Handel's demands on his soloists are just plain hard. Many of the runs are instrumental, not vocal. They demand barrelsful of breath, the vocal voice is exceptionally even and listenable, was thoroughly satisfying on the second evening.

Fine accompanying was done by Miriam Clapp Duncan on the harpsichord and John Hall on the organ and there were some thrilling trumpet sounds out of a freshman in the back row of the orchestra.

The foregoing is not to suggest that Lawrence's 40th Messiah was completely without flaw. With 225 persons in the act, there are always some bobbles somewhere, and even some of the hired soloists were not impeccable in such a basic skill as pitch. But a couple of human aberrations do not detract from genuine communal brilliance.

Soloists Capable

In spite of the pitfalls of the page, the soloists for the two performances acquitted themselves handsomely. There was a change in team between Saturday and Sunday — the first night featured the home squad, while the second featured the visitors.

Appearing in both performances were soprano Mari Taniguchi of the Lawrence faculty and one of her most able pupils, baritone Dale Duesing. It was a proud occasion for the Taniguchi studio, for it gave a handsome report of the dynamic soprano's ability to produce high-level singing in herself and others. She was in brilliant, flexible voice for that soprano-killer "Rejoice Greatly," while Duesing sang like an old pro — mellifluously, commandingly intelligently. The baritone solos are full of sound and fury; with Miss Taniguchi's taste and Duesing's voice they turn into music, not gymnastics.

Saturday's contralto was Mrs. Richard Stowe, who has a delightful firm, fresh voice and a warmly sympathetic approach. Her stately demeanor was the more remarkable because she had ten days to prepare the role. On Sunday, Ruth Slater from Chicago was heard in her 5th Lawrence performance. She is a polished professional in all that she does.

Fine Accompanying

Lawrence was fortunate to find a pair of such competent tenors as Karl Brock on Saturday and Richard Knoll on Sunday. The former was a very Brock of Gibraltar in addressing the dangerous score. With his heroic voice and immense energy, he is an extremely interesting singer. Richard Knoll, whose and add a second course at a later date.

72 Teachers

The staff at the elementary and secondary level would consist of 72 teachers, 12 more than the number suggested by a CESA 10 report which was prepared by the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction in October.

The decrease in demand for agriculture in the high schools was discussed. There is an increasing demand in the fields of conservation and forestry, officials said.

A comparison of building costs for a new high school was presented by Anderson. The estimates were based on similar school construction in Wisconsin during 1966. The cost compared favorably with that presented in the state survey.

Significant points brought out were potential residential and industrial growth of communities and the effects, both beneficial and detrimental, of a centralized school; location of a high school, namely in regard to "fringe area," and the question of reorganization.

Also attending last week's meeting were school board representatives Ray Fischer and Willard Tschantz, Brillion; Walter Vollmer, Ivan Novak and James Meyer, Hilbert, and Edgar Daun and Earl Hemauer, Stockbridge.

Rietz was employed by the Steiger for Congress Committee and acted as the field director during the campaign. He attended Oshkosh High School and was a political science major at the George Washington University in Washington, D.C. He is married to the former Karen Dixon of Washington, D.C.

Rietz has been Sixth District GOP publicity chairman and state Young Republican publicity chairman. His duties will include press relations, drafting legislation, and aiding municipalities with federal grant requests.

Home Secretary

Serving as home secretary will be Keith Mulligan also of Oshkosh. Mulligan was employed by the Steiger for Congress Committee serving as press secretary. He was born at Dwight, Ill., and graduated from high school at Sycamore, Ill. He was employed by Anaconda Wire and Cable Company of Sycamore before becoming the managing editor of the Green Lake (Wis.) County Reporter, a weekly newspaper.

Mulligan came to Wisconsin in 1961. He joined the staff of the Oshkosh Daily Northwestern as a political affairs writer in 1962. Long active in Republican politics, he served as Sixth District Young Republican chairman in 1965 and as co-chairman of the 1966 YR state convention held in Oshkosh. This year, he was named one of the 10 Outstanding Wisconsin Young Republicans. He is married to the former Nancy Parker of Sycamore. The Mulligans have three sons ages 9, 8 and 7.

Home Office Hours

Mulligan will operate the district's home offices. He plans to announce a schedule of regular office hours in order to aid constituents with their problems.

Steiger is in Washington this week attending a national conference on air pollution called by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. He is also interviewing applicants for secretarial positions on his staff.

The congressman-elect travels to Chicago Thursday where he will meet with officials in the regional office of economic opportunity and the department of Housing and Urban Development. He will return to Wisconsin Thursday night.

Comeback in the Dominican Republic

The United States Government was severely criticized — and we were among the critics — for sending troops into the Dominican Republic in 1964. But the current near-stable conditions in the Republic give some evidence that perhaps it wasn't such a bad idea after all.

It is really too soon to tell. The Dominican Republic existed under a rigid and brutal dictatorship for a couple of decades and the people were unable to adjust to any sort of more liberal government. Military and Red coups were constantly threatened or in various stages of activity. The elected government of Juan Bosch was overthrown and he reportedly consorted with Communists to try to get his power back. Virtual civil war existed when the American troops were sent in although Washington insisted there was a real threat of Communist take-over by outsiders, presumably Cubans. Although officially the Organization of American States later was in command of troops landed to preserve order, the Americans were really in charge.

But a compromise of sorts was reached between the opposing forces. President Joaquin Balaguer put in an austerity program which, along with $138.2 million of United States aid, has salvaged the almost completely collapsed Dominican economy. Balaguer overwhelmingly defeated Bosch in an election under OAS auspices which was notable in being remarkably free of corruption. Reportedly his program has kept graft down and has limited imports. He has even survived the dismissal of 4,000 workers from the National Sugar Corporation and the elimination of the annual bonus for government workers.

There are serious problems. For one thing the military budget is one-third of the national budget while that for education is only 10 per cent. The foreign exchange deficit will hit $12 million this year. The left wing groups charge that the country is run by "the Balaguer dictatorship" combined with the always vulnerable C.I.A., and that there have been numerous political detentions. But even the charges appear to be considerably scaled down from similar ones a year ago. If there is simmering and emotional opposition to Balaguer's government it is so far way underground.

The exact importance of the American role in this drive toward political and economic stability is of course difficult to determine. On the one hand, the sudden landing of American troops disturbed other Latin Americans and not merely those who had been plotting revolts. More subtly, American intervention discourages domestic independent activities both in the belief that the United States in any case will salvage a Latin American country and in the feeling of inferiority thus engendered.

But at this stage, the Dominican Republic is in a far better position than it has been in several decades. The influence of the American troops cannot be discounted.

Less Pressure on Grades

College students faced with mounting pressure due to grades and their relation to deferment from military service undoubtedly wish the new grading system of schools in the Roman Catholic Diocese of Green Bay would be copied elsewhere.

Under the new arrangement, parents of parochial school primary children receive report cards which do not have the traditional letter grades. Officials say the reports instead are designed to be messages from the school to parent, telling the student's family about his academic progress.

The Rev. Richard Kleiber, superintendent of schools for the Catholic system, says that the move is designed to remove the competitive characteristic and "odious comparisons" among children about grades. Thus in most areas, where the development of attitudes and appreciation rather than skill over subject matter is stressed, no marks are needed.

Grades are unfortunately a slavemaster to some students, especially to those who fear a drop in their grade point average, a resultant loss of deferment status, possible drafting into the armed forces and a tour of duty in Vietnam. The pressure that grades build up, especially in college, has been increasing. A recent study has indicated that by the time this year ends, as many as 90,000 college students will have threatened suicide and 1,000 will have succeeded. Besides military service, students also have to face parental pressure, sometimes unknowingly but heavily applied, and the fact that school records follow a prospective job seeker wherever he goes.

Grade school students do not have the amount of pressure regarding academic achievement placed upon them which their older brothers and sisters do. But some pressure, perhaps at times for the wrong reasons, is there. The elimination of the A-F grading arrangement by various educational systems is a step in the right direction toward making learning more enjoyable.

What Really Separates the Sexes?

The announcement from the respectable Johns Hopkins University that a team of its doctors has started a program to perform surgery to change the genders of both men and women seeking such aid indicates how opinions in the United States have changed in little more than a decade. The publicity of such an operation in Sweden in 1952 was widely condemned in this country where it was called unethical and a matter of mutilation.

The Johns Hopkins authorities insist that the operations are still in the experimental stage. They know exactly why the transsexuals develop as they do. They stress that in other ways the individuals are normal, healthy and fulfilled. In cases already performed there appears to have been a considerable percentage of success as far as encouraging the individuals to live almost normal lives in the sex they preferred.

For a people that are bombarded with sex constantly, we still seem to understand it little. The doctors indicate that one cause of the development of a transsexual — who is neither a physical hermaphrodite or a psychological homosexual — may be that parents wanted a child of the opposite sex and raised the child accordingly. This may be especially true in the cases of boys raised as girls.

But this suggestion brings up the even more confusing matter of exactly why — or if — boys and girls should be raised differently. There have been protests, for instance, that the masculine image we seem to want to develop precludes encouraging a boy's creative or artistic interest and emphasizes engines, science, contact sports and mathematics. Conversely girls with a scientific bend may not be taken seriously by their teachers and pushed instead toward poetry or sewing. Is it true that masculine characteristics must be active, physical, boisterous and practical while passivity, tenderness, and the ethereal are the exclusive property of the truly feminine woman?

One anthropologist, British Geoffrey Gorer, in studying the warlike attitudes of mankind, has found that the few really peaceful peoples of the world — and the tribes are isolated and few indeed — "make very little distinction between the ideal characters of men and women, particularly . . . they have no ideals of brave, aggressive masculinity. Men and women have different primary sexual characteristics — a source of endless merriment as well as more concrete satisfactions — and some different skills and aptitudes. No child, however, grows up with the injunction, 'All real men do . . . or 'No proper woman does . . . ' so that there is no confusion of sexual identity; no cases of sexual inversion have been reported among them. The model for the growing child is of concrete performance and frank enjoyment, not of metaphysical symbolic achievement or of ordeals to be surmounted."

There are other characteristics of these peaceful, happy societies and it should also be noted that they seem to be disappearing as the more warlike people of the world take over.

But Mr. Gorer may be pointing the way toward far better sexual adjustment. As we emerge from the generations that only whispered about sex to the current one that shouts about it, we may even move toward less emphasis upon what is feminine and what is masculine and merely upon what is good and true and right.

All This Bombing of N. Vietnam Without Any Strategic Value at All

BY HENRY J. TAYLOR

In Saigon jargon there are two wars aflame — The South Vietnam war and the "out-country" war: North Vietnam and Laos.

Taylor

On August 5, 1965, we began bombing the out countries. Sixteen months later we are still bombing and bombing and bombing. When the Defense Department's embarrassment over the lack of results became unbearable last July we were led to believe that a change to bombing the oil tanks around Hanoi and Hai-phong meant President Johnson and Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had seen the light. We have not been told, however, that the enemy quickly bypassed these sites and has deployed his gasoline and oil supplies straight from the docks to dispersed locations in 50-gallon drums. The supplies did not originate in these tanks.

President Johnson has repeatedly stated that the primary purpose of the out-country bombing is twofold: To cut off the enemy's incoming men and supplies and to put ed, according to word from the White House.

An editorial on the front page stated: "Japan has murderously attacked our country. Without warning and as a skulking assassin she has launched fire and death with all the treachery known to thugs and outlaws."

the cost of the war so high against the Hanoi government that it will come to a conference table.

Neither of these objectives has been achieved.

In fact, the Defense Department admitted on December 3 that the infiltration in this period has actually tripled.

PUBLIC BRAINWASHED
From the very beginning Washington has brainwashed the public about this conflict — this still undeclared war — which has become the American nation's third largest war. We've not been told the full truth about either its size or its failures, its mismanagement, and especially the ghastly mismanagement of our air power. Here are a few of the untold facts:

The Battle of Britain was an absolute miniature compared to our Southeast Asia bombardments. At its peak the Germans never hit England with even half the forces of our strikes. I was in London on the agonizing Sunday, May 10, 1941, when Hitler sent over 1,200 bombers. This was London's martyrdom — the largest air attack of the war. But one whole squadron of Nazi Heinkel III-K bombers, their best, did not deliver as much bomb tonnage as just one of our B-52s.

The Germans reached a 30-day high of 12,000 individual aircraft sorties. We're flying more than 24,000 a month over the out countries and South Vietnam.

In the past 11 months alone we've already dropped a heavier bomb total than our four-year total against Japan, her Pacific Islands, China, Burma, India and the Philippines. Throughout those four years we dropped 500,000 tons in an area of 65 million square miles. We've already exceeded that in 1966. And how big are the out countries and South Vietnam?

The trouble is that the bombing is done, our men's lives are risked and the planes lost in absolute defiance to the accepted principle of air attack. But does the public know it?

Mrs. McNamara stated before a Congressional committee, in discussing his analysis of the Johnson-McNamara target selections: "The targets influencing the operations are the roads and the war materials being moved over them. The North Vietnamese harbors, electric power, dams, etc., are not targets of fundamental consequence to the carrying out of their operations in South Vietnam."

I believe there isn't an air commander in Vietnam or anywhere in the world who would not find that contention utterly appalling.

JUST DOESN'T WORK
Less than 10 per cent of our World War II bomb tonnage was targeted against roads, railways and the vehicles moving on them. We learned as early as the African campaign that it was impossible to stop supplies by attacking one truck at a time, blowing up bridges, rails, etc.

We had to hit the port facilities, electric power plants, strategic factories, airfields, etc. The only worthwhile targets proved to be the critical spots where the supplies originated: The Johnson-McNamara decision is absolutely unprecedented. In truth, it is merely a long-shot experiment in a field where previous incontestable proof makes their experiment a ghastly folly.

The Johnson-McNamara basic (and unnecessary) bad judgment in their wrong use of our air power is directly responsible for a large part of the war's total cost and the horrifying fact that no end is in sight.

We will never do with men and money — and tax increases — what we fail to do by the strategic needs of this mismanaged war.

Wisconsin Report

New Alignment of Senate Leadership Not Youth Movement

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — It is one of the minor ironies of the times in Wisconsin politics that the reorganization of the Republican majority in the State Senate should be headlined as a means of advancing "younger" senators. Sen. Robert P. Knowles, who has moved up to the Senate presidency in the arrangement, is a man of 50 who is a grandfather five times over.

Wyngaard

But age is a comparative thing, in politics as in other avenues of human activity. Sen. Frank Panzer, the man who is being replaced, is now 76 years of age. Thus in the pragmatic sense youth is being served.

Sen. Panzer will be Senate president pro tempore emeritus. This is a sonorous Latin means of expressing the fact that he is being honored by his friends and colleagues for long service. But he is being retired to a less active and demanding role, nevertheless, in order to provide more opportunities for service and demonstration for the juniors who have been waiting in line with steadily decreasing patience. Parenthetically, it is doubtful that any other man will ever accumulate the record of seniority and rank that Panzer has acquired, including 20 years as the Senate's elected president.

NEW LEADERS ABLE

In selecting Knowles and Sen. Jerris Leonard as the two chief spokesmen for the Senate majority, the Republicans of the upper house have in fact named two of the ablest of their number.

Leonard at 35 is "young," in the line-up of the Senate where the graybeards are such a familiar sight. But he has had more preparation and has more natural aptitude for his task as floorleader than most of the men who have preceded him. He will start his seventh year in the Senate in January. He had served two terms in the Assembly previously. Fluent and aggressive, he is also ambitious and according to the performance in his job during the next two years, he is likely to make his bid for a higher office in an early year, indeed, he seriously considered a campaign for the Republican nomination for attorney general this year. He was deterred upon the advice of friends who persuaded him that with his comparative youth and progress in the legislative hierarchy, he would find a future candidacy more responsive.

Probably the essential purpose and meaning of the reshuffling of the Senate majority leadership was to provide more promotion for others; among the "younger" men of the house. Notably among them are Sen. Robert Warren of Green Bay and Sen. Ernest Keppler of Sheboygan, who will become assistant majority leader and caucus chairman, respectively. Warren, especially, has impressed students of legislative affairs as well as his party elders with his aptitude, diligence and lawyerlike ability in committee work and floor debate. That he is actively ambitious for advancement in politics is doubtful. But it can be said authoritatively that there are those in the wings watching him with the idea that he may provide future ticket timber, too.

It would be surprising, remembering the history of his family in public life and the success of his brother, if Robert Knowles has not considered the possibility of a rise to higher place in state affairs. On the face of it, and in the perspective of the Senate's historical operations, the office of Senate president is a fairly innocuous one. It is doubtful, for example, that most Wisconsin citizens were aware of the fact that Sen. Panzer held that rank for so long — widely known as he was on his own account as a legislator.

But such places can be transformed — if the possessors desire. The Senate presidency has more clout, as the vernacular would have it, in other states as Knowles has doubtless observed during his travels as immediate past president of the National Conference of State Legislative Leaders. Knowles has now been designated for the highest working rank among the 33 state senators. There is no rule that requires him to remain mute. It can be predicted that he won't.

Strictly Personal

Used to be Mischief, Now It's Delinquency

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Around Halloween we were telling the children at dinner one night about some of the pranks we used to play as children. They were fascinated at our daring and our imagination in those long-lost days.

Harris

"We couldn't do any of those now," said my oldest boy. "In the first place, we don't have the opportunities. And in the second place, if we tried them, we'd be booked as juvenile delinquents."

That is perfectly true. The opportunities for mischief have shrunk narrowly in the modern world, and much of it is no longer considered mischief, but delinquency. This, I am convinced, is a great loss to children.

Once a year, we could get rid of our rebellious and resentful feelings toward the adult world, and this annual discharge of hostility made us feel better, gave us a curious sense of self-respect and self-assertion. It drained away a lot of "anti-adult" sentiment that had built up during the rest of the year.

What can children do these days, particularly in our dense and mechanized society? Some of my son's friends wanted to go around sticking pennies in nickel parking-meters to jam them but this is a city violation and would certainly bring them to the police station, if caught.

No doubt a good deal of what is called "juvenile delinquency" these days has some pathological roots, but, not all of it. There no longer seems to be a dividing-line between what is mischief and what is nastily destructive. It used to be clear to us exactly what the limits were; today there is nothing but confusion and prohibition.

Moreover, the idea of "juvenile delinquency" was scarcely recognized a generation ago. Some kids got into trouble more than others, and if they got into trouble often enough, they were severely treated. But the category "juvenile delinquent" was as foreign to us as the modern category "teen-ager."

You were a child, and you remained a child until you crossed the threshold of adulthood; there was no officially recognized in-between period, where you stood with one foot uneasily placed in each world. And because you were considered a child — and so considered yourself — the mischief you played was not mistaken for delinquency.

Our urbanized technological society robs children of their youth too soon; they grow too fast out of childish pleasures, and stand chomping at the bit, waiting to begin adult pleasures. In this social and psychological limbo, it is little wonder that what used to be high-spirited mischief turns rancid and degenerates into ill-spirited aggression.

Going Too Far With Government Economy

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Salaries of county commissioners in Idaho are set by the legislature. Top salary is $6,499.85.

The salaries were reduced 15 cents last year when Bannock County Commissioner Lawrence Lystrup said he would resign if his salary was cut even 15 cents.

Still on the job, Lystrup says he hopes the next session of the legislature will restore the salary cut.

Politics in Strange Time Of Searching

GOP Governors
Spend Conference Evaluating Hopes.

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — This is one of those strange moments in American political history, a kind of bewildered searching, and maybe wishing.

Events of the past few days illustrate it.

One was out in Colorado where Idaho's Gov. Robert E. Smylie milled around at the Republican governors' conference, making a prediction about President Johnson.

Smylie could hardly have been smiling, since he was defeated in Idaho's Aug. 2 primary election, but he predicted Johnson would not be a candidate for re-election in 1968.

He thinks Johnson's health and what he called the "mood of discontent" in the country may persuade the President not to try for a second term.

Possibly Right

Smylie could be right. For a man who has been soaked, bathed and massaged in politics, Johnson for many months has seen his popularity in the public opinion polls going steadily down without doing much to offset it.

But the Republicans are in no envious position themselves and Smylie's prediction about Johnson may be no more than a wistful wish that Johnson, the most adroit, nimble, and powerful obstacle on the Republican road to the presidency, would please step aside by the time of the next election.

The Colorado conference of the Republican Governors Association which Smylie attended was hardly more than a lot of polite palaver, a kind of board or inspection, where the Republicans looked one another over to see who might be a good presidential prospect.

Seek Support

News stories out of the conference told how Michigan's Gov. George Romney "thundered." While Romney still insists he hasn't decided about running in 1968, he certainly acts like a man trying to line up support.

But this thundering — which some may interpret later as dogmatic — manner may turn into one of his severest handicaps, particularly if he does not produce more ideas than he has so far.

On the other hand, California's conservative Gov.-elect Ronald Reagan, according to the news stories from Colorado, was a far easier figure to listen to, not any more original than Romney, but relaxed, and so far without any presidential pretensions.

In short, at this moment in their history there is not a Republican in sight who Republicans could say is their boy for two years from now.

Bliss Unhappy

But, while all this was going on in Colorado, something else was happening in Wisconsin, where Ray C. Bliss, the chairman of the Republican National Committee, didn't sound too cheerful.

There he was telling the GOP that while there is little room among Democrats for new ideas, with the party faithful standing in line for room at the top, the Republican party has been eroding at the bottom for years, finding it ever more difficult to discover people willing to run for office.

Among Republicans, he said, there is a shortage of "qualified candidates," campaign managers, political researchers, public relations experts and professional fund raisers.

When the facts are all known Bliss may prove to have been one of the main reasons the Republicans did as well as they did in 1966 — not because of any issues, but because he worked hard in getting out votes.

The Democrats had nothing to match him. Both parties look rocky now.

Milwaukee Democrats Name New Chairman

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee County Democrats named attorney Mathias G. Schimenz their party chairman Sunday replacing Richard J. Steinberg, 114-70.

Steinberg had been seeking his third one-year term. Schimenz had bid unsuccessfully in the past for the county party's chairmanship.

as either to launch aerial missions or as a sanctuary.

In ground action, South Vietnamese infantrymen beat back three assaults today by an estimated Viet Cong battalion — about 500 men — in two and a half hours of fighting 44 miles southwest of Saigon. Vietnamese headquarters said the government forces took light casualties and killed 20 of the attackers.

A reinforced platoon of up to 50 men from the U.S. 1st Infantry Division suffered heavy casualties Sunday in a fierce fight with an enemy force of unknown size about 10 miles north of Tay Ninh City. A U.S. spokesman said 28 Communists were killed. The clash was in War Zone C about 40 miles northwest of Saigon, an area of heavy fighting in Operation Attleboro last month.

Scattered Fighting

Ground fighting elsewhere was small and scattered, both the U.S. and Vietnamese military commands reported.

Over North Vietnam, U.S. jet fighter-bombers flew through thunderstorms and low clouds Sunday on 85 bombing missions. Pilots reported destroying or damaging seven bridges, 13 junks and barges, an anti-aircraft gun site, 16 staging and storage areas, and two bridges northwest of Dong Hoi.

S. Africa, Mozambique Getting Oil to Rhodesia

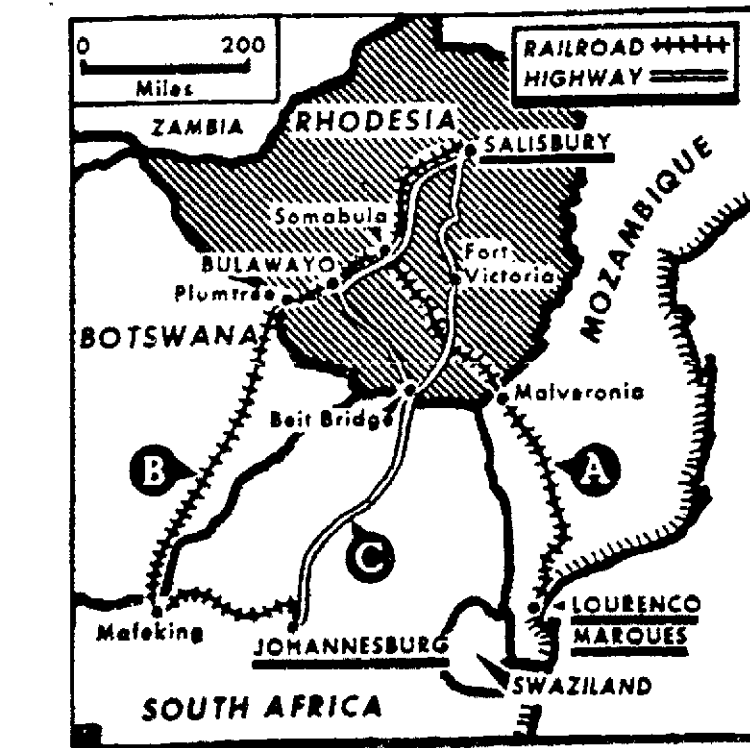

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Oil supplies which are reaching Rhodesia are coming from the adjoining Portuguese territory of Mozambique and South Africa, informed sources said here today.

About two-thirds of the supplies are shipped by rail from the southern Mozambique port of Lourenco Marques, the sources said. The railway from Lourenco Marques crosses the Rhodesian border at Malvernia, about 30 miles north of the Limpopo river and runs northwest through the asbestos mining town of Shabani. At Somabula, 20 miles south of Gwelo, it links with the main Salisbury-Bulawayo line.

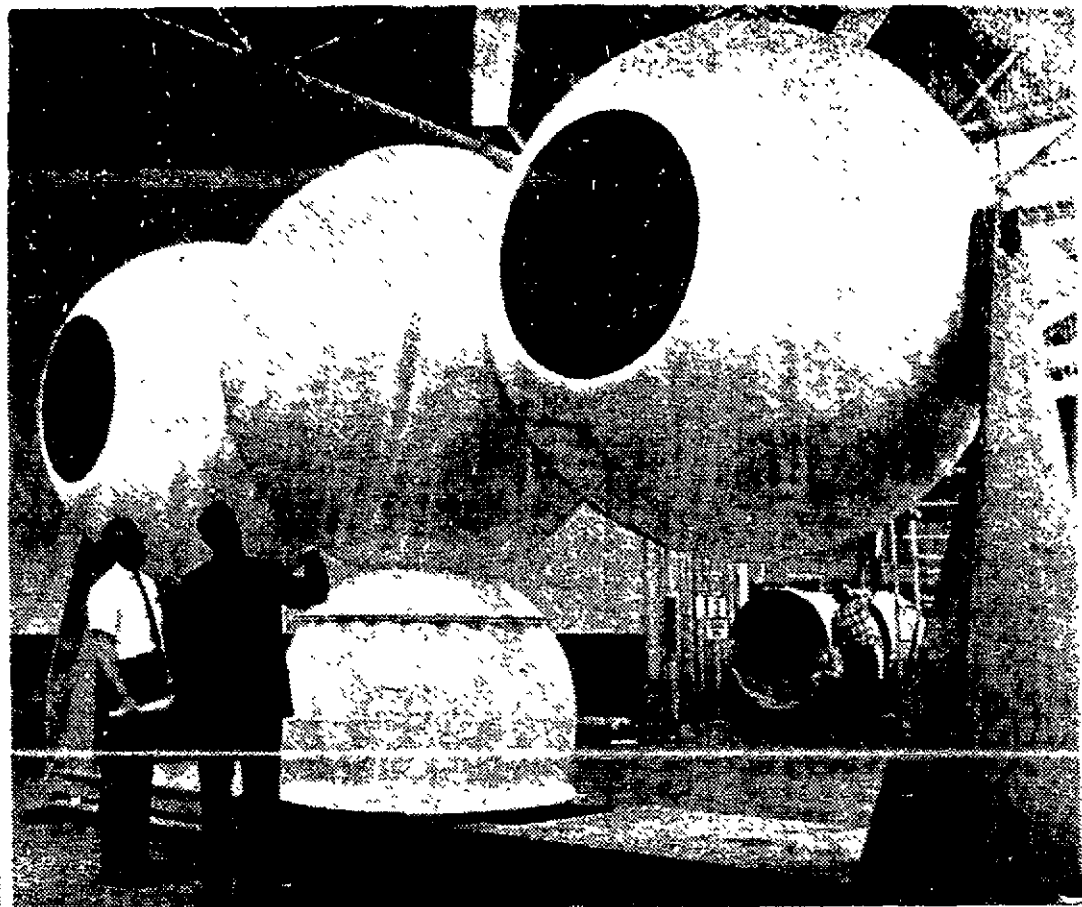

This oil is shipped into Lourenco Marques by tanker and refined there before being sent to Rhodesia.

The Map Illustrates How Rhodesia receives oil from African neighbors. A rail line (A) supplies about two-thirds of Rhodesia's oil from the southern Mozambique port of Lourenco Marques, where oil is received by tanker and refined. The other third is received from South Africa either by rail (B) from Johannesburg via Mafeking and across Botswana or by road (C) from Johannesburg to the Beit Bridge border crossing. have said contains "multiple" gall stones — or, as the general himself quipped before the operation, "many, many rocks."

The gall bladder, which lies close to the liver and is partially attached to it, normally acts as a temporary storage plant for a fluid called bile that is manufactured in the liver. Bile, which eventually reaches the intestine, is vital in the food digestion process.

Gall stones can impair the gall bladder's normal functioning, and sometimes even form dangerous road blocks in various tubes linking the liver, the gall bladder and the intestines. These tubes form the letter Y with the handle called the common bile duct — leading into the intestine.

After the patient is put to sleep with anesthetics, the surgeons make an incision, about eight inches long, in the upper right part of his abdomen. This would be not far from the scar of Eisenhower's "regional ileitis" operation in 1956.

Youth Lost License At 90, Life at 130

MARION, N.C. (AP) — A youth who lost his driver's license last week for going 90 miles an hour lost his life driving 130 miles an hour Saturday night, the state highway patrol said.

He was identified as Jerry Dean Holtsclaw, 20, of Marion. Two other Marion youths also were killed when Holtsclaw lost control of his father's car on U.S. 221 while being chased by two state highway patrolmen.

cut that amount in appropriations within a six-month period.

Byrnes said the way the new Congress, with its increase in Republicans in both the House and Senate, acts will determine whether there will be a moderate deficit or whether a moderate tax increase might be indicated.

The administration during the past year, he said, made book-keeping savings but this did not give the true picture of what the government does or what the revenue would be.

More Restraint

It is his view, Byrnes said, that there will be more restraint by the 90th Congress in voting appropriations than there was in the present 89th Congress.

"But," he said, "we will have to have a very substantial restraint if we are going to avoid a tax increase. We need restraints by both the administration and by Congress."

Byrnes said it would be a mistake before all the facts are in to pre-judge one's position on something so important as a tax change.

Byrnes said that some of the newer programs, which have not really gone into full operation, should be reduced or put on the shelf.

Musician-Magician Richard Himber Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Band-leader Richard Himber, whose sleight-of-hand magic tricks brought him as much popularity as his music, died Sunday at his home. He was 59.

Himber was found in his Essex House apartment on Central Park South by a building employee. Police tentatively listed the cause of death as a heart attack.

Himber's bands gained popularity during the swing era and he maintained them through the years with greater emphasis on his talents as a magician.

Hoover said the FBI had always followed a practice "that no interception was to be undertaken or continued without first obtaining the approval of the attorney general."

Kennedy's office retorted with a letter from Courtney A. Evans, assistant FBI head during Kennedy's term as attorney general, who said he did not know of any discussion or correspondence with Kennedy concerning use of microphones for eavesdropping.

Evans' letter said prior attorney general had told the FBI that attorney general approval was needed only for telephone taps, but not other buggings.

Japanese Hope Subsidies Plague New Occupied Lands Indonesian Leaders

Forgive, Forget Relations With Some Countries
Cordial, Others Not

TOKYO (AP) — A quarter of a century after Pearl Harbor, Japan is again established as a giant among Asian nations. It is to be a friendly giant. Relations with its neighbors range from uncomfortable to cordial. They are steadily improving, with World War II fading into the past.

Yet memories of the war and earlier occupations linger in some places. And there is some fear of economic domination by the Japanese. Japan itself is still emerging from the psychological shock of defeat.

It is promoting trade, but unrelenting politics. Some critics are speculating Tokyo is peacefully trying to establish the greater East Asia coprosperity sphere that Japan failed to impose by force.

Japan is now offering economic and technical aid to other Asian countries. A Japanese Peace Corps is at work. Government ministers are making regular visits abroad. But Japan is as far as to go.

Here is a country-by-country rundown of Japan's image in the eyes of other Asians:

PHILIPPINES
The Filipino is gradually losing his hatred of his former conquerors. A few pockets of resentment remain.

One source of friction is a trade and navigation treaty signed by President Carlos Garcia six years ago, but not yet ratified by congress. It is looked by businessmen and politicians who say it would permit cheap Japanese goods to flood the market and swamp Philippine manufacturers.

SINGAPORE
Many here still hate the Japanese. Unwritten immigration laws ban any Japanese involved in the occupation from returning.

"We could not guarantee their safety," a government official said. "There are still too many people here who remember they know the names. They can still feel the face slaps."

The government has urged people to forgive and forget.

INDONESIA
Japan is moving fast to gain a foothold in Indonesia. Particularly interested in developing oil fields, mining and industry, Japan gave Indonesia a $30 million "edit this year."

High pressure methods of Japanese, such as bringing 10 or more men into a conference with two Indonesian officials, disturb Indonesians.

MALAYSIA
Japanese advertisements ash in Malaysian cities. Japanese traffic includes businessmen, tourists, Peace Corps volunteers, aid missions and night club performers.

The economic invasion is likened by one merchant to the military invasion of 25 years ago. But this time, he said, The Japanese are welcome — they offer all the good things in life, carpets to pearls, at a cheaper price."

NATIONALIST CHINA
The shadow of Red China darkens relations between Taipei and Tokyo. President Chiang Kai-shek's regime discounts a Japanese belief that Japanese "made with the mainland can be separated from politics."

Nationalist trade with Japan and Japanese loans are important factors in Formosa's economy. Contacts are correct, but lack the warmth Formosa shows to other nations such as the United States and South Korea.

SOUTH KOREA
To many Koreans, Japan is still a former enemy and colonial ruler with whom their government restored normal relations just a year ago.

President Chung Hee Park says Koreans do not have to forget the past, but must work with Japan to maintain peace and security in north Asia.

HONG KONG
Japan is Hong Kong's biggest supplier after Red China. Imports from Japan in the first six months of 1966 totaled about $14 million compared to $20 million from China.

Japanese businessmen say they have experienced no anti-Japanese discrimination in the British colony.

But it is generally acknowledged that there is an undercurrent of feeling — possibly minor — among middle-aged residents.

A high government official said privately that "Japan, stripped of military forces, is trying to dominate Asia economically."

THAILAND
Thailand and Japan have excellent relations. But hints are dropped here from time to time about the dangers of an imbalance in trade.

In 1965, Japan exported to Thailand $219 million worth of goods, one-third of Thailand's total foreign trade. Thailand's exports totaled $151 million.

Everybody Received Something For Nothing Under Sukarno Regime money to finish them and the "new order" army generals who took their bankrupt country in receivership from Sukarno's "guided democracy" want them left as is — a reminder of the old order.

The generals, under Suharto, took power after putting down the murderous coup d'etat of the PKI (Communist Party) a year ago. Now, with Sukarno still president and glowering from the sidelines like a vulture, they are about to embark on a herculean economic stabilization program that bristles with political dangers.

One simple statistic dramatizes the inflation that has eaten away the heart of what ought to be one of the richest countries in the world. In January the government was compelled to quintuple government salaries, in July to triple them again — and yet today, from the top down, government workers can not satisfy basic needs.

The inflation grew out of Sukarno's pernicious use of government subsidies. He subsidized everything from newsprint to electricity to rail fares out of nonexistent public funds, to keep prices artificially low. It is this practice that General Suharto, aided by a remarkably able kitchen cabinet of U.S. trained Indonesian economists, means to halt.

Removal Will Cause Trouble
The subsidies are so deeply embedded in the economic structure that their removal is certain to cause political trouble. The newspapers screamed with such pain over the end of newsprint subsidies that the effective date was postponed until after the January holidays.

The removal of other subsidies closer to the consumer will have devastating impact. One Djakarta resident now pays the equivalent of about 21 cents a month to cover electricity for his cottage in the mountains. Without the subsidy, his bill will be 1,000 per cent higher.

The old price of gasoline was one-sixth of a U.S. cent per gallon. A year ago, went to two cents. After January it will be 15 cents a gallon when the fat subsidy cushion is removed.

The government will try to compel state-owned enterprises to pay their own way, which means a ruthless pruning of padded payrolls. One reason for the subsidy barnacle in the first place was Sukarno's inability to find efficient managers for the Japanese troops, said, "We have good relations with them now."

SOUTH VIET NAM
The Vietnamese, engrossed in war for a fifth of a century, have little time or inclination to think about Japan's role in World War II.

Nguyen Ngoc Linh, editor general of the official Viet Nam Press, said they appear to harbor little or no animosity over the Japanese occupation.

The Japanese presence is visible in the more than $50 million in war reparations poured into dams and other public projects.

economic machine left behind when the Dutch were expelled

The removal of subsidies is only one part of Sukarno's indispensable stabilization program. He intends to transform Indonesia from an allocation economy to a market economy.

Instead of government allocation of scarce materials to end-users, the materials will be up for grabs. Theoretically, the most efficient managers will get the supplies.

Budget Unbelievably Low
Thus a new U.S. spare-parts loan of $15 million to help restore the decaying Indonesian plant has thrown Suharto's planners into some confusion.

Previously these spare parts would have been directly allocated to end-users, regardless of efficiency or need. Now some new system must be found to make them available on the basis of competition.

With this economic revolution, the government has drafted an unbelievably low budget of $813 million for next year with a deficit it hopes to keep below 15 per cent (as against a 75 per cent deficit this year). With a population of 106 million, the new budget can scarcely be called fat.

But stringent belt-tightening is demanded by the Western powers — and the Soviet Union — as the price for refinancing Sukarno's staggering foreign debt of $2.5 billion. It is also the price for resumption of U.S. foreign aid, which is being intentionally held to a rock-bottom $55 million (compared to an informal request for $500 million minimum).

Stung badly by Sukarno in 1965, the U.S. will do no more than the minimum while Sukarno's still in the wings. President Johnson's policy is to avoid any more entanglement than absolutely essential.

It is easy to perceive the political dynamite encased in the stabilization program. With Sukarno now growing bold enough to take pot-shots at it ("A revolution knows no rest," he said last week), realists foresee political trouble from the "Bung" as he seeks to exploit the misery he himself largely created. The army generals, as shall be seen in a subsequent column, are well aware of this possibility.

Incidentally, science — which seems to be measuring everything these days — has discovered that when the average man does sit down his posterior covers about 180 square inches and exerts a pressure of .92 pounds per square inch.

Quotable notables: "Common sense and good nature will do a lot to make the pilgrimage of life not so difficult." — W. Somerset Maugham.

How much is human life worth? Some 21,000 Americans commit suicide each year, among them hundreds of teenagers. Dr. Stanley Yolles, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, believes this number could be cut 25 per cent in five years by a concerted government drive.

No one is safe from attack these days, not even Santa Claus. The jolly old saint is "too fat and creates an unhealthy image" for children, claims J. I. Rodale, 68, publisher of Prevention, a health magazine. "After all, one can be slim and still be jolly."

Safety hint: If you hang a spring of mistletoe in your home, be sure to place it out of reach of young fingers. Children have reportedly died as a result of eating mistletoe berries.

Worth remembering: "If a man's after money, he's money-mad. If he keeps it, he's a capitalist. If he doesn't get it, he's a ne'er-do-well. If he doesn't try to get it, he lacks ambition. If he gets it without working for it, he's a parasite. And if he accumulates it after years of toil, people call him a fool who never gets anything out of life."

Folklore: If the first person you encounter on starting a journey is a barefoot woman, the only way to avoid terrible bad luck is to return home and start over again. Killing a spider will bring either poverty or rainfall. Sneezing will cause whatever you were thinking of at the time to come true. A horseshoe in his trunk of samples will help a salesman sell better, and give him a tired arm by nightfall, too.

It was Voltaire who first observed, "Ideas are like beads"; men do not have them until they grow up."

Toppers, Beware! Bees And Booze Don't Mix

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

It is best to stay away from beehives if you've been drinking. Bees may like honey but hate alcohol, and are likely to sting anyone who has its odor on his breath.

Ever wonder why you feel poorly on a rainy day? One reason is that your brain may not be getting as much oxygen as usual. Moisture-laden tissues swell and cut down the flow in blood vessels.

In Peru, as in Spain, it is bad manners — even insulting — to whistle for a taxi. According to a guidebook, it is best simply to "wave your hand or stand on the curb and hiss as loud as you can."

It is said that in this "age of anxiety" everybody is afraid of something. Science has classified at least 217 different kinds of phobias. But one that you rarely meet with in the average office worker is "kathisophobia" — the fear of sitting down."

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

It is best to stay away from beehives if you've been drinking. Bees may like honey but hate alcohol, and are likely to sting anyone who has its odor on his breath.

Ever wonder why you feel poorly on a rainy day? One reason is that your brain may not be getting as much oxygen as usual. Moisture-laden tissues swell and cut down the flow in blood vessels.

In Peru, as in Spain, it is bad manners — even insulting — to whistle for a taxi. According to a guidebook, it is best simply to "wave your hand or stand on the curb and hiss as loud as you can."

It is said that in this "age of anxiety" everybody is afraid of something. Science has classified at least 217 different kinds of phobias. But one that you rarely meet with in the average office worker is "kathisophobia" — the fear of sitting down."

Posterior Spread
Incidentally, science — which seems to be measuring everything these days — has discovered that when the average man does sit down his posterior covers about 180 square inches and exerts a pressure of .92 pounds per square inch.

Quotable notables: "Common sense and good nature will do a lot to make the pilgrimage of life not so difficult." — W. Somerset Maugham.

How much is human life worth? Some 21,000 Americans commit suicide each year, among them hundreds of teenagers. Dr. Stanley Yolles, director of the National Institute of Mental Health, believes this number could be cut 25 per cent in five years by a concerted government drive.

No one is safe from attack these days, not even Santa Claus. The jolly old saint is "too fat and creates an unhealthy image" for children, claims J. I. Rodale, 68, publisher of Prevention, a health magazine. "After all, one can be slim and still be jolly."

Safety hint: If you hang a spring of mistletoe in your home, be sure to place it out of reach of young fingers. Children have reportedly died as a result of eating mistletoe berries.
